TRUMAN VETOES INCOME TAX CUT BILL

ANOTHER 24-HOUR DELAY IN CAR-BUS STRIKE PARLEY

MAYOR'S MEETING ADJOURNED TILL TOMORROW AFTER 3D SESSION FAILS

Both Sides Reject Two Proposals for Ending Walkout — Company Submits Third One for Court Test.

Any settlement of the streetcar-bus strike was delayed at least 24 hours when both the streetcar union and the Public Service Co. today rejected two proposals for ending the walkout.

The company submitted a third proposal calling for a court test of the validity of the disputed wage arbitration award, pending which the 3500 strikers would return to work. The union's answer to this proposal is to be submitted tomorrow at 11 a.m.

The court test proposed by Public Service would come through a joint company-union request for a declamatory judgment, Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann reported. Union spokesman were seeking to get members of their executive board together this afternoon to pass on the plan.

Mayor's Comment on Proposals

In a statement issued on conclusion of today's conference, the Mayor outlined the two proposals for ending the walkout which had been submitted last Saturday and said "neither plan was completely acceptable to either party."

Both plans called for the streetcar operators, bus drivers and maintenance personnel to return to work pending a decision as to validity of the disputed wage arbitration award. This decision would be binding; if the arbitration award were held valid, company and union would sign a contract based on it, and if the award were deemed invalid, the parties would proceed with new arbitration.

The first proposal, which had been submitted by Commissioner Nicholas M. Fillo of the United States Conciliation Service, called for the decision on validity to be made by a person or persons selected by the disputants and not connected with the parties to the dispute.

The second proposal, which grew out of discussion of the first, differed only in that it specified that the union president and attorney should obtain from the union specific authority to assist the conference group in selecting the party or parties to decide the issue.

Third Conference at City Hall.

Today's conference at City Hall was the third conducted by the Mayor in an effort to end the walkout that has left St. Louis

60 FAMILIES QUIT HOMES AS RIVER CRESTS PASS CITY

(Pictures in Everyday Magazine.)

Preparations to meet the new flood of the Mississippi river rising north of Keokuk, Ia., were made by both the Second District Coast Guard and the Corps of Engineers today as the crests of the first floods of both the Mississippi and Missouri rivers rolled past the city, causing little damage.

The Mississippi, with a flood stage of 30 feet here, dropped to the 36.2 mark at the levee today after having crested at 36.6 feet Saturday afternoon. The Missouri dropped to 31.1 at St. Charles, more than a foot below peak stage of 32.4 feet. Flood stage there is 25 feet.

High waters which inundated basements in low areas in the northern and southern sections of the city over the week end, caused about 60 families to leave their homes and take refuge with friends and neighbors. However the Weather Bureau here predicted the river would drop one foot and one-half by Wednesday.

Anticipating the new flood, which the Weather Bureau at Burlington, Ia., has predicted will be the worst ever experienced in the 100-mile reach of the Mississippi between Keokuk and Louisiana, Mo., the Coast Guard sent nine motor boats and a crew of 30 men to Burlington for rescue work above Keokuk.

12 IN B-29 KILLED WHEN CRAFT HITS SIDE OF MOUNTAIN

Bomber Crashes in Heavy Rainstorm in Vermont While Off Course on Training Trip.

SPRINGFIELD, Vt., June 16 (AP)—A four-way investigation was underway today into the tragedy of Hawk's mountain, where an Army B-29 bomber crashed early yesterday, with a known loss of life of 12.

The bomber, on a training mission, hit the side of the mountain in a heavy rainstorm.

Army aviation officers from Grenier Field, Manchester, N.H., Civil Aeronautics officials, Vermont state police and local officers joined forces in trying to determine what caused the big craft, apparently lost in the clouds, to crash against a ledge on the mountain side. Only 20 feet more clearance would have averted the catastrophe, Army officials who viewed the wreckage said.

The number of persons aboard the plane, which left Tucson, Ariz., Saturday, had not yet been determined. Originally 15 were aboard, but the Army said the passenger list was changed at the greater Pittsburgh area.

The commander of the flight was identified as Robert M. Fessler, veteran training pilot at Davis Manson Field in Tucson, Ariz., where the plane took off. Two other victims were Lt. Wilfred E. Gassett, 26, of Brockton, Mass., West Point honor graduate, and Staff Sgt. Oliver Hartwell Jr. of Wells, Me. Other names were withheld pending notification of kin.

British Miners Lay Cornerstone Of New Lidice, Donate $121,000

By JAMES M. LONG

WHERE LIDICE WAS, Czechoslovakia, June 16 (AP) — Five years and five days after Gestapo troopers brutally wiped the little village of Lidice off the map, a group of British miners tapped a gray block of granite into place here yesterday as the cornerstone of a new Lidice.

Of the old one, nothing remains save a huge timber cross and a wreath of thorns marking the common grave into which the Nazis dumped the machine-gunned bodies of all the village men—about 178 in all, a few grass-covered foundation stones of a church and untold memories.

Most of the memories were here yesterday, in the minds of 140 black-gowned women and a few quiet children, the only survivors of a village of 500.

After the men were shot, on that June day in 1942, the women were sent to concentration camps, the children were scattered throughout Europe, the village was burned, the ruins bulldozed flat and the ground plowed under. The thorough Germans even draned the village goose pond.

This was done because the Kladno district Gestapo, whose leaders died on the gallows a few weeks ago in Prague, said the village had harbored the assassins of Reinhard Heydrich, the German "protector" whom the Czechs called The Hangman.

Several hundred persons besides the survivors assembled for yesterday's ceremony. Most of them were neighbors from Makotrasy and Kladno. The visiting women wore the red-skirted, white-bonneted folk costumes and high peaked hats with the feather slanting forward.

"It is not often that the dead and the living participate in the same ceremony," said Bernard Stross, who led the delegation of British miners which brought a check for 30,375 pounds ($121,500) raised in a campaign to start the rebuilding project. Then he placed the stone marked "Zakladni Kamen Novych Lidice" — which means foundation stone of the new Lidice.

One of the women whispered: "I would rather not live here again, but as they are building the village specially for us—we will have to, I guess." She lost her husband and four children.

TRUMAN NAMES INQUIRY BOARD ON AIR SAFETY AFTER SERIES OF WRECKS

Standard Procedure Preceded Capital Line Crash, Landis, Group's Head, Says; Pilot Error Only a Guess.

By JAMES J. STREBIG
Associated Press Aviation Reporter

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Prompted by the series of airline crashes that caused 146 deaths in 18 days, President Truman has appointed a panel of aviation experts to determine ways to make plane travel safer.

The President named James M. Landis, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, to head the five-man inquiry group. He gave it a mandate to look wherever it desires and to report quickly any answer it finds. The President's action was announced yesterday.

Landis said today that the Capital Airlines plane which crashed Friday night was descending through overcast in an effort to come into Washington "under the weather," an option given the pilot by airways traffic control.

Landis told a press conference that procedure before the accident which carried 50 persons to sudden death near the Virginia-West Virginia line was standard. It is "in the books" Landis added, through a recording device in the Washington Airport control tower.

It is simply a hypothesis, Landis said, that the pilot miscalculated his position, in a letdown from 7000 feet.

Altimeter Story Denied.

Landis said the airline has denied a story given out by a Capital Airlines officer yeserday that the altimeter, which shows the pilot his height above sea level, was found to indicate 2000 feet. He added that the needle could easily jump on impact and that the reading was on no importance.

Landis recounted this story of Capital's flight 410 after it left Pittsburgh for Washington:

At 5:53 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, the pilot reported he was over the Flintstone intersection (a radio marker 88 miles southeast of Pittsburgh) flying at 7000 feet. One minute later, Airways Traffic

EVIDENCE FOUND THAT HUNGARIAN RIGHTISTS TRIED TO OBTAIN ARMS

and GEORGE WELLER

Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright 1947.

PARIS, June 16.—Is there a Russian case in Hungary? What lies behind Russia's secrecy, evasion and silence?

The Russians obstinately refuse to reveal documents on which they have acted. Both American and British requests for details on the Hungarian coup have been rejected by the Soviets. The western powers reason that secrecy is the mother of guilt and that the Soviets have no case.

Evidence uncovered by the writers here from non-Communist Hungarian sources indicates, however, that the Soviets may not be without a limited case. Russian silence appears to be tactical. There is a Soviet case hidden here, even though the Russians stubbornly postpone its revelation.

This new evidence does not mitigate the general Soviet aim of breaking down the democratic majority in Hungary. But it does point to a half-conceived elementary plan under which some Hungarian leaders of the Smallholders party planned to take action, possibly of forcible nature, when Soviet troops withdraw. To the Russians this plan was a plot.

Reds Control Police.

In defeated Hungary all non-Russian control of security is in the hands of an armed police force. A Communist Minister of Interior, with Russian guidance and without protest either by the Smallholders party or the British-American members of the Allied Control Commission, gradually has transformed this nationwide police into an entirely Communist-dominated body.

It is expected that when the Red Army withdraws, leaving behind communication troops, until the Austrian treaty is signed, this Communist police army will as-

'COLD-BLOODED POLITICS,' G.O.P. VIEW OF TAX VETO

Republicans to Make It Issue in 1948 — Snyder Says Action Was Justified, Assures 'Sound-Finances.'

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP) Republican bigwigs in Congress and out hit back at President Truman's tax bill veto today with words leaving little doubt they expect it to be a 1948 presidential campaign issue. Many Democrats defended the veto.

Representative Knutson (Rep.), Minnesota, author of the vetoed measure and chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, called the President's suggestion that tax-cutting must wait until next year "nothing but cold-blooded politics."

He declared in a statement that President Truman, by his action, demonstrated "a sad lack of understanding of the needs of our economy."

Knutson called on Congress to pass the bill over the veto. The House will vote tomorrow.

On the other side, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder declared the veto was "fairly justified by the existing financial situation of the Government."

He said in a statement that the President's action "constitutes firm assurance to the American people that the Administration is determined that the finances of its government will continue to be kept on a sound basis."

Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said in a statement that Truman "has committed his administration to continued support of the tax and tax and spend and spend

WALLACE FAVORS TELLING RUSSIA WHERE TO STOP

Court Denies Anti-Red Group's Plea to Bar Meeting at Which He Will Speak Tonight.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace returned to Washington today to clarify his position in the 1948 presidential campaign and to sum up his views on peace.

The former Vice President told a press conference yesterday that the United States and Britain "would" and "should" fight Russia if the Soviet Union tried to expand southward into Turkey near the Arabian oil fields.

He said Russia should be told this. He added he has no evidence that Russia would try that and he hoped it wouldn't.

Later, Wallace withdrew the words "should fight" and said he meant to say only that the United States and Britain "would fight" under those circumstances.

He told reporters he would have more to say tonight on (1) how he thinks an "enduring peace" can be achieved and (2) what he intends to do in the next presidential campaign.

United States District Judge James M. Proctor refused today to bar Wallace from speaking at the Government-owned Watergate amphitheater at Lincoln Memorial. Nine thousand reserved seats have been sold for prices ranging from 60 cents to $3.60. None of the major networks has arranged to broadcast the speech which is scheduled for 9 p.m. (St. Louis time).

The judge rejected a petition from the American Anti-Communist Association, headed by Representative O'Konski (Rep.), Wisconsin, that he order Secretary of the Interior Krug to deny Wallace use of the Watergate. Krug's department has jurisdiction over the theater.

"These matters do not fall within the judicial realm," Justice Proctor commented in dismissing the petition.

O'Konski left the court building with a declaration to reporters that he would take the matter up in Congress.

"I am going to tell the membership of Congress that until our Government takes a truly anti-Communist stand here at home, that we in Congress should refuse to appropriate any money to fight Communism abroad," he said.

Franklin T. Miles, attorney representing the anti-Communist association, argued before the judge that the granting of a permit for Wallace to speak "violated" the

700 SHIPS TIED UP IN STOPPAGE, SAYS CIO UNION HEAD

Schwellenbach Sends Aid to Try to Settle Dispute — 'No Contract, No Work.'

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach sent Assistant Secretary John W. Gibson here today to attempt to end a work stoppage of CIO seamen which the union estimated tied up 700 ships in United States ports in its first day.

Gibson, former head of the Michigan, CIO, arranged to leave by plane for New York, and said he expected to confer with management and labor representatives tonight.

Federal Conciliators Fred Livingston and William N. Margolis, meanwhile, announced indefinite postponement of sessions with shipowners and representatives of the National Maritime Union, the American Communications Association and the East Coast division of the Maritime Engineers' Beneficial Association. (The United Press said negotiations between unions and owners broke up with no prospect of early settlement.)

Joseph Curran, NMU president, predicted that if union demands were not met by owners, 1150 ships would be affected in a few days by the "no contract, no-work" dispute in which four other CIO unions are involved.

Although Curran did not list the ports and the number of ships, he said nearly 500 ships of the 700 were in East Coast ports.

More than 2000 ships would be affected, Curran said, if current negotiations between the union and tanker companies failed. Tanker are not affected by the present stoppage.

Although no pickets showed up at piers, the work stoppage ordered by Curran went into effect shortly after the expiration of contracts at midnight yesterday.

MESSAGE TERMS IT 'WRONG KIND OF REDUCTION AT THE WRONG TIME'

President Says Measure Offers 'Dubious and Risky Benefits' and Would 'Increase Inflationary Pressures.'

(Text of veto message on Page 2A)

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—President Truman vetoed today the four-billion-dollar tax reduction bill. This action virtually killed any possibility of a cut in income taxes this year.

The Republican-dominated Congress will vote on whether to pass the bill over the veto, but backers of the legislation conceded they saw no chance for success.

It requires a two-thirds vote to enact a law over the President's disapproval.

Republican leaders said that a vote to override a veto could be mustered in the House, which will vote tomorrow, but not in the Senate. The Senate is expected to vote Wednesday.

Representative McCormack, assistant Democratic House leader, disputed the Republican prediction, asserting there was a "good chance" the House would not vote to override.

The House approved the tax bill twice—first by a vote of 273 to 137, and after Senate and House conferees had compromised their differences on the bill the House approved the bill by a vote of 220 to 99. The Senate first passed the bill by a 52 to 34 vote. After the conferees reported, the Senate approved the bill the second time by a vote of 48 to 28.

"Dubious, Risky Benefits."

In a message to Congress, Truman said the bill "offers dubious, ill-apportioned, and risky benefits at the expense of a sound tax policy and is, from the standpoint of Government finances, unsafe."

The President declared it offers "the wrong kind of tax reduction, at the wrong time."

It was the second time in history that a President has vetoed a tax bill—and the first time one providing a tax cut has been vetoed.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt vetoed a tax bill in 1944.

The bill President Truman vetoed provided for reductions ranging from 10.5 to 30 per cent in individual income taxes, beginning July 1.

Truman's Chief Points.

Here are the principal arguments Truman made against the bill:

1. It is "from the standpoint of Government finances, unsafe."
2. Tax reduction now would increase inflationary pressures.
3. "Tax reduction now would add to, rather than correct, maladjustments in the economic structure."
4. Any surplus of Government income over expenses should be used to reduce the public debt, rather than for tax reduction.
5. The tax reductions the bill proposes are "neither fair nor equitable." A "good bill" would give "a greater portion of relief to the low-income group."
6. If the bill were approved, these "inequities" would be

SUPREME COURT AGAIN DENIES REVIEW TO MAYOR CURLEY

Defendant Reported to Be in Hospital Suffering From Arterio-Sclerosis.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The Supreme Court today refused for the second time to review the mail fraud conviction of Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, apparently clearing the way for a renewal of efforts to put him in jail to begin his sentence of six to 18 months.

Curley, 72 years old, was reported in a Scituate (Mass.), hospital suffering from what his physician described as hypertension induced by arterio-sclerosis.

The court originally refused June 2 to consider Curley's case by an 8-1 vote. Justice Murphy favored a review. The same line-up held today, with the exception that Justice Frankfurter took no part in the consideration.

The conviction resulted from operations here of Engineers Group, Inc., which was charged with falsely representing that it was able to obtain war contracts.

HOUSE REJECTS PROTEST OVER CHARGE GROUP IS COMMUNIST

Strikes From Records Complaint by Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The House voted 146 to 7 today to strike from its records a protest by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare against a description of it as a Communist-front organization.

A telegram from Dr. Clark Foreman, president of the conference, saying a report by the House Committee on Un-American activities contains "lies and half truths" and is itself "Un-American," was read by Representative Holifield (Dem.), California.

Representative Rankin, (Dem.), Mississippi, a member of the Un-American activities Committee, demanded that it be removed from the record. Rankin's motion carried 146 to 7.

JOB ABSENTEEISM CLOSE TO NORMAL DESPITE STRIKE

Workers for most large St. Louis employers continued today to arrive for work in normal numbers in spite of the transit strike. Indications were that they have made fairly permanent arrangements to ride in automobiles for the duration of the strike.

A spot check of the larger plants and business establishments indicated that absenteeism was running close to normal and that cases of lateness had fallen somewhat from the number recorded Friday, when the transit strike began.

A spokesman for the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. said about 7 per cent of the firm's 4500 employes were absent this morning. This was in contrast with the 10 per cent absent Friday and a little higher than normal absenteeism of 2 per cent, he said. Most serious worker shortage was reported at the Army Administration Center, 4300 Goodfellow boulevard, where 20 per cent of the center's 11,000 employes were absent. One-fourth of the workers there were absent Friday.

The Urban League reported that many large St. Louis county homes were going without maid service because of the inability of maids to get to the county homes. In some cases, employers have been driving into the city to pick up domestics, it was said.

ORDER IN FRANKFURT TO END U.S.-RUSSIA WAR RUMORS

FRANKFURT, June 16 (AP)—Walter Kolb, lord mayor of Frankfurt, disclosed today that a city order had been issued making liable to prosecution any Germans found spreading rumors of imminent war between the United States and Russia.

Kolb said the city had ordered its 15,000 employes to report all rumormongers and fanatics. "For the time being," Kolb said, "Nazi groups appear to be the main haters of democracy. But we also are alert for Communist activity. We will find out really who is spreading rumors."

MONKEYS RIOT IN INDIAN CITY

Townspeople Bitten and Mauled; Traps Prove Futile.

ALLAHABAD, India, June 16 (UP)—The city of Allahabad is overrun by monkeys that are attacking people wholesale, but are too smart to be trapped.

Not only do the monkeys get into houses and destroy furnishings, they also waylay and attack women, men and children. Many of the victims have had to be treated at hospitals after they were bitten and mauled.

Identical Twin in Sympathetic Coma When Brother Becomes Ill

BOSTON, Mass., June 16 (AP)—An unusual occurrence in the field of medicine resulted in a pair of 18-month-old identical twins being taken to Beth Israel Hospital at Boston in comatose conditions Saturday night — one of which was real, and the other "sympathetic."

Little David Renda of Revere lapsed into a coma while suffering from a rare disease—blood dyscrasia or lack of coagulation properties. His identical twin, Daniel, otherwise in good health, lapsed into a coma at the same time.

The infants' physician, Dr. Milton Levine, explained that while only David actually was ill, Daniel went into the coma from what is known as a "sympathy reaction by an identical twin."

After several hours at the hospital, Daniel regained consciousness and was taken home, but his stricken twin, David, was kept at the hospital. The twins are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Mario Renda.

TRUMAN PRESSES FOR ACTION BEFORE JUNE 30 ON 15 BILLS

President Confers With Congressional Leaders On Measure for 30 Minutes.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Congressional leaders conferred for 30 minutes today with President Truman, who urged that action be expedited on 15 to 20 bills on which approval is needed prior to June 30.

Virtually all of the measures have passed one House or the other and are "well on their way to passage," said Senator Vandenberg, president pro tem of the Senate.

Vandenberg is one of the so-called "Big Six" with whom the President has conferred from time to time. Only Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic minority leader, was absent today. Others attending were House Democratic Leader Rayburn, Texas; Republican Senate Leader White, Maine; House Speaker Martin, Massachusetts, and Republican House Leader Halleck, Indiana.

The bills listed by Truman involve 12 general subjects. He mentioned export controls, extension of the powers of the Maritime Commission, extensions of rent controls and wool legislation.

BRITAIN TO ASK RUSSIA FOR VIEWS ON MARSHALL AID PLAN FOR EUROPE

Similar Request Already Made by French, With Whom Bevin Has Arranged 'Exploratory' Consultations.

LONDON, June 16 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman said today that Britain soon would consult directly with Russia concerning United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall's aid-Europe plan.

He said initial contact would take place through regular diplomatic channels. He added that he knew of no plan for Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin to go personally to Moscow in the same way as he is going to Paris for talks tomorrow on the United States proposals for European reconstruction.

France already has asked Russia for its views on how Europe should respond to the American suggestion.

(Possible indication of the Kremlin's reaction to the United States proposal was given today by the Moscow radio, which said: "The Marshall plan is but a repetition of the Truman plan for political pressure with the help of dollars, a plan for interference in the domestic affairs of other countries.")

U. S. Envoy Sees Ramadier.

United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery conferred in Paris today with Premier Paul Ramadier for what was termed a general survey of political and economic conditions in France. Embassy sources said some discussion of the Marshall plan naturally would be included in such a meeting.

The British-Soviet consultations will be along the same lines as the projected talks with France, the Foreign Office spokesman said, adding that these latter will be entirely "exploratory."

Asked when the approach would be made to Russia, he replied: "At an early date." He declined to say whether Britain planned to await the results of Bevin's talks with French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault before taking up the question with Moscow.

Bevin, accompanied by Sir Edwin Hall Patch, his chief economics adviser, will leave for Paris tomorrow. He plans to be back in London to attend a foreign affairs debate scheduled in the House of Commons for Thursday. He is expected at that time to report on the Paris talks.

Government sources said Britain, since last week, had received what they called "full clarification" of the proposals for revival of European economy presented by Marshall.

British Hope for Dollars.

Some Britons, meanwhile, privately expressed hope that the United States proposals would mean more dollars for Britain without the political embarrassment of having to ask for more money when the present $3,750,000,000 American loan is exhausted.

While there was no official comment on this, a Foreign Office spokesman said: "We have accepted the idea with gratitude, on its face value, for active consideration."

The Foreign Office apparently viewed the motives of the United States as largely economic and as part of a plan to avert a "dollar starvation" which could threaten American exports.

The countries of Europe seemed anxious to take advantage of a plan which the Sunday Times said might lead to the long-sought but never realized "united Europe."

The Dutch Foreign Office announced that The Netherlands, Belgian and Luxembourg governments had already completed preliminary discussions, with the object of presenting a common viewpoint.

RED ASSAILS U.S. PLAN TO AID EUROPE

MOSCOW, June 16 (AP)—Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, said today that Secretary of State George C. Marshall's aid-to-Europe proposals were, "despite their seeming novelty," merely an extension of the "Truman doctrine," which it described as an attempt to "exert political pressure with the aid of dollars—a program of interference in the affairs of other states."

The article, signed by Commentator Boris Leontiev, was the first reaction to Marshall's proposals to appear in the Soviet press.

"After carefully explaining that the policies of the United States are not directed against any country or doctrine," Leontiev said, "Marshall declared that any government which undertakes maneuvers aimed at obstructing the restoration of other countries cannot expect aid from the United States.

"So that there should be no doubt which nations precisely come under this mysterious heading, the secretary of state announced in the same speech the postponement of already granted credits to Hungary."

(Marshall made no mention of Hungary in his June 5 speech at Cambridge, Mass., in which he set forth the aid-to-Europe program.)

Dollar Expansion

Leontiev also saw in Marshall's proposals an effort "to convince the American people that 'dollar expansion' is dictated by a desire to prevent an approaching economic crisis in the United States."

"The granting of American loans to independent European nations," the commentator declared, "has not justified itself, in the view of Marshall. Therefore he recommends that the European debtors of America create some sort of system of collective responsibility for these European debtors of Wall Street.

"Europe is being told to initiate for itself a united, universal program of economic restoration, and the United States' role will be that of supporting this program. In other words, the program must be submitted to the Americans."

Leontiev summed up his remarks by declaring:

"The real meaning of Marshall's reservations, his public approval of the idea for a united states of Europe . . . all indicate that the former political meaning of American policy has to be presented to the American people in an embellished form."

He asked if the "necessity of converting" the country to the policies of the Administration were not "what is really behind the stream of anti-Soviet slander and the baiting of democratic states in eastern Europe which has been organized recently in the U.S.A."

Truman Text: Tax Cut Bill 'Unsafe' and 'Unfair'

Following is the text of President Truman's message vetoing the tax bill, which was sent to the House today:

TO the House of Representatives:

I return herewith, without my approval, H.R. 1, entitled: "An Act to Reduce Individual Income Tax Payments."

The right kind of tax reduction, at the right time, is an objective to which I am deeply committed. But I have reached the conclusion that this bill represents the wrong kind of tax reduction, at the wrong time. It offers dubious, ill-apportioned, and risky benefits at the expense of a sound tax policy and is, from the standpoint of Government finances, unsafe. Proposals for tax reduction must be examined in the light of sound and carefully-related fiscal and economic policies. Unless they are consistent with the demands of such policies, they should not be approved.

In my budget message of Jan. 10, 1947, I said:

"As long as business, employment, and national income continue high, we should maintain tax revenues at levels that will not only meet current expenditures but also leave a surplus for retirement of the public debt. There is no justification now for tax reduction."

No Evidence of Recession.

Developments since January do not warrant a change in that conclusion. Total employment in May increased by a million and a half over that in April, and the total number now employed is over 58,600,000. The number of unemployed is now less than 2,000,000, practically a peace-time minimum. Income payments to individuals are estimated to be at the record annual rate of 176 billion dollars. Department store sales in May were up 6 per cent over April, and equaled the all-time high in dollar volume. The number of houses begun by private enterprise in May was the largest in any month since V-J day. Despite many gloomy predictions, there is no convincing evidence that a recession is imminent.

Ample evidence points to the continuation of inflationary pressures. Tax reduction now would increase them. If these pressures are long continued, and if essential readjustments within the price structure are long deferred, we are likely to induce the very recession we seek to avoid.

Reductions in income tax rates are not required now to permit necessary investment and business expansion. There is no shortage of funds for this purpose in any wide sector of our economy. As a matter of fact, the amount of liquid funds in the hands of corporations and individuals at the present time is nearly 200 billion dollars. Under these circumstances, tax reduction is not now needed to provide additional funds for business expansion.

The argument is made that the funds added to consumer purchasing power through this tax reduction are needed to maintain employment and production at maximum levels.

Cut in Purchasing Power.

It is true, as I have pointed out many times, that the purchasing power of large groups of our people has been seriously reduced. We must take every step possible to remedy the disparity between prices and the incomes of the rank and file of our people, so as not to put brakes in our continued prosperity and lead us toward a recession. Tax reduction as proposed in H.R. 1 is not the proper way to remedy the current price situation and its effect upon consumers and upon prospective employment. Necessary adjustments in incomes, production and prices should be made by wise policies and improved practices of business and labor, not by hastily invoking the fiscal powers of government on a broad scale.

The time for tax reduction will come when general inflationary pressures have ceased and the structure of prices is on a more stable basis than now prevails. How long it will take for this point to be reached is impossible to predict. Clearly, it has not been reached as yet. Tax reduction now would add to, rather than correct maladjustments in the economic structure.

Sound fiscal policy also requires that existing tax rates be maintained for the present. I have always been keenly aware of the necessity for the utmost economy in Government and of the need for a progressive reduction in Government expenditures to the greatest extent possible consistent with our national interests. However, necessary expenditures for essential government operations are still high. We are still meeting heavy obligations growing out of the war. We continue to be confronted with great responsibilities for international relief and rehabilitation that have an important bearing on our efforts to secure lasting peace. We are still in a transition period in which many uncertainties continue. In the face of these facts, common prudence demands a realistic and conservative management of the fiscal affairs of the government.

Time to Reduce Debt.

A time of high employment and high prices, wages and profits, such as the present, calls for a surplus in government revenue over expenditures and the application of all or much of this surplus to the reduction of the public debt. Continuing public confidence in government finances depends upon such a policy. If the Government does not reduce the public debt during the most active and inflationary periods, there is little prospect of material reduction at any time, and the country would, as a result, be in a poorer position to extend supports to the economy should a subsequent deflationary period develop.

With the present huge public debt, it is of first importance that every effort now be made to reduce the debt as much as possible. If H.R. 1 were to become law, the amount available for debt retirement would be entirely too low for this period of unparalleled high levels of peacetime income and employment.

The integrity of the public debt is the financial bedrock on which our national economy rests. More than half of the American people are direct owners of Government securities. A major portion of the assets of banks, insurance companies, and trust funds is invested in Government bonds. To maintain the integrity of the public debt, we must now reduce it by substantial amounts.

(Editor's note: The United States Treasury today placed the public debt at $257,432,944,757.).

In addition to the fact that this is not the time for tax reduction, there is a fundamental objection to this particular bill. An adjustment of the tax system should provide fair and equitable relief for individuals from the present tax burden, but the reductions proposed in H.R. 1 are neither fair nor equitable. H.R. 1 reduces taxes in the high-income brackets to a grossly disproportionate extent as compared to the reduction in the low-income brackets. A good tax reduction bill would give a greater proportion of relief to the low-income group.

H.R. 1 fails to give relief where it is needed most. Under H.R. 1, tax savings to the average family with an income of $2500 would be less than $30, while taxes on an income of $50,000 would be reduced by nearly $5000, and on an income of $500,000 by nearly $60,000.

Insofar as "take-home" pay is concerned under H.R. 1, the family earning $2500 would receive an increase of only 1.2 per cent; the family with an income of $50,000 would receive an increase of 18.6 per cent; and the family with an income of $500,000 would receive an increase of 62.3 per cent.

If H.R. 1 were to become law, the inequity of its provisions would be frozen into the tax structure. The reduction in Government receipts resulting from this bill would be such that the Government could ill afford to make fair tax reductions at the proper time in the form of a carefully-considered revision of our entire tax structure.

For Thorough-Going Revision.

Now is the time to plan for a thorough-going revision of the tax system. We should consider not only individual income tax rates, but also the level of personal exemptions and many other adjustments in the personal income tax structure. We should also consider changes in excise tax laws, gift and estate taxes, corporation taxes, and, in fact, the entire field of tax revenues. Such a program of tax adjustment and tax reduction should be geared to the financial and economic needs of this country. It will be an important contribution to economic progress. The timing of such a program is highly important to achieve economic stability, to promote the investment of capital, and to maintain employment, purchasing power and high levels of production.

For the compelling reasons I have set forth, I return H. R. 1 without my approval.

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

Provisions of Tax-Cut Bill

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Here are the provisions of the Republican tax-reduction bill which President Truman vetoed:

1. Withholdings against wages and salaries for tax purposes would be reduced July 1.

2. The tax cut on a yearly basis would be 20 per cent for persons with taxable income (after exemptions and deductions) of $1000 or less. This would mean the 20 per cent cut would apply to single persons with total earning before exemptions and deductions, up to $1656; married persons $2222; married couples with one child $2777; married couples with two children $3333.

3. Persons with taxable income between $1000 and $1400 would get a flat $52 to $57 annual tax reduction or a 20 per cent cut of their tax bill, whichever was the larger.

4. The tax reduction would be 20 per cent, for taxable incomes above $1400 and up to $137,000; 18 per cent on taxable incomes from $137,000 to $302,000 and 10.5 per cent on any income above $302,000.

5. The measure would reduce the present ceiling of 85.5 per cent at which any income can be taxed, to 81 per cent in 1947 and 76.5 in 1948.

6. Persons past 65 years of age would be given an extra personal exemption of $500, bringing their exemptions to a total of $1000.

TRUMAN VETOES BILL FOR TAX CUT AS INFLATIONARY

"frozen" into the tax system and "the Government could ill afford to make fair tax reductions at the proper time."

Discussing arguments that a tax reduction now would add to consumer purchasing power and help maintain employment, Truman asserted "despite many gloomy predictions, there is no convincing evidence that a recession is imminent."

He summarized the present economic picture thus:

"Total employment in May increased by a million and a half over that in April, and the total number now employed is over 58,600,000.

"The number of unemployed is now less than 2,000,000, practically a peacetime minimum.

"Income payments to individuals are estimated to be at the record annual rate of 176 billion dollars.

"Department store sales in May were up 6 per cent over April, and equaled the all-time high in dollar volume.

"The number of houses begun by private enterprise in May was the largest in any month since V-J day."

"H.R. 1 (The tax reduction bill) fails to give relief where it is needed most," his message asserted. "Under H.R. 1, tax savings to the average family with an income of $2500 would be less than $30, while taxes on an income of $50,000 would be reduced by nearly $5000 and on an income of $500,000 by nearly $60,000.

"Insofar as 'take home' pay is concerned under H.R. 1, the family earning $2500 would receive an increase of only 1.2 per cent; the family with an income of $50,000 would receive an increase of 18.6 per cent; and the family with an income of $500,000 would receive an increase of 62.3 per cent."

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross indicated today that President Truman may not act on the Taft-Hartley labor union bill until shortly before the Friday midnight deadline. He told reporters there would be no action on the labor legislation until after the President's return from a speaking engagement at Princeton University tomorrow.

Asked if action might be withheld until just before the deadline Friday, Ross replied, "Possibly."

STASSEN SAYS U.S. MUST TAKE STEPS TO REBUILD RUHR

Calls for Production Increase in Area 'Without Socialization or Monopoly.'

SWARTHMORE, Pa., June 16 (AP)—Presidential aspirant Harold E. Stassen called on the United States today to rebuild the Ruhr "as a center of modern peoples' capitalism in Europe."

The former Republican governor from Minnesota, in a clear-cut statement of his economic policy, advocated redevelopment of the Ruhr "without socialization and without monopoly, with the workers sharing in the fruits of high production, with its owners and managers making a profit from high production."

In an address at Swarthmore College commencement exercises, Stassen also listed as "priority" aid for "the rapidly dwindling dollar credit" of England, "this sturdy isle, our friend and our ally."

"There is currently more danger from mistakes and errors of American world economic policy than in any other major question in this country," said Stassen, adding that the questions of "pence and plenty and freedom" hang in the balance on our economic policies.

He urged bipartisan support of a program in which the United States, which he said produces more than one fourth of the world's goods and services, should lead the way toward "economic freedom of man, developed to the high degree through modern capitalism."

"Action in the Ruhr," Stassen said, "does not require any new agreements or concessions or accords from Russia." It was his only reference to Russia.

"Production in the Ruhr today is less than 40 per cent of its prewar total," he declared. "Unless it is rapidly advanced this summer and fall, the next winter in Europe will be more grim and disastrous than the last one."

Stassen declared that he "thoroughly subscribes" to the sentiments expressed by Secretary of State George C. Marshall at Harvard when he said "any assistance that this government may render in the future should provide a cure, rather a mere palliative" to European countries.

The Minnesota Republican listed this six-point program to follow in this nation's economic future:

1. "We must extend substantial aid from our current production toward the rebuilding of the war-torn world for a period of a decade or more."

2. We must limit our aid or suffer inflation and destruction of "the productivity of our own resilient free economy."

3. We must export to Europe in proportion with our production, with the amount determined "as a bipartisan matter with the best of counsel and advice of economists and other leaders."

4. Since we cannot possibly fulfill all the world's needs, we must establish "priorities . . . placed upon the necessity of each country rebuilding for itself."

5. "Modern capitalism is the best road for high production and better standards of living" —and we must emphasize this belief.

6. We must realize that we can never be fully repaid in dollars but instead must reach agreements to be paid, perhaps, in "specialized goods, for the long-term access to raw materials which we will need."

Stassen sounded the "warning," however, that "if we sit back and wait for the nations of Europe to agree upon a plan, we will wait too long" and thus the United States must "exercise leadership."

THREE JEWS GET DEATH FOR ATTACK ON ACRE PRISON

Two Others Get 15 Years—15 Killed in Jail Break in Which 251 Prisoners Were Freed.

JERUSALEM, June 16 (UP)—Three of five youthful operatives of the Jewish underground convicted of subversive violence in a raid on Acre prison were sentenced today to death and the other two were sent to prison for 15 years or more.

A British military tribunal, sitting in a sandbagged and heavily guarded courtroom pronounced the doom of three Irgun Zvai Leumi members. The fact the other two were under 18 years of age apparently saved them from the extreme penalty.

The conviction and sentencing of the Jewish youths for their part in the assault on ancient Acre prison, in which 15 persons were killed, 23 wounded, and 251 prisoners were freed, coincided with the first meeting of the United Nations committee to seek a solution of the Palestine problem.

All Palestine military and police forces—some 100,000 men—were alerted to combat underground retaliation. Reinforcements were brought in from Transjordan.

The death sentences were given Meir Nakar, 21 years old, a Jerusalem shoemaker who once fought in the British army; Avshalom Haviv, 20, philosophy student and son of a leather merchant; and Josef Weiss, a Czech.

Amnon Mikhaloff, orphan from Warsaw who came to Tel Aviv nine years ago; and Naham Zitenbaum, diamond cutter who was brought to Palestine from Russia by his father, were sentenced to 15 years imprisonment plus detention for an additional indefinite period at the pleasure of the high commissioner.

They were convicted specifically of carrying explosives, shooting at British soldiers, mine laying and wearing unauthorized uniforms. The sentences were subject to confirmation by Lt. Gen. G. H. A. MacMillan, British army commander in Palestine.

When the conviction was announced in a tense courtroom, only the defendants smiled. They predicted that they would "travel abroad, and all will be well." The reference apparently was to expectation of exile abroad.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, which took responsibility for the prison delivery, appealed tonight to the United Nations to intercede for the doomed men. An appeal, typed in English, French and Hebrew, was handed to each of the 11 members of the U.N. commission.

At its initial closed meeting, the U.N. committee set a July 5 deadline for receiving all written and oral statements pertaining to its investigation. Most of the session was devoted to reading documents and drafting procedural technique.

TAFT-HARTLEY BILL PROTEST CARAVAN SPENDS NIGHT HERE

(Picture in Everyday Magazine)

An AFL-CIO motorcade, which started from Los Angeles last Thursday, left St. Louis this morning with horns honking raucously on the way to Washington to protest against the Taft-Hartley labor bill, which has been awaiting President Truman's action. The group of about 75 union representatives stayed last night at Hotel Jefferson.

Due to a misunderstanding of arrangements, a local group of 10 automobile loads of AFL members was not ready at departure time this morning, but may join the others in Washington late tomorrow. The caravan is scheduled to wait tonight at Columbus, O., where it expects to be joined by other units from Chicago, Detroit, Toledo and other cities. Oscar Ehrhardt, secretary of the CIO Council, said there would be no organized CIO group from St. Louis.

Forty-eight cars left Los Angeles, but desert and mountains took their toll of older cars, and only 22 machines were escorted into St. Louis last night by motorcycle police and out again today. Represented were theatrical workers, chauffeurs, electricians, carpenters, machinists, ladies' garment workers, oil workers and others. Despite the hard driving, the "marchers" were still enthusiastic, although unprepared to speculate on their next move should the President sign the bill before they have an opportunity to carry their protest to him personally. The caravan will be joined in Washington by delegates from New York and New England and will be met by friendly members of Congress.

ELLIS O. BRIGGS NAMED AMBASSADOR TO URUGUAY

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—President Truman today nominated Ellis O. Briggs of Maine to be ambassador to Uruguay. Briggs, a veteran foreign service officer, now is director of the department's office of American republic affairs.

Briggs, a 48-year-old native of Watertown, Mass., succeeds William Howell, who died at his home in Bryan, Tex., May 22.

Briggs was one of the closest advisors to retiring Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden. He has served as attache at the American embassies in Peru, Chile, Cuba, and the Dominican Republic. He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1921.

Army Marriage Bar Removed.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (UP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army chief of staff cancelled a proposed Army regulation that would have forbidden any regular Army second lieutenant to get married for a year after receiving his commission. The regulation was to have become effective July 1, 1949.

MASS BURIAL HELD FOR 13 OF 50 DEAD IN AIRLINER CRASH

St. Louis Victim Among Them — Instrument Panel of Plane Reported Found.

LEESBURG, Va., June 16 (AP)—A common grave in the little Union cemetery here today received the bodies of the 13 unidentified victims of the Friday the 13th air disaster that killed 50 persons.

Mass ceremonies were held, conducted by a Catholic priest and four Protestant clergymen. Individual markers are to be placed on the common grave.

Only last night Dr. William Frazer, Loudoun county coroner, had telegraphed the families of persons known to have been aboard the airliner, suggesting a mass burial.

Among the unidentified dead is Miss Marjorie Southerland, 33-year-old St. Louis school teacher.

Although 37 bodies were identified, Dr. Frazer said the prospect for singling out the others "seems remote."

The task of carrying the bodies of the 47 passengers and three crew members out of the wilderness in the Blue Ridge mountains near Keys Gap, W. Va., was completed yesterday under sunny skies after a day and night of rain. They were laid in rows in a little chapel set up as an emergency morgue here.

The cause of the disaster remained a mystery.

Two investigators on the scene of the crash near here reported the recovery of the plane's instrument panel.

One airline officer said he was informed the altimeter registered 2000 feet, which would have given the plane safe clearance of the mountain ridge into which it smashed and burned on a Chicago-Washington flight.

The four-engine craft, however, plowed head-on into an outcropping of granite 100 feet below the summit and burst into flames.

William K. Andrews, in charge of CAB air safety investigations, declined comment on the reported altimeter reading or other angles of the crash pending completion of the board's inquiry.

He said the study will be divided into four major phases, each under the direction of a CAB specialist:

1. Engines and propellers.
2. Controls, radio, frame and similar parts.
3. Operating policies of Capital Airlines.
4. Weather conditions.

INSURANCE MEN BEHIND ANTI-RED GROUP TRYING TO MUZZLE WALLACE

Ex-Gov. Earle Once 'Front Man,' Soon Quit—Head Now Is Congressman Who Harangues at Communism.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 16 — The American Anti-Communist Association, which suddenly made headlines over the weekend when it launched a last-minute court fight to prevent Henry A. Wallace from speaking tonight at the Watergate amphitheater on the Potomac—a fight which it lost—is a strident but little-known organization headed by a group of insurance brokers.

When it was formed early this year, former Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania was listed as its president, but within a short time he resigned and was succeeded by Representative Alvin E. O'Konski (Rep.), Wisconsin, whose anti-Communist harangues on the House floor started long before the present touchy situation with Russia. Not long after Earle withdrew, he made public a letter from President Truman terming the Communist scare a "bugaboo."

The executive secretary of the organization, which has small but plush headquarters at 1025 Connecticut avenue in Washington, is George H. Perkins, a florid, well-groomed, tight-lipped insurance man. When a Post-Dispatch writer interviewed him after formation of the association, he declined to name the original "financial angels" of the group, but said in the future it would depend on small contributions from "the man in the street."

Planned to Hire Investigators.

He told the Post-Dispatch at that time that the association planned to initiate a "tremendous" radio program with "well-known speakers" aimed at alerting the nation to the dangers of Communism. Investigators would be employed, he said further, to work hand-in-glove with the House Committee on Un-American Activities in an attempt to root the Reds out of the Government.

Indication of this possible collaboration behind-the-scenes was seen in the double-barreled action of the un-American Activities Committee and the association within the last two days. The committee yesterday, with careful timing, issued its report branding the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which is sponsoring Wallace's appearance here, as a "Communist-front" organization. A day earlier the O'Konski-Perkins association filed action in United States District Court for an injunction to bar Wallace from using the Watergate.

The large amphitheater is operated by capital parks under the jurisdiction of the Department of Interior. A capacity crowd of more than 10,000 persons is expected to attend tonight, including many government workers in defiance of the warning of the un-American Activities Committee that its representatives will be present to take note of the proceedings.

Perkins referred further inquiries about his organization to his director of public relations, Ned Welch, who is listed as second vice president of the group. Welch, a short, heavy-set, breezy, former newspaper man, was found in a small office in the downtown section of Washington. The office was cluttered with racing forms, pictures of thoroughbred horses, and cases of books entitled "Who's Who in Thoroughbred Racing," which he said he publishes.

Welch spoke expansively of his past, of the days when he worked for a New York Racing Publication and later for the New York Journal, and of his onetime activities as a lobbyist for a large oil company. With his feet parked on his desk, cheerful and talkative, he said he couldn't give too much detail about the association, as he had just been hired, but that he longed for the good old times "when knighthood was in flower and Goldman and Sachs were still in Russia."

Sought Good "Front Man."

He roared lustily at this anti-Semitic remark, and then confided that the organization has cast about for a good "front man" and had persuaded Earle to be the man. Asked about the shrill publication of the association, called The Patriot, he said the first issue was written and published by an itinerant publisher of Baltimore but that he could not remember his name. In response to another question, he insisted that no professional newspaper man had anything to do with the first issue.

In this connection it is noteworthy that the first issue of The Patriot contains a box on the editorial page stating: "Every article in this edition of 'The Patriot' was written by a union member, in good standing, of the American Newspaper Guild."

The front page of the publication shouts in big black headlines: "Red filth seeps into all offices of U.S. workers." It is filled with militant words, such as "the time to strike is now," "we have to take up, fight and work," and so on.

How "This Thing Got Started."

Welch told the writer: "This thing got started when Perkins came to me and said a group of insurance men and bankers wanted to form an organization to run the damn Reds out of the country." Welch declined to say how much salary he had been promised, but volunteered: "I'll get paid or I won't work."

The initial letterheads of the association listed Frank Strunk, general agent of the Columbian National Life Insurance Co., as vice president; J. E. McCombs, general agent of the Berkshire Life Insurance Co., as treasurer; Alice W. Bailey, of the McCombs Employes Plan, as assistant treasurer, among others.

Wallace's right to speak at the Watergate was defended today by Leon Henderson, chairman of the executive committee of the Americans for Democratic Action, a liberal group that has attacked Communism and Communists.

In a telegram to O'Konski, Henderson declared that although the A.D.A. regarded Wallace as having "dangerously confused" international issues, it feels that "freedom of speech and freedom of assembly are first among the glories of our democracy."

All the hubbub and publicity over the speech this evening, meanwhile, is expected to jam-pack the amphitheater, with the investigators for the Un-American Committee helping to swell the crowd.

Wallace, engaging in a busy day including a luncheon and interviews, did not seem displeased.

BRIDE ON HONEYMOON KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Husband Is Injured Seriously in Head-On Collision in Oklahoma.

A St. Louis bride of one week was killed and her husband seriously injured in an automobile crash near Claremore, Okla., late Saturday night as they were en route to Los Angeles on their honeymoon.

Mrs. Vito Barbera, 25 years old, the former Mary Frances Lovasco, was killed outright when the automobile driven by her husband ran headon into a coal truck on U.S. Highway 66. Two hours were required to extricate the young woman's body from the wreckage. Barbera was reported to have suffered a fractured leg and head injuries. The truck driver, Virgil Baker, Catoosa, Okla., was less seriously injured.

Mrs. Barbera, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lovasco, 5853 Julian avenue, had lived with her godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Barbera, 5721 DeGiverville avenue, for the last 14 years. The latter are not related to Vito Barbera, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Barbera, live in Pattonville.

They married June 8 at St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church. They left early Saturday on the honeymoon trip and planned to make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Tony Barbera after their return to St. Louis. Tony Barbera operates the Hermitage Hotel, 4458 Washington boulevard.

Homicide Verdict in Death Where Driver Failed to Stop.

A verdict of homicide was returned by a Coroner's jury today at Clayton in the traffic death late Saturday night of Alexander Robertson, 77-year-old maintenance man at Valhalla Cemetery. Robertson was struck in the 7200 block of St. Charles Rock road, St. Louis county, by an automobile that stopped momentarily 300 feet from the scene and then sped on.

Robertson lived at 1404 Salerno drive, near the place of the accident. William Boening, confectionery proprietor at 7236 St. Charles Rock road, told deputy sheriffs the eastbound automobile hit a parked machine after striking Robertson.

Pieces of glass and a part from a fender were found in the road.

SHOT WHEN TRYING TO ENTER ANOTHER MAN'S AUTOMOBILE

A man who said he was Vincent Coleman and gave an address in the 1800 block of Menard street, was in City Hospital today suffering from a gunshot wound of the left leg and a fractured left ankle, suffered early yesterday after William J. Holmes, 1021A Russell boulevard, saw him attempting to open the door of Holmes's automobile.

Holmes said he pointed a rifle at the man, and directed him to stand still. When the man began running, Holmes said, he fired three times, but the man escaped. Police found him in the rear of 1020 Allen avenue.

He told police he had been drinking, and wanted to get into the automobile in order to sleep. He denied any intention of stealing the vehicle.

SUED FOR DIVORCE, WOMAN KILLS SELF

Leaps Off Bridge Into River —'I Love Him,' Note Says.

Mrs. Louis Sarchet, 3919 Potomac street, whose husband had sued for divorce, leaped to her death from MacArthur Bridge into the flood waters of the Mississippi river early yesterday.

She was 40 years old. Mrs. Sarchet left a note in her purse, on the bridge, addressed to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lehr, 1415 Farrar street.

"I can't stand it any longer," the note said. "I can't live with Louis and I love him so much more than he knows. Please forgive me for what I am doing. Tell Louis he is a free man by God's wish. There is no other way out, so I am saying goodby forever."

Milton McKeown, 3706 West Pine boulevard, a passing motorist, and two companions saw a woman walking west on the bridge at 2:50 a.m., yesterday. They watched while she took off her coat, dropped her purse, climbed the railing and leaped 100 feet to the river backwater caused by the flood overflow. Police recovered the body 200 feet upstream, where it was carried by eddies.

Russell Lehr of Sweet Springs, Mo., and Miss Mary Dell Lehr, of the Farrar street address, brother and sister of Mrs. Sarchet, identified the body. Lehr said the Sarchets had been separated since February.

3 CITY EMPLOYES WORKING AS MAGISTRATES COURTS AIDS

Three city employes were at work today in the filing room of the magistrates' courts pursuant to an offer of temporary help by Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann until the question of additional clerical help can be settled.

The men, from various departments in City Hall, were being shown their duties by George Fickeissen, administrative assistant to Comptroller Louis Nolte. Fickeissen said two more temporary employes would be lent by the city administration today.

Filing of suits in the magistrates' courts came to a virtual halt more than a month ago when five employes, giving up hope of being paid, walked out. The Board of Aldermen passed a bill recently over Mayor Kaufmann's veto authorizing the employment of 10 additional clerks but the administration has refused to provide funds on the ground the statutes setting up the courts provide only for one clerk to each of the nine magistrates.

LAST DAY FOR INSTALLMENT OF ESTIMATED TAX FOR 1947

ment of the second installment of estimated federal income taxes for 1947. Taxpayers have the right to file amended estimates of income today, revising their original estimates upward or downward, but they must pay at least one-quarter of the entire tax at this time.

Penalties for failure to pay the second quarterly installment today include 5 per cent of the entire amount due plus one per cent a month, not to exceed 10 per cent. Interest of 6 per cent is demanded also. The next installments are due on Sept. 15 and on next Jan. 15.

Finnegan said today that practically all refunds on 1946 taxes have been mailed out now, bringing the total of such returns to $19,305,876 for the eastern half of Missouri.

SUPREME COURT AUTHORITY FOR $39,000,000 SUIT

John Foster Dulles One of 27 Named in Action by Trustees of Bankrupt Utility.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (UP)—The Supreme Court today authorized trustees of a bankrupt Virginia utility to proceed in a United States District court in New York with a $39,000,000 damage suit against former officers of the firm.

Among the 27 officers charged in the suit with mismanagement and waste of funds were John Foster Dulles, lawyer and Republican authority on foreign affairs, and Harrison Williams, New York public utility magnate.

All of the group were directors, officers or stockholders of the Central States Electric Corp. The transactions complained about occurred seven to 28 years before the utility entered voluntary bankruptcy.

Authority Challenged.

The officers sought dismissal of the trustees' suit because it was brought in the United States District Court for Southern New York. They said that court lacked authority to hear the case.

Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson read the Supreme Court's 7-to-2 ruling giving a go-ahead to the New York litigation. Justices Felix Frankfurter and Robert H. Jackson dissented.

The court refused to review a state court decree prohibiting labor union members from interfering with the delivery of milk from producers to a dairy. The case arose in Jackson county, Missouri. The decree was issued by the County Circuit Court during a union organizing campaign. Union members refused to receive or unload milk delivered to the Borden Dairy Co. in Kansas City, Mo.

The milk was taken to the dairy by Steve Rogers, a Ray county (Mo.) farmer. He and his employes haul milk from the Rogers farm and from other farms. Members of Local No. 207, AFL Milk Drivers' and Dairy Employes' Union, refused to handle it at the Borden plant.

The Circuit Court enjoined the union members from interfering in any manner with the receiving, unloading and processing of milk hauled by Rogers or his employes. The Missouri Supreme Court upheld the decree and the unionists appealed to the high tribunal.

Other Rulings by Court.

In other rulings today the court:

Sidestepped a decision on validity of the 1942 and 1942 War Contract Renegotiation Acts. The court threw out a test suit on the ground that existing administrative and legal remedies had not been exhausted. It agreed, however, to review at a later date three other cases involving constitutionality of the Renegotiation Acts.

Held that when truckmen operate as independent contractors, the firms hiring them are not required to pay social security taxes on them.

Upheld the contention of the Federal Power Commission that it has jurisdiction over natural gas produced within a state and sold within the same state for distribution to other parts of the country.

Decided unanimously that meat boners in a Kansas City (Kan.) packing plant are integral employes and subject to the wage-hour law.

Ruled that J. Robert Bazley of Pottsville, Pa., must pay $214,170 in back taxes for 1939. In a companion case, the court ruled that Adam A. Adams, Orange, N. J., must pay a tax deficiency of $113,021 for 1941. In both cases, the men had claimed as tax-exempt debenture bonds they received when their firms underwent reorganization. They appealed when the Internal Revenue Bureau and the lower courts ruled the bonds were dividends and hence taxable.

The court also directed two United States District courts to reconsider wage-hour law cases under terms of the new portal-to-portal pay act. In one case, the Supreme Court ordered modification of a May 5 decision in which it unanimously ruled invalid a formula used by the 149 Madison Avenue Corp. of New York City in calculating overtime pay for maintenance employes. The Supreme Court ordered its May 5 decision modified so as to permit the United States District Court in New York City to "consider any matters presented to it" under the portal act.

In the second case, the court directed the District court in Alaska to consider the effect of the portal-to-portal act on pay claims by employes of the Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Co. The claims arose in a dispute over a split-day plan for paying wages.

CALLS GRAND JURY ON TESTIMONY AT DOUGHERTY TRIAL

Circuit Judge Bruere to Order Inquiry Into Conflicting Stories of Witnesses.

A St. Charles county grand jury, to investigate the conflict of testimony between Coroner Thomas F. Callanan of St. Louis and a state's witness in the recent trial of Sheriff John F. Dougherty, was called for Aug. 1 today by Circuit Judge Theodore Bruere.

The court acted on the motion of Prosecuting Attorney Henry K. Stumberg, whom Judge Bruere directed on May 31 to inquire into the conflicting testimony of Callanan and Maj. Curtis Brostron, St. Louis police inspector. The two were witnesses in Sheriff Dougherty's trial for feloniously leaving the scene of an automobile accident. Dougherty was found guilty, and sentenced to a year in jail and to pay $100 fine.

Stumberg, in reporting today on his inquiry, said he had endeavored to learn whether the conflict in testimony was on a material matter. He stated his belief that the matter was material, and that a grand jury investigation "to determine which party was giving false testimony" would be warranted. A discussion as to time followed, and it was decided to take the first part of August, between the farm harvesting and planting seasons. The court will determine whether Sheriff Lester Plackmeyer or the County Court will select the panel. It will come from all six townships of the county.

The conflict in testimony came in Callanan's statement that Dougherty, shortly after the accident early last Dec. 15, called at Callanan's home and reported the matter to him. The defense contended that this met the law's requirement for a report to a "judicial officer." Maj. Brostron testified that Callanan told him, Dec. 24, that he knew nothing of Dougherty's accident until he read of it in the newspapers.

POLICE CHIEF URGES STRICT ENFORCING OF GAMBLING LAWS

Special instructions to enforce all gambling laws "with strict impartiality" were issued by Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell to nine recently promoted police officers at a meeting in his office yesterday.

Presenting the men with their new badges of rank, Chief O'Connell told them he expected them to "hit the ball like you have in the past" and he urged them to be alert to all law infractions with particular attention to the gambling statutes. He invited them to call on him for help any time they needed it.

Those present at the meeting were Majors Edward P. Dowd and Jesse Treat and Captains James Chapman, George Dreckshage, Troy Ferber, Joseph Joyce, Joseph Lesyna, James F. Thompson and William Washer. Dowd and Treat were former captains while the others were lieutenants.

CIO Reports on Southern Drive.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (UP)—The CIO organizing committee said today that 280,000 workers in 13 southern states had joined CIO unions in the year since the intensive drive began. George Googe, AFL southern organizing director, said previously that 375,000 men and women in the south had joined AFL unions in the last year.

U.S. INQUIRY INTO CHARGES OF LOTTERY RUN FOR VOTES

Attorney General's Office Acts on Letter by Dalton Accusing Democrats in Southeast Missouri.

An investigation of charges by Grover W. Dalton, chairman of the Missouri Republican State Committee, that lotteries were conducted in Southeast Missouri by the regular Democratic organization to induce the people to "vote right" last November, has been ordered by the United States Attorney General's office, the Post-Dispatch learned today.

United States Attorney Drake Watson said he has received detailed instructions from Assistant Attorney General Theron L. Caudle, who is in charge of the criminal division of Attorney General Tom C. Clark's office, to proceed at once with the inquiry, calling attention to Dalton's statement that "lottery chances were bought by ballots."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation will make the inquiry, Watson said. Gerald B. Norris, head of the FBI office here, told the Post-Dispatch he had not yet received instructions to begin the investigation.

Dalton's charges of election irregularities were made to Attorney General Clark in a letter of last June 3. In the letter, he referred to the Kansas City election frauds investigation and the theft of ballots, and said he knew of other irregularities under "Democratic auspices."

He then wrote about the giving away of "automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, nylons and other things . . . to persons who went to the polls to vote."

"These lotteries," he said, "were held under the auspices of the regular Democratic organization." Later, he told the Post-Dispatch the lotteries were conducted in Pemiscot, Dunklin and Scott counties.

Watson said his instructions for the investigation of the alleged lottery said that if the charge can be substantiated, a possible violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act might be indicated. Watson said his attention was directed by Caudle to Section 250, Title 2 of the U. S. Code. It follows:

"Expenditures to influence voting. It is unlawful for any person to make or offer to make an expenditure or to cause an expenditure to be made or offered to any person either to vote or withhold his vote, or to vote for or against any candidate, and it is unlawful for any person to solicit, accept or receive any such expenditure in consideration of his vote, or the withholding of his vote."

Dalton, in his letter, said. "You might even find—as we know—that a certain class of people are intimidated to get them from going to the polls or to force them to 'vote right,' if they do go to the polls. You would find that such practices are not the exceptions to the rule, but the rule."

In referring to this passage, Watson's instructions were to watch for violations of the civil rights statutes and conspiracy.

Watson was told by Caudle to conduct his investigation along these lines: Interview Dalton and develop any pertinent leads that will determine the identity of persons with their official position, if any, who organized, sponsored, conducted, or otherwise participated in the alleged lotteries; the nature, purpose and amount of expenditures made in connection with the alleged lotteries; the identities of persons who made the expenditures and the persons who accepted them, and the effect of such alleged lotteries on the rights of qualified voters to vote for a candidate for federal office as well as the effect in nullifying, changing or diluting votes cast for federal candidates.

Watson said he was also instructed to determine the identity of persons who were deprived of the right to vote for a federal candidate, and the identity of persons, with their official positions, if any, who, by intimidation or wrongful act, deprived qualified voters of the right to vote for a federal candidate, together with all circumstances surrounding the allegations.

The Assistant Attorney General asked Watson to work in co-operation with United States District Attorney Sam M. Wear in Kansas City and to send reports of progress to Washington and also Kansas City.

Representative Martin (Rep.), Massachusetts, Speaker of the House of Representatives, was asked by Missouri Republicans last March to order a federal investigation of the 1946 election. At the time, the Republicans said they had affidavits on file regarding the lotteries in the predominantly Democratic counties.

$215,000,000 INTERIOR FUND BILL APPROVED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 16 (UP)—The Senate by a voice vote today approved a $215,000,000 Interior appropriations bill, $54,000,000 more than the House voted. The measure now goes to conference.

The Senate bill provided a 27 per cent cut below President Truman's requests of $296,135,490 for fiscal 1948. The House had cut the requested funds 45 per cent to $161,413,513. Of the $54,000,000 restored by the Senate about $16,000,000 was concentrated in reclamation funds.

Among increases made by the Senate bill was the allotment for the Missouri River Basin, $9,786,600 to $18,535,000.

MOTHER GETS 5 YEARS IN FATAL BEATING OF SON, 3

Mrs. Dorothy Bialik Pleads Guilty of Manslaughter in Child's Death Dec. 15.

Mrs. Dorothy Bialik was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary today on her plea of guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the fatal beating of her 3-year-old son, Victor Jr., last Dec. 15. She was indicted for second-degree murder, but was permitted to enter a plea to a reduced charge.

Before passing sentence, Circuit Judge William H. Killoren advised Mrs. Bialik that Dr. Joseph F. Sassin, court-appointed psychiatrist, had reported she was capable of knowing what she was doing when she struck the blows which ruptured her son's liver and spleen, causing his death.

She inquired if someone might adopt her two other young sons. Judge Killoren said "there is that possibility."

"The children are entitled to an opportunity, which you and your husband have not given them," Judge Killoren observed.

A public defender, appointed to represent Mrs. Bialik, told the court that her husband is an habitual drunkard and is serving 18 months in the City Workhouse for burglary and larceny. She was abandoned by her parents when she was two years old and was reared by her grandparents, the attorney said. Judge Killoren approved the reduction in the charge, recommended by the Circuit Attorney's office. A Coroner's jury, which returned a homicide verdict in the boy's death, recommended institutional care for Mrs. Bialik. She is 25 years old.

Following the death of her son, Mrs. Bialik told a Post-Dispatch reporter she lost control of herself from the constant drudgery of caring for her three children in their crowded three-room flat at 2218 Warren street. She said she struck Victor Jr. three hard blows with her fists, then rushed him to City Hospital when he began gasping for breath. The boy died before reaching the hospital.

SOME PEOPLE JUST DON'T LIKE BANKS!

We've done our level best. Long ago we did away with the hushed, tomb-like atmosphere.

We've tried to make our lobby as comfortable as your own front parlor. Our tellers are as pleasant as a sunny morning. Our motto is "The customer's always right — except when he's wrong." 9 times out of 10, we say "Yes," to loan applicants. Even our vice presidents smile every now and then.

But maybe you're one of those people who just don't like to visit banks anyway.

Then you can do all your banking here and never have to visit the bank after you have once opened your account.

That's right! You can make all your deposits by mail. Pay all your bills by check by mail. You can handle your savings by mail. Yes, even when you need a loan, the whole thing can probably be arranged over the phone.

If you can think of anything more to make it easier, we'll be glad to oblige.

spirit of President Truman's executive order against allowing Communists to hold Government jobs.

Attorney General Tom Clark issued a statement saying the department opposed the petition "because one of the greatest responsibilities of the Department of Justice is to protect the freedom of speech guaranteed under the Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

"While I may not be in accord with Mr. Wallace's views," Clark said, "yet under our Constitution and the Bill of Rights he has a right to express his opinion. If we commence to abridge such rights, we are violating a principle on which our Government was founded and has stood for over 170 years."

Miles told the court the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars were on hand to take a stand in the case, but Judge Proctor said statements from the two organizations would not be necessary.

Sponsoring Group Attacked.

The address is being sponsored by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, labeled Saturday by the House un-American Activities Committee as "perhaps the most deviously camouflaged Communist front organization."

Wallace, the conference, and Clark Foreman of Atlanta, its president, have denied Communist links. Wallace said yesterday the committee report was "without substance."

Foreman, who was present at Wallace's news conference yesterday said it was "not true," as the House committee charged, that his group followed the Communist line or that it was isolationist before Russia was invaded by Germany in 1941.

Agrees Expansion a Threat.

Replying to a barrage of questions from 50 reporters in the National Press Club Auditorium, Wallace agreed with one questioner that Soviet expansion across Europe would be a threat to world peace. He said Russia should be told that there is a point beyond which she could not go and that that point is near central Turkey.

He said he does not believe a political coup could be accomplished in Turkey.

Asked what if the Soviet Union were to send troops into that country, he first said Britain and the United States would fight and then added they should fight under those circumstances.

When a reporter asked him later to clarify, Wallace said he meant to use only "would" and wanted to withdraw his use of "should" fight.

"I am not a warmonger," said the former Secretary of Commerce who was fired by President Truman last year for expressing foreign policy views "fundamentally" at variance with administration aims.

"But it is important for Russia to know there is a point beyond which she shouldn't go without awakening resistance. I'm confident our navy would fight if she got into Turkey because our navy is determined to get Saudi-Arabian oil. But that oil should be made available to all countries."

Wallace said Russia, France and other nations have every reason to demand a fair share of Arabian oil under Article Four of the Atlantic Charter.

No Proof of Menace.

He saw no proof that Russia plans any dangerous moves in Turkey these days "any more than Russia has any proof that we are going to do anything that way in Greece."

"Turkey is the sensitive point and that has to be handled carefully," he declared, adding that developments in Greece and Hungary are mere "chess playing" between the United States and Russia.

Wallace said he does not look upon the overturn of the non-Communist regimes in Hungary as "Russian expansion" or a Russian coup. He feels this was accomplished by an internal Communist minority.

Asked to state the difference between his position and the views of Communists on American foreign policy, Wallace said he never reads the Daily Worker and does not know what the Communist position is.

"The only Communists who have sat down and talked with me—and there have been only three—definitely do make a distinction." He said he assumed the questioner meant Communist in America.

Views on 1948.

On domestic affairs, Wallace said he is still trying to make the Democratic party liberal. As to whether he would run for President in 1948, he said he might if he thought it would make the Democratic party liberal.

The "primary thing is not me but the party," he asserted. About the vice presidency? "I would not sell out that cheaply," he replied with a grin.

Commenting on a statement by Republican Chairman Carroll Reece voicing hope that Wallace will support Truman in 1948 to make the issue between the two parties "unmistakably clear," Wallace said it was evident to him that the Republicans "want me to form a third party."

Leon Henderson, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, wired O'Konski that A.D.A. "strongly condemns the position taken by your group."

Henderson's telegram identified as members of A.D.A. Mark Ethridge, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Dr. Frank Graham, Wilson W. Wyatt, Paul A. Porter, William H. Davis, Palmer Hoyt, Elmer Davis, Melvyn Douglas, Franklin Roosevelt Jr., Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., "and many hundreds of other prominent Americans genuinely devoted to democratic ideals." without streetcars and busses since 5 a.m. Friday. The meeting, which began at 11 a.m., lasted more than three hours, with no interruption for lunch.

At the conclusion of today's three-hour conference the Mayor said he was "a little more hopeful" of an early settlement. This he based on the fact the company had made a proposal and the union representatives had agreed to present it to their executive board.

A Public Service spokesman made it clear that, while the company at present has no plans for filing a suit, it would welcome leaving the matter to be decided in the courts.

"Once and for all, the validity of this decision must be determined," he said. "We don't care whether the decision is made by an impartial, fact-finding board or by the courts. Whichever is the faster would be preferable, except that the decision should be final.

"If the arbitration award should be declared invalid, then would be the time to talk about re-arbitration or renegotiation of a contract. But both parties would have to abide by the decision, and seeking it should be by consent of both parties, with the men going back to work in the meantime."

Plans for Hospital Bus Service.

Plans for early establishment of an emergency bus service for hospital employes were announced at the meeting by Milton M. Kinsey, president of the Board of Public Service. He said Elmore Putney, president of the Board of Education, had expressed willingness to supply seven of the board's busses and drivers for this service, and would poll the other board members for their approval.

Of the 27 member hospitals of the St. Louis Hospital Council, eight report they already have arranged transportation for their employes. St. Louis Maternity, St. Louis Children's, McMillan and Barnes Hospitals have obtained two busses, Kinsey explained, and all the city institutions, except Phillips Hospital, have made satisfactory arrangements through car pools and use of city automobiles and ambulances.

Needs of the remaining 19 hospitals are being studied, Kinsey said, adding that he hoped to get thhe emergency service into operation shortly.

Aid of Union and Company.

Union and company last Saturday had agreed to assist in establishing a service for hospital workers if necessary, the company offering its busses without charge and the union expressing willingness to let its members serve as drivers without pay. However, it was agreed by all concerned that it would be preferable to use other busses if possible in order to prevent the general public from seeking to board the emergency vehicles.

Spokesmen for Both Sides.

The company was represented at the conference in the Mayor's board room by President John L. Wilson and Vice President John C. Baine, who is operating manager. Spokesmen for the union were President Arthur E. East and Attorney Bernard Cushman. The Conciliation Service was represented by Commissioners Fillo and Anthony E. Johnson.

Municipal officials present, in addition to the Mayor, were Kinsey and City Counselor George L. Stemmler.

The executive board of the union and officers of the company held separate meetings yesterday to study the settlement proposals. By a coincidence, both meetings were 90-minute sessions.

In a paid newspaper advertisement, Public Service today asserted, "it is apparent that the strike has been called against St. Louis Public Service Co. because the union does not like the majority decision of the board of arbitration, which was set up jointly by the union and the company under terms of their signed contract."

Reaffirming its contention that the majority decision of the arbitrators is valid and binding, the company said it has signed the 1947 working contract "prepared in accordance with the majority decision," and is ready to carry out the terms of this contract "immediately upon its acceptance by the union."

"The union is demanding review or re-arbitration of the case," the advertisement continued. "In other words, it is apparent that the union wants to re-arbitrate until the decision is to its liking. Arbitration [illegible] unless both parties live up to their agreement to accept the majority decision of the arbitration board."

The company's advertisement was in reply to one in which the union Saturday accused Public Service of breaching its contract by refusing new arbitration.

Local 788, AFL Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway & Motor Coach Employes, had sought an hourly wage increase from $1.08 to $1.40, and the company had offered $1.14, or $1.20 if wage fringes were eliminated.

A three-man arbitration board deadlocked, but after the union arbitrator had walked out and the company arbitrator had departed the chairman and public member of the board, Rodowe H. Abeken, announced a wage award of $1.22½ an hour. This decision, concurred in by an alternative company arbitrator, was denounced as "illegal" by the union, which contended the arbitration board was dissolved when the union representative walked out.

O. David Zimring of Chicago, head of the Labor Bureau of the Middle West, acted as union arbitrator. He represents AFL transit workers in contract negotiations in a number of other cities, including East St. Louis, Birmingham, Ala.; Toledo, Atlanta, Ga., and Kansas City.

National City Lines of Chicago controls St. Louis Public Service, East St. Louis City Lines and transportation companies in more than 80 other cities. Strikes growing out of arbitration disputes are now under way in Oakland, San Jose and Stockton, Calif., against companies controlled by National City Lines, the union reported.

Most downtown stores will close at least a half an hour earlier today because of the strike, William H. Semsrott, manager of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis, announced. A recommendation that the earlier closing time be continued for the duration of the strike has been made.

Under the new schedule, stores that usually open at noon on Mondays and close at 8:30 p.m. are expected to close not later than 8 o'clock this evening. Stix, Baer & Fuller Co. and Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney will follow this schedule, he said.

Those stores usually closing at 5:15 p.m. on Mondays are expected to close not later than 4:45 p.m. today, including Famous-Barr Co., Semarott said.

With the Public Service fleet of 1013 busses and 653 streetcars immobilized, thousands of St. Louisans "hitchhiked" to work again this morning.

Capt. Raymond Dowling, head of police traffic division, described the automobile traffic converging on the downtown section as "the heaviest I've ever seen." Mounted and motorcycle police were assigned to operation of traffic signals at key points in an effort to eliminate jams. All police days off were canceled for the duration of the transportation emergency, and assignment of 75 men to the police training school for refresher courses was deferred.

Automobile traffic was heavy throughout the city and St. Louis county yesterday, the weather being ideal for a drive. Forest Park thoroughfares were congested and parking space was at a premium, but it was apparent the number of persons in the park was far below the usual Sunday attendance.

In many of the smaller neighborhood parks, however, the situation was reversed, with comparatively few automobiles and a heavy turnout of people on foot.

Policemen at Forest Park Highlands said the transportation tie-up had cut heavily into attendance, but at Sportsman's Park 29,686 fans, the largest crowd of the season, saw the Cardinals defeat Brooklyn.

Picketing of 12 Public Service car barns, bus garages and other installations continued today, with police reporting no disturbances. R. F. Stein, president of the union's Local 1307, which embraces clerical workers, supervisors and foremen, said his members were respecting the picket lines and not reporting for work. On Friday, the first day of the strike, the picket lines parted to permit passage of office workers.

'COLD-BLOODED POLITICS,' G.O.P. VIEW OF TAX VETO

and elect and elect philosophy of the now discredited New Deal."

He added: "That philosophy was repudiated by the American people last November, and I am confident it will be repudiated again and even more emphatically in 1948."

"People Thwarted," Halleck Says.

House Republican Leader Halleck, Indiana, issued a statement declaring that Truman "has thwarted the will of the people, as expressed through their recently elected representatives in Congress."

"I hope," he went on, "that Democratic President Truman does not continue to disregard the will of the people by resorting to the veto power on major legislation passed by a Republican Congress, and thus try to hamstring Congress by making it necessary to have two thirds majorities for all measures unwanted by the New Deal masters of the Democratic party."

Representative Andresen (Rep.), Minnesota, suggested on the House floor today that the Republicans take the lead now in paying war veterans' terminal leave bonds with the funds resulting from continuance of wartime levies.

Senator Albert W. Hawkes (Rep.), New Jersey, member of the Senate Finance Committee, said, "The Secretary of the Treasury stated very clearly that they (the administration) were making a tax reduction next Jan. 1. That has been the argument of the Democratic party all the way through. If they know that they can't make a tax reduction now, how can they say they favor one next Jan 1?

Veto "a Political Gamble," Says President of N. A. M.

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, today termed President Truman's veto of the tax bill "a political gamble with the jobs and pocketbooks of the American people at stake."

Bunting asserted in a statement that "everyone's stake in tax reduction—fairly and squarely across the board — has been whittled away, knocked to bits, and stacked up as kindling wood for next year's political bonfires.

"It means that a hope for votes in the presidential elections of 1948 has been rated more important than the welfare of the people today."

Bunting contended that governmental surpluses would make possible both tax reduction and debt reduction. "The President," he said, "reasons that tax reductions now would be at the expense of debt reductions.

"Yet he has admitted that there will be a surplus this year of about $1,250,000,000, and Congressional experts have estimated this surplus will be much greater, reaching perhaps nine billion dollars.

"Certainly the American people are entitled to share in the nation's good fortune—now, not next year, and regardless of politics—especially since it has been proven that both taxes and the national debt can be reduced at the same time. . . ."

of American Railroads said, meanwhile, that if the seamen stage a definite walkout, an embargo probably would be placed on rail freight consignments to United States flag ships. There has been no interruption so far of deliveries of freight to steamers, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the pattern of the embargo probably would follow that put into effect by the association during the AFL seamen's strike last September. At that time, freight movements billed and intended for export or intercoastal movement on American ships were barred, with certain exceptions.

The unions were insistent that no strike had been called but that the men would not work without a contract. The seamen were ordered to remain on board ships "as long as possible" and a union spokesman said that if they were ordered off, a "lockout" would be in effect.

Frank J. Taylor, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute and chairman of the negotiating committee for Gulf and East Coast ship operators, asserted that the stoppage was a "pure, simple, unadulterated strike." He said early reports from owners showed men were aboard ships but idle.

Taylor asserted that the union's use of the term "lockout" was "entirely erroneous."

Union port agents said 150 ships were affected in New York harbor, 40 in Philadelphia, 40 in Baltimore, four in Boston and one in Portland, Me. In Houston, about 1000 men quit work shortly after the midnight deadline and in Seattle, 12,000 Puget Sound waterfront workers were ordered to quit their jobs.

On the West Coast, contract extension was agreed on by ship owners and the CIO Ship Clerks, Checkers and Supercargoes, an affiliate of the longshoremen, and "tentative" meetings were scheduled for later in the day with the CIO Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Union and the CIO American Communications Association.

A West Coast CIO maritime committee spokesman, however, said that "similar to the East Coast pattern as announced, the West Coast unions which are locked out will have their members remain on the jobs."

Pledges of Support.

Pledges of mutual support by five CIO maritime unions indicated that a solid front of 200,000 CIO maritime workers would be involved in the stoppage.

The unions and their reported memberships are the NMU, 90,000; ACA, 3000; International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, 80,000; Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, 15,000; Cooks and Stewards, 12,000.

The stoppage hinged on demands by the NMU and the ACA for wage increases of 20 and 15 per cent, respectively, plus other contract improvements, and extension of the expired contract by the marine cooks. The MEBA and longshoremen on the West Coast have agreed on contract extensions but promised to follow the lead of the others in the event of a "lockout."

CALLS JIMMY MILLER SANE AT TIME OF WILL

Judge Witness at Hearing of Suit Attacking Democratic Boss's Document.

Testimony that the late Jimmy Miller, former Democratic Fourth Ward boss, was of sound mind when he made his will Feb. 16, 1941, was given today by Circuit Judge Harry F. Russell. Judge Russell was the first witness in the hearing of a suit attacking the will. The case is in Circuit Judge John A. Witthaus's court at Clayton.

Miller's brother, Charles H. Miller, and his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Tracy, to whom he left $1 each, alleged in their suit that Faye Poston Miller, to whom he left the bulk of his estate, was not his widow, and that she subjected him to undue persuasion and duress when he was in poor hearth, at the time when he made his will.

Judge Russell testified that he and Mrs. Russell were at Miller's home on the 1400 block of Cass avenue, on the day when the will was drawn, and that Miller asked him to witness it. Russell said he read the paper aloud. Miller was then blind, as he remained until his death in March 1946. Judge and Mrs. Russell signed the document as witnesses.

Asked whether Miller was then of sound mind, Judge Russell said he so believed, and that Miller appeared to know who his relatives were. Judge Russell told of visits to Miller in Missouri Baptist Hospital and at Glenwood Sanitarium, a month before the politician's death.

Judge Russell also told of talking with Miller's sister, Mrs. Tracy, about the will after it had been made, and that Mrs. Tracy wept as matters of her brother's property were discussed. Judge Russell said that at Christmas, 1941, he received a diamond-studded watch as a gift from Miller.

Walter Wehrle, attorney for Mrs. Miller, said it would be shown that she and Miller were married in 1932 at Liberty, Mo., and again in 1940 by a Catholic priest at Manchester, St. Louis county. He told of Miller's illness and disability, and said witnesses would show that he remained competent mentally.

High-Cost Higher Education.

NEW YORK, June 16 (UP)—Higher education next fall will cost American students as much as 25.5 per cent more in tuition and fees than in prewar years, a survey of 120 colleges and universities disclosed today. The study was made by John Price Jones Corp., fund-raising consultants.

UAW HEAD URGES BOYCOTT AGAINST RISING MEAT PRICES

DETROIT, June 16 (UP)—President Walter P. Reuther of the CIO United Auto Workers Union called for a consumers' boycott against rising meat prices today and demanded that the government investigate causes of the price rise.

Reuther urged both buyers and retail dealers to cut down on meat purchases during the next few weeks to protest against an "outrageous new price increase."

He asserted that Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson "knows some of the reasons that meat prices are going up but hasn't told the consumers why."

MISSOURI WORLD FEDERATION MOVE GOES TO TRUMAN

Resolution by Legislature Presented at White House by Delegation From State.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 16—A delegation of Missourians presented to President Truman today a copy of the resolution passed by the Missouri State Legislature approving the principle of world federation.

This was the first such state group to visit the White House in behalf of the so-called Humber resolution asking Congress to support the idea of world federation and asking the President to initiate procedure necessary to writing a constitution for submission to the nations.

Missouri is the fifteenth state to approve the resolution. Approval was given May 15.

Scheduled to be in the delegation were M. C. Matthes, president pro tem of the State Senate, State Senator L. D. Joslyn, Speaker Murray E. Thompson of the House of Representatives, R. J. King Jr., House majority floor leader; F. R. von Windegger, president of the Plaza Bank of St. Louis and John D. McCutcheon of St. Louis.

Von Windegger is chairman and McCutcheon is vice chairman of the Missouri branch of the United World Federalists, an organization which favors strengthening the United Nations through enforceable world laws.

"The statesmanlike action of the Missouri Legislature is in my opinion a recognition of the leadership of President Truman as expressed in a speech in Kansas City two years ago," Von Windegger said in a statement.

"At that time the President said: 'I am standing here with the degree of doctor of laws. That means that we live, in this country at least, in an age of law and an age of reason, an age in which we can get along with our neighbors. Now we must do that internationally. It will be just as easy for nations to get along in a republic of the world as it is for us to get along in a republic of the United States.'"

Von Windegger said, "We in Missouri felt that in that speech the President had gone as far as could be expected in expressing himself on the subject of world federation without a definite demand from the people. This demand was unequivocally expressed by the action of our legislature.

"We were much gratified when our state legislators felt this matter to be of such transcendent importance as to warrant the sending of a special delegation to present the declaration of the federation of the world to the President.

"Ours is the leading nation of the world today, but leaders must lead. It is not enough for us to match Russia's moves. We must, in these revolutionary times, offer the world an inspiring revolutionary idea. World federation is that idea."

fly to Bedford airport in Massachusetts, reached Springfield it was raining heavily, and the ledgy heights of Hawk's mountain loomed ahead. It was far off its course and had been out of radio contact with Bedford for an hour and a half.

At 1000 feet or less, the B-29 circled this small Vermont town. So low was the craft that its engines shook windows and aroused residents.

Moments later, the plane, heavily laden with gasoline, crashed.

In the heavy downpour, it sent up eerie flashes. Springfield firemen, townsfolk and others immediately set out for Hawk's mountain, but it took them several hours to reach the scene of the tragedy.

When they had climbed over miles of underbrush and slopes criss-crossed with hurricane-felled trees, they found that little remained of the plane, shattered to bits by the impact and explosion. Bodies and parts of bodies and wreckage were strewn for 1000 feet along the outcropping granite. Parts of the plane hung 75 feet in the air in trees. On the ground were torn parachutes, a broken watch, a shattered camera, broken turret guns.

21 Hurt When Army Transport Plane Crashes

FORT KNOX, Ky., June 16 (AP)—An Army C-47 transport plane crashed and burned at Godman field here yesterday shortly after a take-off, injuring 21 of the 22 persons aboard, the Army public relations office reported.

Twenty of the group—all military personnel, including Maj. Gen. W. G. Wyman, an intelligence officer and highest ranking person aboard—received only minor injuries, the office said.

Most seriously hurt was Staff Sgt. Curtis M. Green, a crew member who was credited with calmly leading the passengers to the escape hatch, despite his injury. The group scrambled through the hatch to safety only moments before the big plane burst into flames.

Green was hospitalized here with a dislocated hip and burns on the arms and neck.

EVIDENCE FOUND THAT HUNGARIANS TRIED TO GET ARMS

sume effective power, since no armed opposition exists.

A few leaders of the rightwing Smallholders party, which won the honest November 1945 elections, planned last winter to anticipate and frustrate this latent Communist police putsch. Evidence against them is still held secret by the Russians. The Soviets want to keep the whole affair in the category of "Hungarian" politics, excluding their role in creating a Red police force.

Russia's evidence is party weakened by having been obtained through coercion, possibly torture. But definite evidence—incriminating by Soviets standards of justice—exists in the N.K.V.D. (Russian secret police) and Hungarian Communist files.

Contact With Horthy.

The evidence is as follows:

To maintain a democratic structure and to prevent a police putsch, rightwing leaders of the Smallholders felt that they needed arms and a semi-military organization. Bela Kovacs, secretary general of the Smallholders party, approached officers of the dissolved Hungarian army in Hungary. But these officers lacked arms.

The nearest non-Russian arms to Budapest are in Austria under Allied, chiefly American, guard. Adm. Nicholas Horthy, also, is in western Austria, surrounded by Hungarian officers who fled westward before the Russian advance, preferring American to Soviet surveillance. Horthy is the former regent of Hungary.

With or without Kovac's knowledge, a Smallholder of lower rank, named Rafay, went to Austria to contact this Horthy group. His purported intention was to establish liaison with these anti-Communist officers and persuade them to try to get arms secretly from American or British sources.

Betrayed by Woman.

In Vienna, honeycombed with both Hungarian Communists and N.K.V.D. agents, Rafay got into woman trouble. He returned to a blond Jewish mistress who, since Rafay last saw her, had joined the service of the N.K.V.D. Rafay confided his plan to her, naming Kovacs.

The Russians immediately arrested Kovacs in Budapest. Rafay disappeared in Vienna, presumably at the hands of a kidnaping corps kept in Austria by the Hungarian Communist secret police. Soon afterwards Bela Varga, Smallholder president of the Assembly, who had fled to Austria, also disappeared.

It would appear that former Premier Ferenc Nagy, now in Washington, had some knowledge of the preparations taken against the Communist police putsch, but didn't deem them serious enough to unmask. The failure of Nagy to defend Kovacs and Rafay remains unexplained.

Why Nagy Fled.

Nagy's resignation was interpreted by Father Istvan Balogh, who was Kovacs's successor, and by Foreign Minister Janos Gyongyosi as due to dread of facing Communist tribunals, whether Hungarian or Soviet, in a case where they may be innocent by western standards of justice but criminals by Soviet standards.

Nagy's flight to Switzerland and now to the United States marks his fear of sharing whatever penalty the Russians and Hungarian communist intend for Kovacs and Rafay.

Magyar diplomats overseas have resigned because they perceive no future in serving under a Soviet puppet.

The Russians are expected temporarily to tolerate the Smallholders party as a dwindling majority, while using this abortive "plot" as an excuse to strengthen Communist police power.

Russian evidence can be revealed for use as propaganda for the September elections now that the United States, by signing the peace treaties, has given away leverage in Hungary.

Whether or not Kovacs, Varga and Rafay are alive or dead and whatever the degree of their guilt, and anti-Communist views of the Hungarian people remain represented by the untainted surviving leadership of the Smallholders party.

The Soviets, however, have succeeded in whittling down the Smallholders' 57 per cent leadership, obtained at the free 1945 elections. They can siphon over more advantage to the 16 per cent Hungarian Communist party when they reveal their secret evidence of a Moscow-type trial between now and the September elections.

The gulf between the anti-Communist Smallholders party and the Communist-controlled, Russian-sponsored police is today's battleground in Hungary and the terrain of the Russian-American diplomatic struggle east of Vienna.

HUNGARY 'WILLING' FOR U.N. INQUIRY

BUDAPEST, June 16 (UP)—Justice Minister Istvan Ries said today that if the big powers agreed Hungary "willingly" would place at the disposal of a United Nations investigation all material concerning the alleged conspiracy of former Premier Ferenc Nagy and the Smallholder party leaders, Bela Kovacs and Bela Varga.

His statement came after reports circulated that Col. Istvan Zemes, a Hungarian resistance leader and chief military expert at the Paris peace conference, was arrested Sunday after a search of his apartment. Four other persons were seized with Zemes, according to reports lacking official confirmation.

Ries, a member of the Socialist party, asserted "if the United States investigated the case here and learned the true facts, they would expel Nagy and Tibor Eckhardt at once." Eckhardt is a Hungarian politician now in the United States. Nagy and his family arrived in New York Saturday.

Ries said that the State Department's actions were misguided "because they are not based on true facts."

Both Ries and a high Socialist party spokesman today seemed considerably concerned about American policy in Europe. They said their attitude was that the American note on Hungary was not too important but that the whole course of American policy was alarming.

"What is the United States aiming at?" one Socialist leader asked. "Does America want to take over the role of Germany and cause another world catastrophe? We Socialists are afraid the interests of capital are more important to the American Government than the peace of its people. The dollar is playing a bigger role in world affairs than ever before."

Earlier Budapest newspapers said Nagy and Varga would be tried in absentia on charges of trying to overthrow the republic. They quoted Ries as saying he had ordered the people's prosecutor to start "criminal proceedings."

Austria Safe From Outside Engineered Coup, Renner Says.

VIENNA, June 16 (UP)—Austria is safe from any left-wing coup inspired by foreign nations, in the view of President Karl Renner, elderly nonpartisan leader of the republic.

Renner called Austrian democracy "strong enough to kill in their very nucleus all radical political trends engendered and launched against our country by outside nations."

RELIEF PROBLEMS IN U.S. SAID TO BE GROWING CRITICAL

CHICAGO, June 16 (UP)—The American Public Welfare Association reported today that unemployment is increasing rapidly, and that relief problems throughout the country are becoming "critical."

In Minnesota, the association said, the family relief caseload rose 35 per cent last year. In Pennsylvania, monthly relief costs between June 1945 and May 1947 more than doubled—from $520,000 to an estimated $1,260,000. During the period, the monthly caseload jumped more than 60 per cent, from 18,900 in June 1945 to an estimated 30,5000 last month.

Most major cities across the country have requested increased welfare aid from their states. In al but four of 19 major cities surveyed, the number of persons on relief has risen sharply since September. From the low point of 1945 through last March, the increase in relief cases in these cities totaled 50 per cent.

The highest current increase in a group of selected cities was reported in Washington, D.C., where general assistance rolls increased 60 per cent between March 1946 and March 1947.

Other sharp rises were reported by San Francisco, 71 per cent, Washington 58 per cent, St. Louis 46 per cent and Los Angeles county 43 per cent.

These are the facts back of the St. Louis streetcar and bus strike

It is apparent that the strike has been called against St. Louis Public Service Company because the Union does not like the majority decision of the Board of Arbitration, which was set up jointly by the Union and the Company under terms of their signed contract.

Here are the facts:

1 Methods of arbitration were set up in a written contract signed by the Union and the Company. Both agreed, in that contract, that the majority decision by the Board of Arbitration would be binding and final.

2 The recent arbitration proceedings and the board's decision were in accordance with the contract in every detail.

3 The majority decision of the Board of Arbitration is valid and binding and in accordance with a written contract signed by both the Union and the Company.

4 The Company has accepted the majority decision of the Board of Arbitration even though its terms were not entirely to the Company's liking.

5 The Union has rejected a majority decision of the Board of Arbitration in spite of the fact that it had signed a contract to abide by such decision.

6 The Company has signed the 1947 working contract which was prepared in accordance with the majority decision of the Board of Arbitration. This signed contract now is in the possession of the Union.

7 The Company is ready to carry out the terms of the contract immediately upon its acceptance by the Union.

The Union is demanding review or re-arbitration of the case. In other words, it is apparent that the Union wants to re-arbitrate until the decision is to its liking.

Arbitration means nothing unless both parties live up to their agreement to accept the majority decision of the Arbitration Board.

CEILING ON RENT EXPECTED TO END IF BILL IS VETOED

G.O.P. Won't Consider Another Measure, Sparkman Says—'Better Than Nothing.'

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—If President Truman vetoes the rent control bill which Congress expects to send him this week, there probably will be no federal ceilings at all after June 30, Senator Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, said today.

Sparkman is the ranking Senate Democrat on the House-Senate conference committee which reached final accord last week on legislation to extend rent controls through next Feb. 29. The committee compromise was listed tentatively for House action today.

Sparkman told a reporter he was not proud of the committee's handiwork but that it appeared to be "that or nothing."

"The Republican leadership has given us to understand that they would not consider another bill if the President vetoes this one," he said "and I doubt that we could pass a much better bill anyway."

Criticism by Democrats.

Sparkman and other Democrats have been particularly critical of provisions which (1) permit a rent increase of up to 15 per cent where landlord and tenant agree on a lease to carry through 1948, and (2) scrap all Government restrictions over construction except recreational and amusement buildings.

A strong indication that Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon will urge Truman to veto the bill came, meanwhile, in a report by Creedon that the measure might wreck the housing program.

Without referring directly to the pending bill, Creedon said a "huge volume" of non-home building is expected to start if controls are lifted, and added:

"It is apparent that in a good many areas throughout the country materials supply is still too critical to permit complete freedom of non-residential construction without disastrous consequences to home building."

Senator Taylor (Dem.), Idaho, another member of the conference committee, said the bill should be turned down by both houses or, failing that, vetoed by the President.

'A Little Better Than Nothing.'

Sparkman, however, said Truman "has almost got to sign it if he wants any rent control at all, and I think it is a little better than nothing."

The present rent control law expires June 30. The President had urged that it be extended without change for one year.

Representative Javits (Rep.), New York, announced he would introduce a resolution today calling for a special nine-member House committee to investigate the national housing shortage and file interim reports, to be followed by a final report by Jan. 3, so the new Congress would be able to act immediately on the housing problem.

OFFERS TO TREAT POLICE IN ARREST; HELD THREE HOURS

Elizabeth Carton Chouteau, estranged wife of Auguste Chouteau Jr., was in custody for three hours in the office of the Kirkwood police station Saturday night after police reported she had offered to buy beer for two of them following her arrest suspected of drunken, careless and reckless driving.

Kirkwood Motorcycle Patrolman Frank Rouse said he had to stop Mrs. Chouteau three times before he got her safely to the police station. He reported he saw her automobile speed through a stop sign at the intersection of Manchester road and Lindbergh boulevard. Clocking her at 60 to 70 miles an hour, he said, he chased her east on Manchester, finally catching her at Berry road.

As he was dismounting from his motorcycle, he continued, Mrs. Chouteau suddenly began to back up. He stopped her again and directed her to drive to the police station. When she began going 50 miles an hour en route, he said, he stopped her a third time. Then she told him she had been drinking and offered to buy him a beer, he reported.

Rouse summoned a squad car to take her to the station. When it arrived, she offered to buy the driver a beer, Rouse said. She was released on $300 bond, posted by a professional bondsman, to appear in Kirkwood police court next Monday. Mrs. Chouteau, who filed suit for divorce last week, lives at 4943 Laclede avenue. She is 35 years old.

60 FAMILIES QUIT HOMES AS RIVER CRESTS PASS CITY

was ordered from Keokuk to Quincy, Ill., located in the middle of the threatened stretch, and 19 motor boats to be manned by 50 men were taken to Quincy from St. Louis on trucks provided by the Army Air Forces base at Scott Field. The second cutter, with 10 motor boats and a crew of 25 was sent from St. Charles to Hannibal, on the Missouri side of the river opposite Quincy.

An additional 20 boats have been stationed by the Coast Guard at points between Hannibal and St. Louis and an aerial survey of the entire flood area from Iowa City and Des Moines in southeastern Iowa to St. Louis is being made by Coast Guard pilots assisted by the Civil Air Patrol.

Sandbags Sent to Louisiana Area.

Approximately 50,000 sandbags have been sent by the St. Louis District Office, Engineers Corps, to reinforce levees south of Louisiana which were weakened by last week's flood.

The new rise of the Mississippi is expected to gain impetus from two nearly parallel tributaries in southeastern Iowa which have risen out of their banks. The Iowa river today was threatening to overflow a part of the University of Iowa campus at Iowa City, 90 miles north of Keokuk.

The crest of the Des Moines river reached Keosauqua, Ia., 40 miles northwest of Keokuk, after having flooded about 10,000 of the 30,000 residents of Ottumwa, further upstream, out of their homes.

Cedar River Overflowing.

The Cedar river, which empties into the Iowa near its confluence with the Mississippi was also reported overflowing. The second big Mississippi Valley flood will result, engineers said, by the latter part of this week.

Since the first floods of last week, 20,000 persons have been driven from their homes, and 1,500,000 acres of rich cornland have been inundated in Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois, they estimated. The floods have caused about $40,000,000 damage to towns and farmlands.

The Mississippi was already on the rise at Keokuk, and at Canton, Mo., 30 miles further south, where the river dropped to flood stage of 15 feet yesterday, the muddy water began lapping over the levee again today.

New Missouri River Flood.

A new flood was also coming down the Missouri river, its crest between St. Joseph, Mo., and Kansas City. The failure of at least 25 levees between Rulo, at the southeastern tip of Nebraska where the stream reached a record stage last week, and Kansas City helped to flatten out the flood, however, and engineers said the anticipated high water mark of 24.1 feet at Kansas City would not cause any trouble.

The one death so far attributed to the new floods was reported from southwestern Iowa, where a railroad employe fell through the trap door of a coal car while working with a crew repairing a washed-out bridge over the Nishnabotna river, tributary of the Missouri, near Red Oak, about 40 miles southeast of Omaha, Neb.

WOMAN TRIES TO SWIM ACROSS LAKE, DROWNS

Man Nearly Loses Life When He Attempts to Rescue Her.

Mrs. Bessie Rhine of East Alton drowned when attempting to swim across Lake Carlinville, near Carlinville, Macoupin county, Ill., about 50 miles northeast of St. Louis, Saturday night. H. Daniel Reineke of St. Louis, who unsuccessfullyattempted to rescue her, barely made the 300-foot return trip to shore when he became exhausted.

Mrs. Rhine had gone to the lake on a fishing trip with her husband, Charles A. Rhine. She had gone about 300 feet across the lake, about three-fourths of a mile wide, when she became exhausted and began to scream for help.

Reineke, who was sitting on the shore, pulled off his clothing and plunged in. When he reached her, she grabbed him around the neck, he said, and they both went under. Reineke attempted to calm her, but she would not release her grip and they went under a second time.

Reineke was exhausted by this time and he broke away and headed for shore. Mrs. Rhine's husband, an inexperienced swimmer, also had started to her aid, meanwhile, but had to turn back before reaching her. She was 39 years old. The body was recovered yesterday.

Two boys were rescued from the Mississippi river at the foot of Poplar street by two employes of the river boat Fort Gage yesterday. The boys were James Charles Jr., 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Charles, 1604 South Foturteenth street, and Roy Dobbs, 15, son of Mike Dobbs, 1407½ St. Ange avenue.

They were about 100 feet from shore when they became exhausted. They managed to clutch a 40-foot log, attached to the Fort Gage, until the two crew members, James Jones and Walter Myles, both Negro, living aboard the boat, launched a skiff and pulled the boys aboard.

Worsham Rallies to Defeat Snead in Playoff for U.S. Open Title

Slammin' Sam Misses Short Putt on No. 18; New Champ Scores 69

By Robert Morrison

A powerful, strong-armed young Virginian, Lewis E. Worsham, snatched the United States Open golf championship away from Samuel Jackson Snead yesterday morning at St. Louis Country Club with a chip shot that took the newly found putting heart right out of the ill-starred veteran of the game.

Becoming the forty-seventh Open title winner in the historic series, Worsham scored a two-under-par 69 in an 18-hole playoff, one stroke better than Snead, British Open champion, could do, after the two had tied at the regulation distance of 72 holes with two-under-par 282s.

Staying with and often ahead of Slammin' Sam of Hot Springs, Va., in length of shots through the fairways, Worsham never was ahead in scoring at any time until Snead blew his second National Open championship on the final hole.

It was at Philadelphia's Spring Mill course in 1939 that Snead took an eight on the last hole when a six would have tied, and Byron Nelson finally won that championship in a playoff.

Misses 30½-Inch Putt.

The three-putted eighteenth hole in the playoff here was an echo of that disastrous day, for Samuel Jackson Snead missed a putt that was only 30½ inches long. This putt, which could have sent the playoff into another 18 holes, followed Snead's first stroke on the green that started about 15 feet away and rolled weakly to the 30½-inch point.

Faint heart never has won much of anything, and it could hardly be doubted that Snead's first futile putt had been affected by Worsham's third stroke, a chip from the fringe on the back of the green, which hit the far side of the cup to stop its impetus and rolled only 29½ inches past. That chip shot undoubtedly made Snead play it safe and he played it a little too safe.

Those measurements involving an inch are official.

Requesting a measurement as the balls lay those distances away from the hole, in order that the first to putt could be determined, Worsham found himself the closest and Snead had to try it first. Snead missed, then Worsham made his and the second postwar championship ended with a 29-year-old professional the winner.

That Old Putter Again.

Snead is four years older than Worsham and in his 10 and, frequently disappointing, years on the trail of golfing fame and fortune, Slammin' Sam has seen more than two famous championships within his grasp, only to lose them to superior performances, or to terrible luck.

"I'd rather have lost it yesterday (Saturday) than today," Sam said, slumping on a bench in a locker room, while Worsham's received the plaudits of the crowd outside.

"It was that old putter again, right when I needed it," the Hot Springs (Va.) veteran added, low in mind and spirit and recalling many disappointing memories from the past. "That first putt was just too easy—that's all. And the second one—well, there was a break in the green . . ."

Snead trailed off into the thick silence of reporters around him, who were seeing a man nearest again to the thing he wanted most and having lost it through his own handiwork.

"But somebody's got to lose," Snead added with a lift of the downtrodden spirit. He opened his mail and a dollar bill and 36 cents fell out. It was a refund on a purchase Sam had made when he arrived here and he smiled slightly at it.

In a way, Snead had lost it by himself, with bogeys on the seventeenth and eighteenth holes. Snead had been three under par from the thirteenth hole through the sixteenth. Worsham, who had never held the advantage, was only one under par after the fifteenth hole. And Worsham needed only one birdie on the last three holes to win.

A Playoff Record.

But the young newcomer to the famous company of Open champions, whose names continue to ring down through the years with authority, won under pressure and with a National Open 18-hole record playoff score of 69.

There once were a pair of 68s in a 36-hole playoff. They were made by Byron Nelson and Craig Wood in the first round of the double tie-breaker at Philadelphia in 1939. But never before, back to the beginning of the century when the first 18-hole playoff made a champion of Willie Anderson, has a man scored a 69 to take the title.

It was the third record to fall in the record breaking Open here that saw the 18-hole score topped with Amateur Jimmy McHale's 65 and the nine-hole mark bettered by the same McHale's 30 for the first nine of the third round.

When Snead walked up to the eighteenth green with a fine approach shot only 15 feet from the pin, he received a great hand. He had hit 13 greens out of 18 in the conventional number of strokes expected of a par shooter, while Worsham had hit only 12, missing four on the back nine.

But they don't pay off on hitting greens, and the three-putted eighteenth was Sam's second during the round. In all, Sam took 31 putts, 15 on the first nine holes and 16 on the second. Worsham had 29, going out with 17, but knocking them in with 12 on the finishing stretch.

With three birdies on the second nine, Worsham made it in two under par 34 to recover from his par 35 on the front side which saw him take a bogey on the eighth, then get a birdie on the ninth. Snead at the turn was one stroke better than his opponent even after taking a six on about the easiest hole on the par four, 325-yard sixth.

Nine-Foot Putt Gives Snead a Birdie and Lead on First Hole

On that first nine holes, Snead made a nine-foot putt on the first for a birdie to obtain a one-stroke advantage. On the difficult second hole, 233 yards and offering a double plateau green that has given open golfers trouble all the way through, Snead made a great recovery.

Sam's tee shot with an iron rolled on to the front tee of the third hole. He rolled it up the slope and on the green to within three feet of the pin, which was on the rear plateau. From there he got his putt for a three, just as Worsham did by hitting the green and getting down in two from the dip in the middle.

The third hole also saw the players get their par threes. Snead was on, 40 feet away, but Worsham had to chip downhill for his putt.

Fours on No. 4 enabled Snead to keep his one stroke advantage. Worsham's drive there hit spectators and bounced back into the fairway, but he still had a blind second shot and was 25 feet from the pin with it. Snead, 14 feet away after hitting from the high side of the fairway, got down in two, as did Worsham.

A magnificient wood shot from the fairway on the 545-yard No. 5 fairway put Snead on the green in two and when Worsham had to wedge a shot from the rough near the green to get on in three, Snead putted easily twice from 12 feet to get a birdie four and move two strokes up.

Snead Loses Advantage.

Snead's six on No. 6 resulted from a tee shot into the rough, another blow that sent the ball into a trap high on the right side of the green, an explosion shot that was 25 feet short of the pin, and a missed three-foot putt. It was Sammy's putting again that cost him. On the same hole, Worsham drove his tee shot down in the valley on the left, came out of the rough to a steep-banked bunker, blasted eight feet beyond the pin and got his putt for a fine par 4.

There went Sam's early lead and they were even in strokes. Snead barely missed a 14-foot putt on the seventh green, the short hole only 150 yards long, and Worsham got down from 16 feet as each took par threes.

The dogleg eighth was all Snead's as the Slammer came around the bend and put his approach 33 feet away from the pin and downed the putt for a birdie. He regained his two-stroke lead as Worsham went first into rough and then into a bunker, failed to make the green in three and took a chip and putt to get in.

Worsham returned with a birdie on No. 9, scraping out of rough to get on and down in four with a six-foot putt, while Snead's tee shot was down in a hole, blocked by an embankment and limited by tree branches to a small hole opening to the sky. Snead slugged it out for a great recovery to the fairway. He went from there into a trap next to the green and recovered again with a great explosion to within three feet of the pin.

At the turn, one stroke to the good, Snead chipped in from 30 feet on No. 10. Worsham matched the birdie three with a great feather putt under pressure.

Eleven was halved, but No. 12 went to Worsham on a birdie deuce, gained by an 18-foot putt that circled the rim and dropped into the cup.

On the long pull up the 576-yard No. 13 hole, Snead came out of rough along the fairway, pitched his third shot to 12 feet away and made the putt for a birdie to go three under par and take the lead again.

Fourteen found them each missing putts and taking par four, and on the par five fifteenth, Worsham was thought to be weakening. He missed an explosion shot out of a trap, scattering sand

Worsham Sinks a Putt and Swims, Snead Misses and Sinks

Worsham Says That He Was 'Kinda Lucky' When His Chip Shot Hit Cup on Final Hole

By W. J. McGoogan

Lew Worsham, new United States Open golf champion, literally got off the canvas to win the title from Sam Snead at St. Louis Country Club yesterday morning. It may be that his reaction to the serious situation in which he found himself at the end of 15 holes, two strokes down, was a result of his boxing experience in the Navy.

Among his duties as an athletic specialist for two years was the elementary instruction in boxing of recruits. And he certainly came back fighting to defeat Snead.

"Gimme a beer" was his first request as he reached the locker room through a crowd of well wishers. Told he would have to settle for iced tea because of the Sunday law here, he laughed and remarked "that'll do."

His father, a carpenter, sent him a wire this morning reading "You won the mid-Atlantic P.G.A. on my birthday, now get me the Open championship for Father's day." And Lew did.

Says He Was 'Kinda Lucky.'

At the eighteenth hole, Worsham remarked that he was certainly "kinda lucky" when his chip shot third hit the cup and stopped so close to the hole.

"If it had not hit the hole, maybe it would have rolled too far away." Lew asked for the measurement between his ball and Sam's when Snead walked up after his first putt and said he would putt out.

"No, we'll measure and if you're away, you can putt out and if I'm away, I'll putt."

Ike Grainger, secretary of the U.S.G.A. pulled a tape measure out of his pocket and did the measuring, which disclosed that Snead was 2 feet, 6½ inches, away from the hole and Worsham 2 feet, 5½ inches. Snead seemed to hurriedly jab his putt and missed, then Lew sank his.

"And it was a great feeling of relief when it went down," said the new champion, who stands 5 feet, 11 inches, and weighs 175 pounds.

He's a Virginia Country Boy.

Lew remarked to a friend:

"To think that a Virginia country boy could ever win the Open championship."

He was born on a tobacco farm between Lynchburg and Danville, Oct. 5, 1917.

The boy, of English extraction, moved to Washington and attended high school there. He did some swimming and began his golf career as a caddy with an old set of hickory-shaft clubs. After he won a caddy championship, an acquaintance, Severn Loeffler, gave him a set of Bobby Jones irons, the first real golf clubs he ever owned.

Worsham began his professional career as assistant to Bob Barnett at Chevy Chase Golf Club, and Barnett aided him in developing his game.

In 1939, he had his first professional job at Burning Tree Golf Club, Washington, where he remained until he went into the Navy. He was stationed at Bainbridge, Md., Norfolk, Va., and Washington. After his release from the service, he went back to golf and, last winter made the winter tour although he had no steady professional situation.

So he applied for the job at Oakmont Golf Club, Pittsburgh, Pa., and got it. He is to start his duties there right after the P.G.A. tournament in Detroit.

"I thought I needed something a little more secure than just tournament golf play," he said. Oakmont is the course where Sam Parks won the open championship with a 72-hole score of 301.

One of Clubs Ruled Out.

Worsham was bothered somewhat through the tourney here by the loss of his pet wedge, which the implements committee ruled had too many indentations in it. He was ordered to file some of them down.

"I ruined the club trying to make it meet regulations," Lew laughted. "So I just had to leave it in my locker. I fixed up a pitching iron which I used out of the sand."

At No. 15, Lew was in a trap where that pet club would have come in handy. He has a reputation as a great player out of the sand, but this time he barely got the ball to the top of the trap. He pitched on nicely, and got his putt, about 6 feet long to save a stroke taking a six as Snead was down in five. And how important that hole was is proved by the final result.

Lew's brother, Virgil, a contestant in the tournament, who failed to qualify for the final two rounds, and Lew's wife, Virginia,

SAM SNEAD fails to get down a 30½-inch putt and lost to Worsham in the final by one stroke. And you might call it a $50,000 putt because that is what the championship is estimated to be worth to the holder. Immediately it cost Sam $500, the difference between first and second money.

Worsham's Wife Quit Gallery After Lew's Big 6 on No. 15, 'Waited for Them to Come In'

By Evarts A. Graham Jr.

Lew Worsham received the silver cup and $2500, the first installment on the many thousands of dollars that go with it, from United States Golf Association President Charles W. Littlefield yesterday at St. Louis Country Club before a portion of the thousands of St. Louisans who watched him win the United States Open championship earlier.

The Oakmont (Pa.) lulu fondled the cup happily while the movie cameras ground noisily under a hot sun on the Country Club's polo field. Then he said it had been a "great tournament," and praised the gallery, the marshals and the greenkeepers.

His pretty little wife Virginia sat by him exuberantly.

She told a reporter she had not been among the thundering herd of spectators that followed him over the last three holes.

"That six on the fifteenth hole upset me a bit," she reported. "I just went over to the eighteenth green and waited for them to come in."

That's Life, Sam.

Sam Snead, who lost the gunsight on his putter when the heat was on yesterday, told the crowd, "Yesterday I was a hero—today I'm a bum. I'll be out trying again next year."

Littlefield handed Samuel D. Conant, tournament general chairman for the Country Club, an engraved certificate of thanks from the Golf Association's Executive Committee.

An immense throng followed the playoff, trampling down the tall grass in the rough until it cast hardly a shadow of its former self, and leaving bottles and other debris strewn over the course.

The gallery was five and six persons deep around every green, and stretched off down the sides of the fairways almost from tee to green. A few persons climbed convenient trees to get a look at the putts. Many others gave up and went on to the next hole to plant themselves firmly in a strategic spot.

Hi, Yo, Silver.

When the heat or the mileage became too much, a few watchers stretched out comfortably under the trees dotting the course, gathering strength to catch up with the match later. Many spectators looked enviously at a girl who followed the match on horseback.

Every good shot was applauded vigorously and frequently the experts' only clue of the caliber of their sharp-shooting was the cheering from the crowd screening the golfers' view of their own shots.

The sweating marshals, swearing under their breaths, shouted themselves hoarse in futile efforts to restrain the crowd and keep it behind ropes. On each green, the gallery lining the fairway dove headlong to form an arc in front of the carpet as soon as the last star had swung his club.

The throng advanced on the eighteenth green so precipitously Saturday that Francis Ouimet championship committee chairman for the august U. S. G. A., who had been standing on top of the bunker in front of the green, skidded down the bunker on his hands, apparently in mortal fear of being trampled to death.

Policemen followed the playoff yesterday to add the authority of their blue uniforms to the effort to keep the crowd back, and shoulder a path for the players and officials through the eager watchers.

A Roar, a Putt, a Dog.

After Worsham and Snead had made their approach shots on the eighteenth, there was prolonged applause when the two experts emerged from the screening bunker and stepped on the green, but it didn't hold a candle to the deafening roar which went up when Snead missed his putt.

When Worsham canned his putt, the green was jammed with excited spectators who ignored the officials and rushed down to congratulate him. Lew elbowed his way through the milling mob to the scorers' tent and then made his way back to the clubhouse, signing autographs all the way.

A black and white cocker spaniel, which had been voicing its disapproval of the proceedings with loud yaps on several holes, suddenly dashed for Worsham's ball laying on the apron before Lew made his chip shot on the blue-chip hole.

The crowd yelled warnings to the marshals on the green, and roared with relief when the dog was diverted.

Joseph C. Dey Jr., U.S.G.A. executive secretary, was asked what would have happened if the dog had picked up the ball. "That's easy," he laughed. "Shoot the dog and drop the ball."

$200 for Caddy Who Toted New Champ's Clubs

By James A. Kearns Jr.

The smile of Charles (Chuck) Crane broadened when Champion Lew Worsham handed him a check for $200 in the locker room of the St. Louis Country Club yesterday after the playoff of the United States Open golf championship.

Crane, seeing Worsham writing out the check, said: "Make it easy on yourself; it's been more than a pleasure to caddy for you."

He gave the new champion the lucky No. 77, which he had been clutching for an hour since the end of play, and asked Worsham to autograph it with "best regards to Mike and Marilyn," Crane's two children.

Then the 33-year-old caddy from Granite City walked outside to do some autographing himself for the younger folks, who thought it was no small feat to be a caddy for a golf champion.

Can Use the Money.

Crane also sought out his wife, Ruth Mae, who watched the playoff. They said they could make use of the $200, since Chuck has not been working at his job at the Granite City Steel Co. because of a work stoppage.

Other caddies fared well, too. Charles Mach, 16 years old, who carried Sam Snead's clubs, got $100. Bill Craden, substitute caddy for Ben Hogan, who tied for sixth, received $60 and 71 golf balls.

The caddies who worked in the tournament were paid $33 for the week's work, in addition to any tips they received.

Almost Missed Out.

Fred Bett, the caddy master, said that Crane almost missed being a caddy. Crane had come to the caddy house more than a week ago and inquired if his name was on the list for the tournament.

Bett, checking under the name of the club through which Crane said his name was submitted, said he was not listed. The caddy showed up last week, but was stopped at the gate. The guard called Bett, who said the young man was not to be admitted. Crane pleaded, insisting he was to work. Finally, it was discovered he had his affiliations confused and his name was found listed under another club.

Incidentally the caddies, who predicted at the start of the championship that a "dark horse" would win, hit the nail on the head.

District Golf Entries Close On Thursday

Jim Benson, secretary of the St. Louis District Golf Association, announced today that entries for the twenty-eighth annual district amateur championship will close Thursday.

The tournament, in which Bob Cochran of Meadow Brook is expected to defend his title, will be played at Westwood Country Club, June 24-28.

Thirty-six holes of qualifying play are scheduled with the first round a week from tomorrow and the second round the following day. Two rounds of match play will follow on June 26, another two rounds on Friday and the 36-hole final will be played Saturday.

Practice at Westwood will be permitted entrants on June 23. Because of limited facilities at the club, where in 1943 a fire destroyed a large part of the buildings, players in the district tournament will be expected to dress before they arrive for play.

85 to Tee Off In Trans-Miss.

WICHITA, Kan., June 16 (AP)—The week-long Trans-Mississippi golf tournament gets underway today, but Skee Riegel, the defending champion, won't be among those present. The Californian decided not to defend his title.

The entry list, as of last night, numbered 85 in the championship bracket and approximately 40 in the senior and president's flights. Play in the championship bracket will begin tomorrow.

Charlie (Chick) Evans, the veteran Chicago amateur, toured the Country Club course yesterday and reported it in "great condition." John Kraft of Denver, the 1942 Trans-Miss champion, also went over the 6740-yard course.

Pirates Get Wolff From Cleveland Club

PHILADELPHIA, June 16 (AP)—Roger Wolff, 34-year-old knuckleball pitcher obtained by the Cleveland Indians from the Washington Senators in a trade for George Case, yesterday was sold to the Pittsburgh Pirates, Tribe officials reported.

The price of the purchase of Wolff, who was credited with no victories or defeats during 16 innings of pitching this season, was reported at about $10,000, the waiver figure.

The 25-year-old Rykovich, left fielder on the Illini ball club that will play for the eastern N. C. A. A. championship this weekend at Yale, said he would withhold signing the pro gridiron contract until the close of the baseball season. And WALDIE ROETTGER, former Cardinal who coaches the Illinois nine, said, "I'm not thinking of Rykovich's eligibility to finish the baseball season until it's questioned."

Cardinals, Fat After Feast on Bums, Take On Phillies and Giants Next

Pollet Gains Third Victory of Season Over Brooklyn, 11-3

By Bob Broeg

The Cardinals declared war on the National League over the weekend and began a drive that, despite the late start, could lead to an early enemy surrender to Col. Eddie Dyer and his Redbird regulars.

There will be other losses along the way, naturally, but with only one third of the season completed and 102 games to go, the reawakened world champions still could make this a reasonable facsimile of the runaway race expected in preseason predictions. A four-game series sweep — over Brooklyn, too—has had that kind of intoxicating effect on the Cardinals before.

Just last July, you'll remember, the Dodgers were leading by seven games when they came to town in time for four straight beatings that raised the Redbirds back into the pennant picture. And while this time an end to a similar rout of the Bums from Flatbush still left six games and five clubs between the Cardinals and a successful defense of their championship, Dyer's athletes indicated that they could take the league apart in a couple of weeks.

More Tests at Hand.

Of course, there is the unhappy possibility that only the uniform of the Dodgers, with whom they have waged hand-to-hand warfare for three titles in the last five years, stirred the Redbirds from second-division baseball that, it seemed, would never end. So the next two series, with Philadelphia and New York, will be extremely important — to discover whether that revival was tantalizingly temporary or pleasantly permanent.

The Phillies, with whom they exchanged dusters and defeats in a four-game series that could have led to doubled fists last week, will begin a set of three contests here tonight. And then, following an open date Thursday, the Cardinals will attempt to hand the powerful Giants, their conquerors six consecutive times, a lost week end like the one that sent Brooklyn reeling out of town.

The Dodgers arrived in second place, just a game out of first, and highly regarded as the team to beat. But 31 St. Louis runs and 51 local hits later, Brooklyn was tight-rope walking on the fringe of the second division. And the Cardinals were on their longest winning streak of the season.

Yesterday the Redbirds lowered the boom again, 11 to 3, and the year's largest crowd here—29,686—seemed to enjoy the 17-hit slaughter no end. Marty Marion cracked out three singles, six other Cardinals contributed two safeties, and of four doubles the most noteworthy was Capt. Terry Moore's base-clearing clout with three men on in the second inning.

The series represented a batting bonanza for the Redbirds, last in team hitting. Those 51 hits were good for 77 bases, and the 31 runs were more than the club had totaled in nine previous games. And, if you want an idea of the effectiveness of the Cardinals' pitchers, the St. Louis tallies equaled the combined opposition's scoring in the last 11 contests. The Dodgers, you know, got only eight runs and 26 hits in the 36 innings—and 25 Bums struck out.

Schoendienst Looks Up.

Yes, statistics can be fun when they're favorable, particularly when they tell something about slumping players. In the four Brooklyn games Red Schoendienst, having trouble staying over .200, banged out nine hits. Marty Marion, 'way down low, too, had seven. Ron Northey, whose average was falling because well-hit balls weren't, blasted five blows that included two home runs. And Stanley Frank Musial, the National League batting champion, batted a beautiful .500.

Mr. Musial, whose .365 a year ago would go so well with Enos Slaughter's current .359, boosted to .225 a microscopic mark that, like the Cardinals, probably will keep going up. Of his seven hits one was a homer, another a triple, a third a single that almost dented the right field concrete. And, as they say on the bench, other line drives were singing as they scorched into someone's hands.

If that offensive outburst weren't enough cause for joy, the fifth consecutive complete game hurled by a member of Colonel Dyer's pitching staff was Howard Pollet's seven-hitter. The club's No. 1 pitcher of '46 walked six batters, but he also fanned six. He held the Dodgers to two hits until the eighth and then, tired from first-class running by which he broke up two potential Brooklyn double plays, the lefthander wilted a bit.

However, as usual, Pollet had enough to beat Brooklyn for the third time this season, the eighth in two years. Everything is bound to be all right when the southpaw goes against the Dodgers—everything, that is, except for Flatbush.

Against the seventh-place Phillies tonight big Jim (2-3) Hearn, a most promising righthander, probably will draw Philadelphia's lefthanded Ken (3-1) Heintzelman.

The Brooklyn series attracted 90,487 cash customers, transit strike or no. The Cardinals, drawing at a pace that would exceed one million again, now have played to 351,762 persons in 26 home games. And that attendance is more than the Redbirds drew here for the entire seasons of 1932, '33, '34 (the year of the Gashouse Gang), '38 and '40.

Dyer reported that Dr. Robert F. Hyland had given Pollet a clean bill of health in an examination of the pitcher's arm and the back that was injured late last year.

Dixie Walker was out with a swollen left hand, and it was reported that the Dodgers' other key player, Pete Reiser, who recently crashed into a fence, would be sent to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore for a check-up.

Persons holding reserved seats for Cardinal games and prevented from using them because of the transit trouble may exchange those tickets for others to any future games, the Redbirds' management announced.

Hardluck Reiser Is Hurt Again

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—Everything happens to Pete Reiser.

The Brooklyn Dodgers' battered outfielder, who recently suffered a head concussion in a collision with an Ebetts Field wall, was standing in the outfield today during batting practice, minding his own business, when Pitcher Clyde King caught a fly ball on the run, bounced into Carl Furillo and spun into Reiser.

Furillo, who saw King coming, was merely side-swiped. Reiser took the impact and went down badly shaken.

Batting practice was halted and Dodgers raced out to the prostrate Reiser in short left field. Somebody hollered for a stretcher but Reiser got up and walked off the field under his own power with his pal, Pee Wee Reese, at his side.

Trainer "Doc" Wendler said Reiser's pulse was normal. That didn't go for Manager Burt Shotton whose Dodgers lost five straight with Pete out of the lineup.

followed Lew around the course. Virgil said he thought Lew was in pretty bad shape when he left the fifteenth hole two strokes down with only three holes to go.

"But when his ball hit the cup at No. 18 and stopped there, I was sure he was in. Of course, I felt he might get a tie after 15, but I didn't believe he could win it.

Lew, of course, will go directly to Detroit for the P.G.A. championships.

Winn's Condition Good.

CHICAGO, June 16. (AP)—Physicians at St. Luke's Hospital yesterday described as "very good" the condition of Col. Matt J. Winn, 85-year-old nationally known turfman.

Winn, Kentucky Derby impressario since 1902, was taken to the hospital from his hotel suite Friday night suffering from a cold and fever. The hospital said he had spent "a restful night" and probably would return to his hotel in "a couple of days."

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Golf Dud Goes Off With a Bang

AFTER having for years been the dud of the American golf realm, St. Louis has suddenly come to life with a bang. . . . Fred Dowd, now president of the St. Louis District Golf Association touched off the explosion when he brought here the Western Open Champions last fall.

Last week Sam Conant and his associates of the St. Louis Country Club, detonated another major bang, by putting on the U.S.G.A. open, a show that in every way functioned in major league fashion.

Next year and later, President Dowd tells us, we're going in for other tournaments. . . . Perhaps the Professional Golfers Association championship, or maybe it will be the national amateur next. But having made St. Louis golf-minded again, Dowd and the busy members of the District Association plan to have big shows here annually.

THE National Amateur was held here in 1921, over the same links as the National Open—the St. Louis Country Club. . . . Some of the men who played in the amateur tourney of 26 years ago were on hand at the recent National Open—Willie Hunter and Tommy Armour, for example.

Once on a time the amateurs occupied the spotlight, to the partial eclipse of the pros. . . . That's all reversed now. . . . The amateurs of late years—let's say since Bobby Jones's star set—have been a little on the side-show order, rather than the big tent, because of the rise in the heavy sugar character of their prizes and the superior playing of the professionals. . . . We hope to see the amateurs regain some of their waning prestige, if and when the National Amateur tourney is played here again.

What Happened to The Open Favorites?

THE big three of pre-tournament betting on the open (Hogan, Demarat and Locke) held up pretty well, but all missed the big money boat. . . . Demaret even missed the prize money altogether, finishing with a 300—the same as Gene Sarazen. . . . The South Africa attraction, Bobby Locke, tied with Oliver and each received a check for $900 — nice expense money in any case. Hogan tied with five others for the sixth prize. . . . So the 3 to 1 odds laid against them considered shorter than Mammy's pie crust, turned out to be very abbreviated.

The Springbok kid from Johannesburg has really done well on his hurry-up visit to this country. . . . Since his plane landed from South Africa April 1, he has picked up more than $9000 in winning four tournaments and placing in others. . . . Quite a feat for a hitherto little-known player to hop right up to the throne and look considerably like a king occupying it. . . .

Locke goes to England for the British open, held on July 4 and then he flies back to Canada for the Canadian open, in mid July.

Short Holes Stopped Prize-Money Winners.

THE five short holes at Country Club continued to spike the big guns, in the 36-hole play Saturday, just as they had in the first two rounds of 18 holes . . . The first 12 prize-money winners, all had plenty trouble and the playoff winner Worsham particularly suffered . . . In the double round Saturday he finished four over par, on the five-hole total!

Here are some interesting figures showing that sub-par golf play to be almost impossible in an extended tournament, on the short holes:

Oliver, with one under the total par of 36 for the double-round of five short holes, was the only player of the first 13 to whip par!

The others finished over par on their double round totals for the little holes like this: Snead, Locke and Ferrier, one stroke over . . . Ward, Ghezzi and Runyan two strokes over . . . Palmer, three, and Gibson and Harbert, in addition to Worsham, were four strokes down to par.

Again Hole No. 2, that terrible 233-yard affair which looks so nice and easy-like at first sight, was the big bugbear, with eight of the 12 players being over par and not a single one below. . . . On Number 7 five players were over on the double round, six were par and one was under . . . On all five holes players were sub-par on only four occasions . . . Twice they beat No. 3 and one each beat Holes 7 and 12.

Lane Upholds Protest Of Play in Association

COLUMBUS, O., June 16 (AP)—American Association President Frank C. Lane today allowed a protest by Indianapolis of a game with Kansas City June 7, ordering the contest resumed at the point of a disputed incident.

The Indians protested over one of their base runners being tagged and called "out" as he writhed in pain a few feet off second base after being struck by a thrown ball.

The score was tied, 2 to 2, in the last of the sixth inning. Kansas City went on to score five more runs and win, 7 to 2.

Hunters Said They'd Eat Crows They Shot, but Sissies Didn't

GRAND RAPIDS, O., June 16 (AP)—Members of the American Crow Shooting Association turned out today to be a bunch of gastronomic sissies.

They had announced after the ninth annual national crow shoot yesterday they would eat the crows for breakfast. But upon assembling at the breakfast table they all ordered ham and eggs.

Mike Anderson, 40, of Napoleon, O., was awarded the trophy as national crow-hunting champion.

Anderson confided to fellow crow hunters that he didn't think the 13 dead crows he turned in would win the title. Weather conditions were bad, he explained, and as an old crow hunter he was accustomed to knocking 'em down by the hundreds.

Ed Mergard, 35, Cincinnati, was awarded a trophy as runner-up in the title shoot. Mergard also shot down 13 crows, but he scored one point less than Anderson in a pre-shoot test on crow habits. So in the final scoring, Anderson had 745 points against Mergard's 744.

Dr. Blaine E. Talbut of Whitehouse, O., was re-elected president of the association. Also re-elected were Leo M. Fox of Toledo, secretary, and James W. Stuber of Vandalia, O., official referee.

The Grand Rapids Sportsmen's Club invited the association to hold its shoot here again next year. The association decided, however, that it would take the event out of Ohio in 1948. The site will be decided upon next August.

Boston Fans Tag Murrell Jones "Merriwell" After His Debut

NEW YORK, June 16—His name is Murrell Jones but up in Boston the fans believe it should be "Merriwell" Jones.

For the big guy, who was acquired from the Chicago White Sox only last Saturday night in an even swap for Rudy York, got going for his new club like the fictional hero.

Playing his first game in a Red Sox uniform, the 26-year-old first baseman from Epps, La., smashed out a home run to help defeat his former mates 7-3. He did even better in the second game, belting a home run with the bases full with two out in the last half of the ninth inning to win for Boston 8-4. Earlier in the game, Jones had singled in two runs to give him a total of six RBI's for the game.

In the meantime the best York could do in his first day in a White Sox uniform was to get two singles in eight times at bat, both of his hits coming in the second game and having nothing to do with Chicago's scoring.

Jones's brilliant debut came as a surprise to Boston fans, since the former Navy fighter pilot had only .240 in 45 games with the White Sox. He appeared in only 24 games with Chicago last year after returning from service when a fractured left arm sidelined him for the season. In fact, so little did the White Sox think of his returning this season, that they did not even list him on their playing roster for the A. L. redbook, assigning Don Kolloway to the initial sack.

Red Sox Tie Tigers.

Jones's stickwork enabled veterans righthanders Tex Hughson and Joe Dobson to register their fourth and seventh victories, respectively and pitch the Red Sox into a second place tie with the Detroit Tigers. They trail the league-leading New York Yankees by one game.

Washington surprised the Tigers by taking both ends of a double header, 1-0 and 5-1, to knock the Bengals out of the league lead. Walter Masterson, fresh from his 16 scoreless innings against the White Sox last week, blanked the Tigers with eight hits in the opener to extend his string of scoreless innings to 25. Hal Newhouser, who beat the Nats five straight times last year, and shut them out in his only appearance against them this season, lost his first game to Washington since 1945. An infield tap by Eddie Yost, Newhouser's wild throw, a safe bunt and Stan Spence's infield out accounted for the only run.

The battering Boston Braves blasted eight Pittsburgh pitchers for 29 hits to swamp the Pirates 13-4 and 12-3 in both ends of their doubleheader and take over undisputed possession of first place in the National League. They lead the second-place New York Giants by six percentage points.

Lefthander Warren Spahn, helped by home runs by Sibbi Sisti, Bob Elliott and Connie Ryan in the opener, became the first major league pitcher to win 10 games. Johnny Sain gained his seventh win in the nightcap. The only bright spot for the last-place Pirates was the hitting of Ralph Kiner and Billy Cox. Each collected two home runs, Kiner's coming in the first game and Cox's in the second.

Mize Hits No. 17.

The Giants retained a slim two-point margin over the third-place Cubs by winning the second game of their doubleheader with the Reds in Cincinnati 9-1 after dropping the opener 4-3. Grady Hatton's fourth homer helped Johnny VanderMeer defeat Clint Hartung in the opener. Monte Kennedy, aided by Johnny Mize's seventeenth homer, easily gained his sixth win in the nightcap.

Schoolboy Rowe snapped a five-game winning streak of the Chicago Cubs in pitching a 6-1 victory for the Philadelphia Phillies. Rowe did not walk a man, making it the fifth time this season that the veteran righthander has not issued a pass. He also singled twice and drove in two runs as he registered his eighth win against one loss.

After losing the opener to Cleveland 5-2, the Philadelphia Athletics got an even break when they came from behind with three runs in the eighth to win the nightcap, 6-4.

Hank Lauman Outbowls Sottrel, 8414 to 7428

Hank Lauman defeated Chris Sottrell last night, 2036 to 1824, to win the final block of the 40-game total pins-to-count title series and successfully defend his St. Louis match game bowling title.

Lauman finished with a total of 8414 for the series and Sottrel downed 7428 pins. Lauman's average for the match was 210.14, Sottrel's 185.28.

At Mueller's Recreation, where the first half of the series was played, Lauman won 14 of the 20 games and at the Del-Mar Lanes he was victorious in 18 of 20 games.

It Was Perfect Day—for Worsham

WHEN Lew Worsham, the new U. S. Open king, and Sam Snead met at the polo ground practice field before their 18-hole playoff began yesterday, Snead said:

"Good morning, Lew. Nice day.

"Perfect," replied Worsham.

Slaughter Tops N. L. Players in All-Star Poll

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—Latest returns in the poll to name the starting lineups for the annual major league all-star baseball game indicate that the National League will have four repeaters from last year's starting lineup, while the American League will have only one.

Ted Williams, Boston left fielder, is the only American Leaguer from last year's starting crew to be leading this year's poll. In the National League, Dixie Walker of Brooklyn, Whitey Kurowski of St. Louis, Johnny Mize of New York and Walker Cooper of New York, starters last year, are leading in the voting for their positions.

Other leaders include Joe Gordon of Cleveland and Buddy Rosar of Philadelphia who played in last year's game, but did not start for the American Leaguers, and Emil Verban of Philadelphia and Enos Slaughter of St. Louis, who appeared in the 1946 National League box score, but were not in the starting lineup. Slaughter, with 51,183 votes, tops all National Leaguers.

Balloting for this year's team ends June 26, and those highest in the poll will start the game. The manager for each league will name his own pitchers. The game will be played July 8 in Wrigley Field, Chicago.

Belleville Is Winner In DeMolay Meet

Belleville won the Greater St. Louis De Molay track and field meet yesterday at Maplewood High School, gathering 62 points and out-scoring its nearest rival by 23½ points.

However, Jerseyville, which finished second with 38½ points, had the honor of having on its team the only athlete to break a record. W. Jewsbury finished the 880-yard run in 2m. 14.5s to smash the old mark of 2m. 15.6s. set in 1942 by M. Speer of Granite City.

Maplewood came in third with 38; Sentinel, fourth, 31; Granite City, fifth, 30; Kirkwood, sixth, 29½; Carondelet, seventh, 27, and Rabbin eighth with nine points.

Worsham Rallies To Defeat Snead In Open Playoff

all over himself instead of keeping the sand between the club head and the ball, and finally bogeyed it for a six. Snead was two strokes to the good.

But then it happened. While the bob white whistled over the hill far away and the gallery gathered silently to watch him make his bid on the sixteenth green, Worsham stepped up and made a 25-foot putt to clip a stroke off Snead's lead.

And on No. 17 while Snead missed the green and twice had to get out of rough on that par four hole, Worsham hit his second shot from the eighteenth fairway onto the seventeenth green and was down in two putts, a par that beat Snead's five. Snead missed an eight-foot putt that could have saved him.

Then came the eighteenth where both reached the green, Worsham on the back fringe and the terrible blow that befell Slammin' Sam.

With the victory, Worsham, who was a dark horse to the public, but a 6 to 1 shot to the bettors and highly respected in the craft, added to his money earnings so that now he is in sixth place for the year. He had been in eleventh place.

Thus was finished the year's great pressure competition in golf, which had seen favorites Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret and South African Bobby Locke all bow to sluggers Snead and Worsham.

All that was left was to give the Country Club back to the Country Club.

Snead's Strategy Fizzled On Last Hole, He Relates

Sam Snead didn't go after his first putt on the eighteenth green with the idea of making it, he told a friend. He tried to play it safely, so that he'd be sure to get his four. Or if he made it at all, the ball would trickle into the hole.

Snead told Billy Wetmore, a former Harvard quarterback and a close friend, "I hit the putt so that I would be short and be sure for my four if it missed. Then I would throw the whole thing into a second 18-hole round in the afternoon, counting upon by ability to play a long time and put the old experience to work.

"You know that if I had gone after it and missed, I would have been over the hole and not short."

Guldahl Right, Record Stands.

The last three holes, which Worsham won from Snead to gain the Open title, were the three which necessitated a playoff because they cost Lew strokes Saturday.

And the eighteenth green, where Snead lost the playoff, was the hole which he birdied to tie Worsham at the end of the regulation 72 holes with a score of 282.

By the way, that leaves Ralph Guldahl still holding the record of 281 and vindicates Ralph's prediction when he arrived here that he didn't think anyone would beat his record at St. Louis Country Club.

There were a lot of red faces before the event was over because many of those players who were predicting that the course would be burned up, guessing scores as low as 276, didn't even qualify for the last two rounds of play.

Galleries lifted their eyebrows when Snead took a six on the par four sixth hole. The duffers got some consolation out of it, seeing a fine player like Sam do just what they had done on occasion.

Saved by a Fan.

Worsham got two breaks when it came to hitting spectators. His drive at the fourth hole was headed for a trap to the right but smacked a fan and bounced onto the fairway.

At No. 9 Lew, from a fine lie in the fairway, pulled his second shot far to the left, and it hit a spectator sitting at the left of the green. The fact that it hit something kept the ball from going deep into the evergreens and saved a stroke or two. Worsham got a birdie four there on the par five hole.

The little black and white cocker spaniel, so conspicuous about the course Saturday, galloped gaily about yesterday, too. And a shrilly barking dog at No. 13 cut through the tense atmosphere.

In and Out of the Traps.

Harry Todd, Dallas professional, one of the leaders in the first round, was just a galleryite, and nearly slipped into a trap at No. 15.

"Just can't stay out of these traps around here," he remarked.

Betting odds, which established Snead the favorite at about 6 to 5 after a playoff was certain Saturday, shifted a little later and one good wager at 6½ to 5 was placed on Snead to win.

Squeeze Play Goes Awry and Brownies Lose Two to Yanks

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 16—The Browns were happy to have vacated the home of the Yankees today, regardless of what might be forthcoming from the Red Sox, whom they meet here in a three-game series beginning tomorrow.

Everything went wrong for Muddy Ruel's men, while they were attempting to deal with the New Yorkers. First, Vern Stephens suffered a sprained right wrist when he was hit by a batting practice pitch prior to Friday night's contest. Then Ruel's pitching staff, which had held up admirably for almost three weeks, suddenly collapsed, permitting the Yankees one third as many runs in two games as had been scored against the Browns in their previous 20 contests.

And, as if to crown the first stop on their second eastern trip as a complete loss, they were the victims of an unassisted double play by a catcher——one of the rarest of all occurrences—which cut off a ninth-inning rally in yesterday's nightcap. Before the unusual play occurred—it had not cropped up since 1941—the Browns seemed well on their way toward salvaging the second game after dropping the curtain raiser 10-4.

Strange Play.

The Ruelmen came to bat, trailing 2-1, in the ninth frame, with Randy Gumpert in quest of his first triumph of the year.

Jeff Heath, most dangerous Brownie hitter during the four-game set, drew a base on balls and raced to third when Walt Judnich rifled a solid single to right center field. This brought the dangerous Johnny Berardino to the plate, with Billy Hitchcock and Johnny Moss scheduled to follow.

At this point Ruel made what turned out to be a fatal mistake. Instead of playing for a long fly, which would have scored the tying run, or for a hit, which would have kept the rally boiling, he flashed the sign for the squeeze play.

Berardino's bunt stopped dead directly in front of the plate and Berra was on top of it in a flash. He tagged Berardino, who had not time to take a step and was standing directly in Heath's path as the left fielder came rumbling down the line toward the plate. Jeff never had a chance. He was committed to the play and his only hope was that Berra would drop the ball and he would be safe. Berra didn't. Heath wasn't.

It was a freak play, one which has occurred only fourteen times in the modern history of the game and which had not cropped up since 1941, when Billy Dickey, also of the Yankees came up with an unassisted double play. The Browns were the victims on that occasion, too.

Happens to Muncrief.

The play sealed the fate of Bob Muncrief, who was tagged with his sixth defeat of the season, despite a neat seven-hit pitching performance.

It also insured the Browns their third consecutive loss, and buried them two games deeper in the American League cellar. Washington, by taking two games from the Tigers, helped the Yankees vault into first place and knocked the Bengals into a second-place tie with the Red Sox.

Their attack, the main cause of most of their troubles this season, remained impotent during the Yankee series and was hobbled more than usual by the loss of Stephens. Vern took batting practice before yesterday's doubleheader, but may not be able to get back into the lineup until Friday.

Heath's five hits in eleven trips during the set, lifted his batting average to an even .300. Jeff drove in six of the Browns' thirteen runs in four games and cracked two home runs.

Second-Guessers.

Manager Ruel opened the way for much second-guessing of his strategy. He left Jack Kramer in for six frames in the first game, during which time the Yankees tallied all 10 of their runs. This despite the fact that Spud Chandler obviously was not in good form and might have been knocked out of the box by a solid hit on two or three occasions.

The big second guess, however, was in connection with Muddy's decision to use the squeeze play in the ninth inning of the night-cap, instead of letting Johnny Berardino hit away.

55,691 paying customers attended the first Yankee Sunday doubleheader of the season, raising the Yankees' home attendance total to 732,734. . . . The outstanding fielding play of the day was Paul Lehner's tumbling catch of Aaron Robinson's looping fly toward right center field in the second inning of the first game.

Kramer's loss was his fourth of the season, compared with five wins; Muncrief's his sixth against five victories. . . . The four runs tallied by the Browns represented the highest number of runs scored off Chandler in one game since April 15, when the Athletics made six. Chandler's earned-run average went from 1.98 to 2.17 as a result.

Bob Dillinger stole his fifteenth base in the third of the opener, but lost face by being charged with two miscues.

Editor's Note — Muddy Ruel's strategy in trying a squeeze play in the second game at New York is good practice in the major leagues. With runners on first and third, none out and one run needed to tie, the plan was to squeeze a run home and advance a runner to second on a single out. It was a case of playing not only to tie, but to win.

Greenbriar Record Tied.

Jimmy Jackson with a 31-32 for a 63 tied the course record for Greenbriar Country Club yesterday to join Frank and Jim Fogertey and Johnny Bulla all of whom had that score on the course.

Hot Dogs Proved Popular—25,000 Sold at Tourney

HOT dogs were popular with the crowd that followed the big-time golfers around the St. Louis Country Club course in the open championship.

There were 25,000 sandwiches of this kind and 1000 hamburgers sold at the concession stands during the four-day period. The hot sun helped the sale of 5000 ice cream bars, 1275 cases of soda and 650 cases of beer. Ten cases of whisky went over the counter as high balls.

Whitelaw T. Terry, chairman of the House committee, said 6000 lunches were served to guests and employes at the club.

Sales of "season" tickets, which admitted the bearer each day of tournament play, totaled 3800. These cost $8.50 apiece.

Hispanos and Ponta Delgada In Eastern Final of Soccer Cup Series

Semifinals Are Decided In Overtime

BROOKLYN, June 16 (AP)—Brooklyn's Hispanos reached the national challenge cup soccer final in the eastern division yesterday by defeating the New York Americans, 5-1, in a game forced into overtime.

The Americans went into the second contest of the two-game, total goal series with a 4-1 advantage. The Hispanos led by the same score at the end of regulation time yesterday, necessitating an extra period to decide the issue.

Manager Frank Fernandez tallied the winning goal for Brooklyn at 11 minutes of the overtime session.

In the finals, starting next Sunday, the Hispanos will meet Ponta Delgada at Fall River, Mass.

Ponta Delgada defeated the Philadelphia Americans, 5 to 3, in overtime match at Trenton, N. J., yesterday to gain the finals.

Philadelphia took a 3-2 lead with four minutes to go and Ponta Delgadas knotted the score on a penalty kick in the final minute of regulation time.

Ponta Delgadas dominated overtime play with a penalty score and another goal.

Sparta Western Champion.

CHICAGO, June 16 (UP)—Sparta won the National Western Open soccer championship for the sixth time yesterday by defeating the Curry's of Pittsburgh, 4 to 1.

Thet Sparta's defeated the Curry's in the first of the two-game series for the championship last week, 4 to 2. Yesterday's game made the total score 8 to 3 for the Sparta.

Hapoel Wins on Penalty.

DETROIT, June 16 (AP)—Abraham Palman, center forward on the touring Hapoel soccer/team of Palestine, whipped in a final period penalty kick before 10,000 fans here yesterday, hanging a 1 to 0 defeat on the North American All-Stars.

The All-Stars dominated the play in the first period and were kept from scoring only by the steller performance of Merin Aron in the nets.

Hapoel survived the assault and brought a short passing game into play in the last period, threatening constantly against a weary North American combination composed of players from the Detroit Pioneers, the new Detroiters football club and the Toronto Greenbacks.

Mid-way in the final period, Palman made good on the penalty kick.

Finnish Runner Sets New Mark For 15 Miles

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—A new American record for the 15-mile run belonged today to Finland's Mikko Heitanan, the European marathon champion, who stepped the distance in one hour, 21 minutes and 45.3 seconds here yesterday in a race sponsored by the Finnish-American Athletic Club.

Hietanan, who finished second in the Boston marathon last April, bettered the previous mark of one hour, 23 minutes and 24.2 seconds, set by Charles Pores of New York, which had stood since 1919.

He defeated his closest rival by a mile and a quarter, completely dominating the race on the four-laps-to-the-mile oval at Van Cortlandt Park.

Vaino Muinonen, another Finnish runner, was second, 300 yards ahead of Louis White of New York's pioneer club. Of the 22 starters, 17 finished the race.

Hietanan will return to Finland late this month, accompanied by Muinonen, to prepare for the defense of his title in the European marathon championships scheduled in August.

Three Killed, Six Injured In Speedway Race Accidents

By the Associated Press.

Speedway automobile racing claimed three lives and injured six men on widely separated track yesterday. In two cases, wives of the ill-fated drivers witnessed the fatal crashes.

The wife and three children of 45-year-old Elbert "Grandpappy" Booker watched his machine smash into a wall in the first event at the Dayton (O.) speedway. He died enroute to a hospital.

At Greenfield, Ind., Alfred J. Cobb, 38, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was killed on the new half-mile dirt oval called Leary's Track when his machine collided with another. Cobb's wife was in the stands at the time.

The third fatality occurred at Owego, N. Y., where Alva Barnes, 38, of Conklin, N. Y., drove into another spinning racer and was struck in turn by a third machine. He died shortly thereafter in a hospital.

Six other auto racers were injured.

Also at Owego's Shangri-La Speedway, scene of the Barnes accident, Cecil "Flash" Murray, 36, Binghamton, suffered a broken collar bone when his car overturned as he attempted to squeeze between the fence and a machine ahead.

At Hatfield, Pa., Harry Gessel, Camden, N. J., suffered a concussion in a collision with Eddie Kulp, Horsham, Pa., who received chin lacerations. George Rutty, Philadelphia, also suffered a concussion when he went through an infield fence during time trials. Harry Hart, Denver, Colo., overturned in another event and fractured his collarbone.

Frank Luptko, Detroit, suffered three fractures of his right arm in a wreck at Playground Park auto race track in South Bend, Ind.

Roll, Roll, Roll.

BUENOS AIRES, June 16 (UP)—Alicia Novo, 10-year-old Argentine roller skater, today claimed a new world's endurance record of 38 hours, 26 minutes. Her mark, set yesterday, bettered by 114 minutes the record established last week by 14-year-old Angelina Ceccato.

TRUMAN NAMES BOARD FOR AIR SAFETY INQUIRY

Control in Washington cleared him to proceed to the Herndon Marker (a radio marker familiar to all airline pilots in this section) where he was to hold or wait by circling. A.T.C. further informed him that because of traffic congestion in the Washington area he could not expect clearance into the Washington airport before 7:20 p.m.

At that time the ceiling in Washington was 700 feet and visibility was four miles. Over Martinsburg, W. Va., about that time, the ceiling was 2500 feet and visibility three miles.

The pilot acknowledged the message about proceeding to Herndon, and three minutes later asked if he could come in "on contact" (that is, within sight of the ground) on the right hand side of the Arcola range. (The Arcola range is fairly new and parallels the Herndon range about 10 miles to the south. It was installed to relieve traffic congestion.)

Washington told him he was cleared to use the Arcola range if he could fly contact at 2500 feet or less, adding that he was cleared to come straight into the airport if he could do that.

The plane captain acknowledged that message at 6:03 p.m. and acknowledged again when he was told to report every time he left a 1000-foot level.

List of Pilot's Messages.

The pilot reported at 6:05 p.m. that he was leaving 7000 feet. Two minutes later he reported leaving 6000 feet and at 6:08 p.m. he reported being over Martinsburg, W. Va. Almost immediately afterwards, he reported he was leaving 5000 feet. At 6:10 he reported leaving 4000 feet and at 6:13 p.m. he reported leaving 3000 feet.

Six minutes later, at 6:19 p.m., the Washington tower called and asked for information. It received no acknowledgment.

The average of four watches found in the wreckage indicated that the plane had crashed at 6:16 p.m. at a point about 1500 feet above sea level and 150 feet below the crest of the mountain.

Landis said preliminary investigation showed that the plane was in normal flying position with power on when it struck. All control surfaces have been accounted for and there is no indication that anything dropped off the plane before it struck. Visibility and ceiling were zero zero at that point at the time, with fog and light showers.

The board will hold its first meeting on the investigation tomorrow. Landis is a former dean of the Harvard University law school and a former chief of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Working with him will be Dr. Jerome Hunsaker, chairman of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics; Theodore P. Wright, Civil Aeronautics administrator; Milton W. Arnold, retired Air Forces brigadier general and vice president of the Air Transport Association, and H. B. Cox, a veteran air line pilot.

Congress Inquiry Earlier.

Congressional committees spent weeks earlier this year looking into the problem of air safety. Those House and Senate investigations, however, centered largely around bad weather landing aids, reflecting the pattern of a series of bad weather accidents in the closing months of 1946.

The three crashes of the last 18 days show no such pattern.

Electronic aids like GCA (the radar talk-down method known as ground control approach) which held Congress's attention could have had no effect on any of the last three mishaps.

Truman's Letter.

The text of Truman's letter follows:

"The development of our air transportation system has repeatedly been recognized as a matter of vital concern to our nation. One of the essential factors which can contribute greatly to the progress of our air transportation system, or can seriously hinder that progress, is the safety of our air transport operations. The public interest demands that every effort be made to obtain the highest degree of safety in those operations.

"I am deeply concerned about this subject, especially in view of the recent accidents to aircraft of our certified domestic air carriers. I have, therefore, determined that the whole problem of air transport safety in the United States should be carefully examined by a group of citizens representative of all those interests of our society to whom this safety is a matter of constant concern. Accordingly, I am appointing a special board of inquiry on air transport safety, and request you to serve as a member of that board.

"This board should study the pertinent data and information relating to the program of safety in air transportation and the factors, both mechanical and human, which enter into safe operation. It should study, among other things, the recent series of accidents to determine how the findings in relation thereto can be utilized to advance air safety. It should consider also the way in which new equipment, already predictable, must be keyed to mechanical aids and human capabilities.

Thet board should in its discretion avail itself of all information and data in any government department or agency, and to the extent feasible in any private agency or group which may have an interest in or contribute to the solution of this problem. In conducting its study the board is authorized to hold such public hearings as it may in its discretion determine to be desirable.

"The board should present for my consideration, as soon as possible, and from time to time, recommendation as to any action or measures which it would deem appropriate in order further to promote safety in air transportation. The board's findings will assist me in determining any further steps which should be taken by the executive branch of the government to assure the highest degree of safety, and to formulate proposals to the Congress for any necessary legislation. Any executive deparments and agencies concerned will of course give you every possible aid in this undertaking."

SENATE PASSES NEW PLAN FOR ENLISTMENTS IN ARMY

WASHINGTON, June 16 (UP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House legislation providing a new, permanent enlistment program for the Army. It permits enlistments for two, three, four, five or six years. Under present law, expiring July 1, enlistment terms run 18 months, two and three years.

The new plan would become effective on that date if enacted. If enlistments were falling off, the more popular two-year terms could be offered. The shorter periods could be barred if enlistments were satisfactory or too heavy.

RUSSIANS SET UP GERMAN COUNCIL TO RUN INDUSTRY

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

BERLIN, June 16 (AP) — The Russians have placed industry in their occupation zone of Germany under a German economic commission, invested with powers for uniform planning and direction in some respects akin to those given the German Economic Council recently established for the merged British-American zones of western Germany.

American observers here regarded the Russian action, announced with great fanfare over the weekend in the Soviet-controlled German press, as a Russian attempt to match the western powers' action.

The 54-member council in the west, which puts into the hands of Germans the greatest powers they have been granted during the occupation, was established to promote the economic revival of the merged zones—a merger from which the Russians still stand apart although repeatedly invited to join.

Since establishment of the western zones council was announced, the Russian-controlled press has made incessant propaganda attacks on it.

(David M. Nichol, Chicago Daily News - Post-Dispatch correspondent, reported yesterday that under Russian guidance the Eastern zone of Germany was "far ahead" of the Western zones. He speculated on whether the joint economic council set up for the American and British zones, now merged economically, would reverse this situation.)

The commission set up by the Russians is led by 11 economic and trade administrators of their zone and includes representatives of the Trade Unions and Farmers' Aid Associations.

A decree from Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, the Soviet military governor, said the new commission is to work with state ministers of the zone's laender (states) in control of industry, fuel and power, trade and supply.

Its function will be co-ordination and control, the order said, with the purpose of raising the economy of the Soviet occupation zone "through the responsibility, initiative and energy of democratic German organizations."

Through uniform planning and direction, with controls over supplies and production, Sokolovsky's directive said, the new organization should be able to increase interzonal trade as well as the internal economy of the zone.

(The United Press in a Washington dispatch, said American industrial leaders are lending the War Department some of their top high-salaried executives to aid in the economic rehabilitation of Germany. It mentioned Edward Berkfield, export manager of Wierton Steel Co., who is a special consultant to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany.)

NEAR-RECORD PRICE ON ANGUS STEERS AT THE STOCKYARDS

A dozen black Angus steers brought $29.50 a hundredweight at National Stockyards today, compared to the old OPA ceiling price of $17.90. Butchers saw little chance of a break in retail meat prices soon, in view of the livestock market. Hogs were 25 to 50 cents higher today.

Cattle prices generally were about 50 cents lower than last week, despite the near-record price paid for the Angus steers. These animals were sold by A. K. Rhompson of Ralls county, Mo., and stockyards officials said they were as well finished as any brought in for several months. The price paid for the steers was one of the highest since last October, when just after decontrol as much as $32.50 was paid for well-finished steers.

BABY'S LEG BROKEN IN FALL

Robert Boyer, 11-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Boyer, 2104A Waverly place, suffered a fractured right leg yesterday when he fell from a rear window in the Boyer home about 25 feet to the ground. He is in City Hospital.

Mrs. Boyer told police the baby, who had been sleeping with her on a bed next to the window, apparently managed to push out the screen covering the window. A neighbor heard the baby fall, and notified his mother.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The population of Washington's metropolitan area has jumped to 1,200,000, the Census Bureau reported today. This is an increase of one-third in the last seven years and double the figure for 1930. The area includes, in addition to the District of Columbia, parts of Montgomery and Prince Georges counties, Maryland, and in Virginia the city of Alexandria, Arlington county and part of Fairfax county.

REPORT ON FINLAND

Nation 'Practically Socialized By Taxes'; Inflation Has Forced Finns to Reduce Living Standard

Acute Housing Shortage Has Brought Doubling Up Distasteful to Independent People—Food Index Is 665 Against 100 in Base Year of 1935.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

A Foreign Correspondent of the Chicago Daily News and Post-Dispatch.

HELSINKI, June 16.

THE Finnish Communists want to socialize all business enterprises whose share capital is 50,000,000 Finn marks or more (there are 136 marks to the dollar). This would hit most of the companies in Finland.

However, as one Finn told me, "we're practically socialized already by taxes." For example, the Helsingin Sanomat, leading independent daily with a circulation of 160,000, made 30 million Finn marks profit last year. It was able to pay only 500,000 marks dividends to its shareholders. Almost all the rest went in taxes.

I asked the Finns if this was a discriminatory tax. They said, "No, it's just that the state needs so much money now to pay the reparations bill." One of them added, deadpan, "And to finance the inflation."

There are probably not more than half a dozen millionaires in Finland, in the American sense, and no great salaries. Not more than 100 persons in the country have a salary of a million marks—not even the president of the Bank of Finland. This is only $7352. The tax on this salary runs to 60 per cent.

On the cost of living index, taxes in April of 1947 were 779 compared to 100 in 1935.

Cut in Living Standard.

The average Finn has had no choice but to reduce his standard of living. Officially, the Finn mark is valued at about one-fifth what it was before the war. "Actually," one executive told me, "it's about one-tenth."

A prominent authority on finance described the inflation this way: "Bank deposits are up but the purchasing power of them is down. After the last war we stabilized our currency at one-eleventh of its prewar value. Now the Finn mark is almost down to one-tenth of its 1939 value. If we can stabilize at one-eleventh, this time, we will be very lucky."

I asked him whether the average Finnish family earned enough to pay for its essential food, housing and clothes or whether it had to go short or dig into savings.

He said: "The working class here had relatively small savings and didn't have capital assets or goods it could change to money values. So any working family which doesn't have enough money simply has to lower its standard of living."

Cramped Living Space.

In Finland, I learned, a man's home is no longer his castle. This is very distasteful to the Finns who are an independent people. Even the Finnish Communists hate it.

They have had to double up in a drastic manner to meet the housing crisis that has been worsened by the influx of Karelians whose homeland was turned over to the Russians.

This applies not just to the workers but to the wealthy in their swank apartment buildings. In one apartment I saw the name cards of three different families stuck one below the other under the brass name plate of the original occupant.

Under the government billeting law, no family can have more than one room to an adult (an adult in this definition being anyone over 10 years old) plus kitchen and bath. If the kitchen is more than 10 by 14 feet it, too, counts as a separate room against the quota. It is "very common" for two families, in one-, two-, or three-room apartments, to share the same kitchen and bath, I was told.

One frequent solution, especially for young veterans and their wives, is to live with their families.

If a couple has a house or large apartment and no other dependents, it often loses not only some of its rooms but the whole place. The government billets it in one room somewhere else and turns its entire quarters over to the family of a Karelian or a soldier.

Although great strides have been made since Finland got its independence in 1918, the housing situation has always been bad. Finnish officials said:

"Even in 1939 our surveys showed that there were more than two people for every room in Finland, including kitchens. Now, with war damage and the resettlement of the Karelians, we are worse off than that."

They added that the Finns don't like it, but "until we finish reparations we will not really be able to do much about it." That means at least another six years of doubling up.

Helsinki has about 400,000 residents now compared to 331,192 in 1944. It suffered little bombing damage and that little has mostly been repaired. Yet the city is so crowded that the authorities have had to pass a law forbidding persons to live here unless they have a permit. Such permits are hard to get.

Three thousand Finns, many of them Karelians, have been given housing in the Olympic village, built for the 1940 Olympic games which the war prevented Finland from having. (The Finns now hope to have the 1952 games.)

Rents Controlled.

Rents are controlled by law. Thirty per cent is the maximum increase allowed for prewar apartment buildings. A Finnish working family in such a prewar building may pay only 5 per cent of its monthly income for rent. If it is in a new apartment building, where there is no rent control, they may have to pay 25 per cent or more of their monthly income—which is not considered reasonable here as in America.

Apartment house managers, unable to collect enough rent to meet sky-rocketing costs, give their tenants hot water only two days a month. Tenants, consequently, are compelled to go to the public saunas (steam baths) to get a hot bath.

Heating has become an expensive item in Finland. Offices and apartments which formerly burned coal now have to burn birch logs. There are huge piles of them in the streets outside the buildings. Finland used to get its coal from Poland. Now it can't get it because of the world-wide coal shortage, and besides, it hasn't enough foreign currency to buy it.

Finland has lots of wood in its forests, but this is seven times more expensive now than before the war. In addition to being needed for heating, wood is valuable as an export item to bring in much-needed foreign currency. Four cubic meters of firewood now cost 2500 Finnish marks, compared with 350 before the war. To heat a single family apartment takes five of these loads a year.

Food Costs Skyrocket.

Many Finns escape high rent but all, without exception, have to pay through the nose for food.

A Finnish housewife told me that butter, which cost 28 Finn marks a kilo (2.2 pounds) in 1940, then 36 in 1941, is officially 152 on ration cards now "but actually can be bought only on the black market at prices which in recent months have ranged from 800 to 1000 a kilo, depending on quality." (Cigarettes, which before the war were 5.5 Finn marks a package of 20, now cost 50.)

One Finn told me: "Most people have enough money to buy their rations. But these are so small they have to buy more food on the black market to survive. That takes money."

Uusi Suomi (New Finland), one of the Helsinki dailies, was quoting black market prices the other day. Milk was 30 to 50 Finn marks a liter, coffee 1600 to 1800 a kilo, sugar 750 to 880 a kilo; men's suits 15,000 to 20,000, nylons 2000 to 3000. Most of these prices, however, are lower than they were six months ago, the paper said.

The cost of living index went up 22 points in April and now stands at 546 against 100 for the base year 1935. Food is 665 on this index.

REDS APOLOGIZE FOR ARREST IN U.S. ZONE, KEEP PRISONERS

BERLIN, June 16 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Cornelius E. Ryan, United States assistant deputy military governor, said today he had received and apology from Russian authorities for violation of jurisdictional procedure when Russian soldiers "kidnaped" a Polish widow and her 12-year-old son in the United States sector of Berlin May 18.

"We are now pressing them for the return of the pair," Ryan said.

Ryan had sent a protest June 6 against the arrest of Sophie Nestorwitensch and her son while they were living with friends in United States territory. The woman had previously been employed in the Russians' Berlin headquarters. She resigned because she resisted repatriation to Poland and then moved to the American sector. Under a four-power agreement no arrests are made without prior consent of the power concerned.

ITALIAN SOCIALIST IN U.S., SAYS NATION NEEDS 2 BILLION

NEW YORK, June 16 (UP)—Italy needs $2,000,000,000 in credits and materials in the next four years to stabilize its postwar economy and believes the "very harsh terms" of its peace treaty will be revised, according to the leader of its Socialist party of Italian workers.

Guiseppe Saragat said on his arrival in New York yesterday that his country needs half a billion dollars at once.

"The real enemies of democracy in Europe are starvation and misery," he said. "If we fight against these democracy will be saved. We also need moral help from all the democratic forces in the world."

Over-Exporting Weakens U. S., Hoover Says

Drain on Resources and Threat to Economic Stability, He Warns.

By RICHARD L. STOKES

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 16.

AN international balance sheet would likley disclose that the United States has become a debtor instead of a creditor nation, Herbert Hoover says in a letter to Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The letter, made public today, summed up the conclusions of Hoover's private study of how great a load this country can bear in world relief and recovery.

Apparently Hoover did not employ the terms "debtor nation" and "creditor nation" in their usual financial sense. Other countries owe vast sums of money to the United States. He perhaps meant that this country has become a "debtor" to overseas nations in respect to the enormous obligations it has assumed in their behalf.

A world inventory, said the former President, would take into account loans, credits and gifts to foreign countries, exports and imports, foreign deposits in American banks, foreign ownership of American securities and impairment of foreign securities owned by Americans.

Danger to Economy.

"The conclusion seems to be irrefutable," he pronounced, "that as a result of our rate of giving and lending we are over-exporting goods, and cannot continue at such a rate with our present production and consumption without further evil consequences to our stability."

Hoover went so far as to recommend voluntary reduction of consumption, especially in foodstuffs, by the American public, as one means of increasing exports. This extreme step should not be taken, he quickly explained, unless it proved necessary to halt global starvation. He described the possible sacrifice as "a great spiritual impulse."

Periodic estimates were suggested of the goods and services which the United States can export without danger to its own stability. When a point is reached at which the safety line may be passed, Hoover said, exports should be limited by means of cutting down loans and gifts.

The international ledger could best be balanced, in Hoover's opinion, by co-ordinating under unified direction all government bodies concerned with foreign economic relations. Among these he included relief agencies, the Federal Reserve System, the World Bank and International Stabilization Fund.

'Danger of Chaos.'

"There is greater danger of political and economic chaos in the world today," Hoover wrote, "than at any time since the war ended. There is more hunger and want today than there was during the war.

"Upwards of a billion people in the war-torn areas of Western Europe and Asia are asking for help. In these nations some have not recovered one-third of their prewar industrial production; most of them have not recovered more than 75 per cent of their prewar food production.

"In the face of this threatening situation the American people must continue to do their utmost to prevent starvation in the world. We must do our utmost to aid nations in the recovery of their productivity.

"But the greatest danger to all civilization is for us to impair our economy by drains which cripple

Business Outlook

EMPLOYMENT RISE VS. RECESSION

By J. A. Livingston

WASHINGTON,

THE boy who cried wolf too often was finally right—but disregarded. So it may be with the prophets of recession. More and more business men and individuals are joining the ranks of unbelievers.

A large statistical service, which had been bearish, sent out fact—and sentiment-finders to Birmingham, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, Cleveland and other industrial centers. Came the report back: "Industrialists are feeling a bit more confident, are less worried about a recession."

The stock market, which had been in the doldrums since its mid-May spill, suddenly discovered the elixir of life, spurted. "Best rally of the year" said the headlines. Apparently, investors and speculators, enticed by favorable price-earnings ratios and high dividends, are becoming less cautious.

Consumers Hopeful.

And the man who calls the turn, the ultimate consumer, is anything but alarmed, according to the Federal Reserve Board's "Survey of Consumer Finances." For every nine householders who expected a fall-off in business last year, today there are only about five. Here's how consumers are voting on the business outlook:

	A Year Ago	Recent.
Good Times Ahead	35%	55%
No Change	23%	21%
Bad Times	36%	22%
No Answer	6%	2%

Ultimate consumers are not as bullish about their personal chances as about the chances for the nation as a whole. But they're definitely not as uneasy as a year ago when 23 per cent expected lower incomes:

	A Year Ago	Recent.
Income larger than preceding year	25%	36%
Same	34%	42%
Smaller	28%	13%
"It depends"	13%	18%
No answer	5%	2%

Economic surprise of the week was the census report on unemployment—down 460,000 in May to 1,960,000 employment rose to 58,330,000—an all-time high. Yet we're still a month away from the July seasonal peak, when harvesting calls for maximum farmhands.

The sharp drop in unemployment had census takers all a-

Nehru's Party Says Princes Can't Secede

Agrees to Separation of India Moslems, Opposes Further Division.

By WALTER J. MASON

NEW DELHI, June 16 (AP)

THE All-India Congress party agreed yesterday to the division of India into Hindustan and Pakistan but served notice that the security of this great subcontinent will not permit the princely states to declare their independence of the two new dominions.

The Congress is the dominant party in the area which will be Hindustan, the largest and most populous section of India, and its stand thus foreshadowed the policy of the Hindustan Government. It was an answer to an announcement by two of the largest princely states, Hyderabad and Travancore, that they intended to proclaim their independence when British power lapses in August.

"We will not recognize any independence of any state in India," said Jawaharlal Nehru, Congress president. "Any recognition of any such independence by any foreign power, wherever it is, will be regarded as an unfriendly act."

Gandhi Accepts Partition.

The vote on this issue was unanimous, while the tally on the decision to adopt the British partition plan was 153 to 29, with 36 delegates abstaining. Mohandas K. Gandhi, an opponent of any division of India, was among the Congress leaders urging adoption. The proposal—adopted last week by the Moslem League, principal rival of the predominantly Hindu Congress—provides for dominion status this year for the two nations, and will allow the Indians to decide next year whether they want to sever all ties with the British empire, which has ruled them for more than 150 years.

Nehru contended that the so-called paramountcy, under which Britain controlled many affairs of the princely states, could not lapse even on a final British withdrawal next year, since much

Europeans See Little Chance Of Halting Reds Until U.S. Has Continental-Based Air Power America Weakening Its Forces at Same Time It is Preparing to Gamble Billions on Stopping Russian Expansion by Economic Methods.

By GEORGE WELLER

The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1947.

LONDON, June 16.

THE $400,000,000 bet of President Truman's Greco-Turkish doctrine is now being expanded into the several billion dollar European spending wager of Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

Meantime, America's own military establishment in Europe is steadily dwindling.

The United States is embarking on a program of postwar lend-lease which, as an economic novelty, transcends wartime lend-lease. Its apparent object is to give hope to revived economies without much distinction, whether they are capitalist or socialist, or even semi-fascist so long as they are not openly Communist.

What are the chances of the American people of getting more value than they have hitherto for their gigantic postwar expenditures?

In surveying Europe from London's lighthouse, these chances look from mediocre to poor, depending on which country is examined. There is no doubt that Europe has its hand outstretched for the money. There is little question that in some borderline country, such as Italy, a partly stifled economy can be helped over its nearest hump.

Russian Expansion.

What is completely lacking, in both the Truman and Marshall doctrines, is any evidence that they will serve adequately to meet the armed threat of Russian expansionism in central and southern Europe.

Communist minorities, working on explicitly planned schedules, are systematically erasing parliamentary opposition in the Balkan countries. The Balkans, cheerfully divided at Tehran, with American consent, between Russia and Britain, are now becoming a Soviet zone. On the southern fringes, in Greece and Turkey, the United States is supporting rightist governments and trying to achieve something like a defense on the installment plan.

What observers in London fail to find in all these plans for world rehabilitation with American money is anything resembling true security. The American experiment, defeated in China, is being renewed in the Middle East. Somewhere between three and four billion dollars have been expended in China, but the true basis for political leverage — coastal bases, fixed garrisons and airports—remain in Soviet hands.

Weakness for U. S. Plans.

The gravest weakness seen here in the Marshall and Truman doctrines is that they are economically interventionist but militarily isolationist. Their persuasive presentation by men of integrity and ideals leads many Americans—and indeed not a few Europeans—to believe that security can be achieved in this way.

The oldest hands in Europe, however, see little balanced future as long as the United States continues its policy of pay and retreat. As long as the United States has a Navy in the North sea and the Mediterranean, but no bases or air power, Russia will continue to expand and thrust out new tentacles, they predict.

The reason no voice is raised in Europe to say that the United States must stay here—and stay with armed force, permanent bases and something better than installment-plan diplomacy — is that Russian expansionism still is not fully recognized as yet.

Buffer states like Britain work both sides of the street. In the border, or Balkan, countries, statesmen are afraid that if they call for America to stay in Europe

Cure for Sick Capitalism

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The prime essential of the capitalistic system is individual incentive—the desire to advance economically, technologically and socially. Opportunity has been the by-word of the American form of capitalism.

Today the individual American who realizes his opportunities is becoming more and more scarce. Only the largest corporations dare expand or develop in new fields. Certainly the era of the small entrepreneur is fast becoming merely a nostalgic dream.

Capitalism is groaning and threatening to collapse under the heavy tax burden and high cost of living, both of which are gradually strangling individual incentive by destroying the profit motive.

If we continue to travel along the same precarious path we are now upon, we will shortly be abreast of Great Britain in the throes of economic stagnation.

The forces that have in the past converted dynamic individual ability into a progressive society, where the state of the arts constantly raised the level of the masses, will give away to a complacent static economy.

Although few people reach the heights of success in the sense that they become prospering entrepreneurs, many people depend on these few with ability to develop for them a pattern of life that is constantly improving.

Every new idea put into practice promises employment, better living and greater security for all members of a capitalistic society.

In capitalism, for the first time a system was devised that enabled everyone to live at the level his individual ability could command.

Unless Congress does something to rejuvenate individual incentive all the investigating committees imaginable will do little to retard the tide of anti-capitalistic sentiment seeking to drown the free enterprise system. The one real answer to the enemies of capitalism is a workable dynamic economy in which individual incentive is encouraged.

Good School Board Move

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Congratulations to the St. Louis School Board on raising the pay of the teachers. This action was long overdue; however, it is only the beginning measure to draw new personnel into the teaching field and to keep those that are already there.

The bar on married teachers should be lifted permanently, or at least until enough women have been attracted into this vital profession. Another suggestion for improving the current problem would be to offer full or partial summer scholarships to those teachers who wish to improve their position by further study in their own and related fields.

Let the Rich Pay for the Poor

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"Disgruntled Patient" was flabbergasted because he was charged $32.50 for a surgical operation that another person, who was rich, was charged $10,000 for.

It seems to me the doctor in this case acted exactly right. Doctors certainly should be paid, yet there are many millions in our country who are not able to pay them and, under our "free enterprise" way of running this government, never will be. So the rich, who have the money, should be made to pay for their medical treatment.

It Made Him Boil

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I gave over three years of my life to the Army infantry, fighting for what I understood was the American way of life.

Since returning to civilian life, I abhor reading newspapers because of their negative content, especially such items as the Post-Dispatch's support of such un-American ideas as rent control. OPA is exactly what we did not fight for, because it belongs to the Communists or Socialists.

All these things made me boil, but to top everything was your publishing of the ad: "Mr. President: The people of Missouri urge you to veto the Taft anti-labor bill, etc." This advertisement urged American citizens to send donations and letters to the Communist leader at Room 603, 705 Olive street.

If this is your idea of Americanism, you should change your platform.

The Fourth Day

There is no justification for the delay in reaching some kind of an agreement which can restore St. Louis' bus and street car service. While both sides share the blame for this outrage to the community, the greater weight of responsibility rests on the employers.

The St. Louis Public Service Co. insists on its operators accepting the $1.22½ hourly wage scale arrived at through a questionable procedure. The AFL Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway & Motor Coach Employes, Local 788, with equal persistence refuses to end the strike. While union and company men glare at each other, the public can go hang.

The company contends that the award reached last Tuesday by its representative and the public member of the arbitration panel is binding, even though the union's panel member was neither present nor consulted. The union panel member considered the panel dissolved before that time because it had failed to obtain a majority decision.

This failure, preceding the subsequent agreement by two members alone, leaves no doubt that it was a rump ruling.

Stubbornness is no virtue in such case as this. Public welfare requires compromise. The very philosophy underlying an agreement to arbitrate presumes give and take.

When the Public Service Co. called on the vehicle operators to arbitrate to avert the threatened walkout for last New Year's Eve, it was assumed that the procedure would be valid, both in spirit and according to the letter. It seems clear now that the letter, as well as the spirit, has been violated.

Procrastination will not help. Too much time—and patience—has already been wasted.

The union should call off the walkout and the company should agree to refer the data already gathered to a new arbitration panel, one so drawn that a rump ruling will not be possible.

Mayor Kaufmann would win the gratitude of the entire community by finding a formula for breaking the deadlock that has kept it without transportation for four days.

St. Charles County on the Alert

St. Charles County is to be applauded for the way in which it is protecting its good name in the Dougherty case. It took the trial on a change of venue. In the course of the trial, which resulted in our Rat Alley Sheriff's sentence to a year behind the bars for feloniously leaving the scene of an accident, diametrically opposed testimony was presented.

The conflict occurred when St. Louis Police Inspector Brostron contradicted the testimony of St. Louis Coroner Callahan that the latter was informed by Dougherty of the accident shortly afterward. The Police Inspector testified the Coroner told him he knew of the crash only when he read of it.

The move by Prosecuting Attorney Stumberg of St. Charles County for a grand jury is fully in order. If St. Charles County must try one of our ugly cases the least our witnesses can do is to participate in clearing up what might be a slight matter of perjury.

The Air Safety Board

Three crashes of DC-4 airliners in three weeks have killed 146 persons and brought regular air travel face to face with high public alarm. No recitation of overall safety records can offset such evidence as the increased purchases of flight insurance. It may be that the new safety board of five experts named by President Truman will discover nothing new about aviation safety, but its appointment should bring the urgency of new regulations and tighter inspection home to Congress and the airlines.

Mechanical failure was involved in the Maryland crash which killed 53 persons, and may have smashed another airliner into a low Virginia mountain Saturday when the plane should have been 2000 feet higher. To ask why planes fail is to ask the airlines who overlooked what in preflight inspection.

The death of 43 persons in the LaGuardia Field crash late last month resulted from putting a four-engine plane on a short runway. Airport safety regulations and construction of new flying aids are largely in the hands of government, yet a few weeks ago the House cut Civil Aeronautics Administration funds by 37 per cent. Secretary of Commerce Harriman testified the slash threatened an increase in air accidents.

Unless Congress and private flying interests are made aware of the rising public concern, aviation is going to sputter along precariously.

A Vicious Smear

We are not much impressed by the effort of the House Committee on Un-American Activities to smear the Southern Conference on Human Welfare.

Leave out the Northern members of the Southern Conference and consider for a moment some of its Southern members. Take Frank Porter Graham, president of the University of South Carolina; H. Clarence Nixon, who has been a faculty member at Tulane and Vanderbilt; and Clark Foreman, a member of the family which publishes the Atlanta Constitution.

These and others like them are not men easily taken in. They know what they are doing and why they are doing it. What they are doing is to try to leaven the complacency and conservatism of the South with the yeast of a new social and humanitarian outlook. They are doing it because it sadly needs to be done, for the good of the South and the nation.

Now look at the Southerners on the House Un-American Affairs Committee: John Rankin, the raucous echo of Bilbo in the lower House, and his team-mates, Bonner of North Carolina and Peterson of Florida.

If a choice is to be made between the good judgment and good will of men like these and men like Graham, Nixon and Foreman, does anyone hesitate whom to choose?

The Southern Conference may need to weed out some Communist infiltrators. But it doesn't need to be smeared by a committee of Congress. It needs to be patted on the back and told to stay on the job. The South needs it.

Let the Consumer Speak

Most of the opposition voiced against the wool bill which Congress is about to pass is based on the fact that it conflicts with efforts of the State Department to broaden international trade as a basis for American leadership in world affairs.

This argument should be sufficient to kill the bill, but the tariff-minded Republican majority is not impressed. It is bent on opening the way for a 50 per cent increase in the tariff on wool. It also wants to impose wool quotas for the further protection of our poor little Western lambs against the predacious sheep of Australia, New Zealand, Africa and Afghanistan.

But what about the poor little consumer? According to a carefully researched article in the January issue of Fortune, the tariff on wool added $136,000,000 to America's clothing bill in 1946, or about $10,000,000 more than the value of all the wool produced in the United States that year.

If the tariff is upped 50 per cent, the cost to the consumer will rise to more than $200,000,000. The tariff itself won't cost the consumer that much, but when the cost is compounded in the markup of the various processors, that is the resulting burden on the consumer.

What it amounts to is this: every man, woman and child in America has been contributing $1 a year to the support of the American wool grower. If the new bill is not vetoed, the consumer will contribute from here out $1.50 a year. Yet America produces only a third of the wool it requires, and that is not of the best quality.

If Congress is not impressed by the pleas and protests that the new wool bill will sabotage our foreign policy, the consumer should speak up and see if he can impress Congress that he doesn't want his pocket picked for the benefit of a handful of wool growers. Maybe the high-tariff boosters will be impressed by that. Votes are involved there, too.

Catching Up?

I am not a warmonger but it is important for Russia to know there is a point beyond which she shouldn't go without awakening resistance.—Henry A. Wallace.

We are not the recorders of Mr. Wallace's education but it is important to note that he seems now to have reached a point in deliberation of the Russian problem which millions of Americans and their Government arrived at months ago.

Rolls to Choke a Cow

Washington is just now taking substantial notice of something which every American in the occupation of Germany knew a year and more ago, namely, that we were redeeming Russian-issued occupation marks in more or less limitless quantities.

Three Senate committees'—Appropriations, Armed Services and War Investigating—have now joined in looking into this business. It is high time they did for the question concerns them all. The black markets in Berlin and elsewhere in the Russian zone were flooded with these Russian-issued marks printed in English from plates turned over to the Soviets by the Western Allies. Every Russian soldier could sport a wad big enough to choke the proverbial cow. Only a hyphen before the serial number distinguished them from those issued by the United States forces.

The Russians used these marks to buy luxury items through the German markets, the Germans put them into the financial system (in German dealings they were much preferred to German marks) and the American Army finance offices redeemed them. It was common for Americans, on checking out to come home, to turn in more Russian-issued marks than American-issued.

Chairman Bridges of the Appropriations Committee estimates that between $400,000,000 and $900,000,000 "has been or is being redeemed with American dollars." War Department officials are said to have explained that there will be little if any loss—that the Army can use the currency for purchases in Germany.

But what happens to these marks in the end? Do they not come back to the Treasury in Washington? All the facts about this affair should be brought out—why the plates were given to the Russians, by whom, how much money has been run off, and just where the American taxpayer stands with respect to it all.

Caponesters in Trouble

The ambitious Caponesters are said to be discouraged. They have had their troubles with the racing news business, particularly in Missouri, where the Public Service Commission has upheld the withdrawal of telephone service from the Harmony Publishing Co. in Kansas City.

This firm was taken over by the Capone gang at pistol point and was run by one Simon Partnoy "like a druggist sells a deck of cards," or so he said. Mr. Partnoy meant that he really didn't know what the racing news he sold was used for. But there was no secret about it, and the Public Service Commission told him. Besides that, the Pendergast organization has split over backing up the Harmony operation, so there is no harmony anywhere.

The remnants of Al's mobsters had pinned their hopes on setting up their Trans-America News Service nationwide, but they have been held up at numerous points. Now they say Trans-America is going out of business. It may be. A wise police department would wait for evidence. There still are a lucrative jukebox game and other enterprises around and about which seem to lure these machinegun magnates.

AND THEY CALL THIS THE MONTH OF ROSES
—From the Washington Daily News.

Sober Warning on Defense

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Congress may let universal training issue go over to election year in face of warning by Dr. Karl Compton, writer reports; scientist said "time is running short"; our monopoly on atom bomb will not endure and our Army is skeletonized; we need trained reserves.

Cecil Holland, Washington Correspondent, in the Chicago Sun

Despite the strong case for universal military training made by President Truman's advisory commission of nine distinguished civilians, it is doubtful that Congress will act on the issue at this session.

The reason is not that Congress necessarily opposes such training. While there will be considerable opposition, some of it extremely vocal, the present mood of Congress, in view of the world situation, would seem to favor it. Indeed, a majority of war veterans now serving in Congress have placed themselves on record in a newspaper poll as favoring it.

Congress may accept reluctantly the need for compulsory training, even as members of the commission did. But the welter of legislative matters already pending and the desire of members to adjourn before Washington's notoriously unpleasant summer is far advanced leave little hope that the proposal can be considered this year.

About all that can be expected will be hearings on the proposal. The House Armed Services Committee, headed by Representative Andrews, already has decided to hold hearings at a time to be determined. The corresponding Senate committee, headed by Senator Gurney, may do likewise. Hearings probably will be extended and debate, once the legislation reaches the floor, will be protracted.

Time Works Against It

Thus the time element works against consideration of the commission's far-reaching recommendations at this session. Supporters of universal training as a wise investment in the security of the United States are not overlooking the fact that it could come up for congressional consideration in a presidential election year. They are wondering how objective the consideration, in an election year, will be.

If the issue is passed over until next year, it will be in the face of a sober warning by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and chairman of the commission, that "time is running short."

Compton's statement was made at a news conference giving a background explanation of the commission's report. He buttressed it with a disillusioning picture of the armed might of the United States. In two years after World War II it has dwindled to a skeletonized air force and a ground force consisting of only two and one-third full combat divisions available for duty.

Reservoir Will Dry Up

That is not all. Only about one ninth of a National Guard quota of 723,000 men has been enrolled. Only one third of the proposed 6000 National Guard units have been organized.

On top of this, Dr. Compton pointed out that the reservoir of trained manpower resulting from the recent war will be largely dissipated in five years. It would be five years, Compton estimated, before UMT could provide the necessary replacement pool of trained men capable of dealing with a sudden and devastating atomic bombing attack.

However, members of Congress have been profoundly impressed by the commission's report. Its objectivity and dispassionate examination of all factors bearing on the nation's security are receiving merited praise. Its sincerity is recognized.

That sincerity springs from the fact that the commission had to sell itself on universal military training. It was in no sense of the word a rubber stamp group putting its approval on a recommendation already made by Mr. Truman to the Congress.

Several members of the commission began their study skeptical of the worthwhileness of such training. Only after prolonged study and hearing about 200 witnesses of all shades of opinion did the commission reach its conclusions.

In Path of Aggression

The same considerations weigh heavily in congressional thinking. Briefly summarized, these are: The United States cannot safely assume to have sole possession of atomic explosives beyond 1951, although it will be 1955 at the earliest before an atomic attack in quantity could be made against this country.

Such an attack, with improved types of bombs developed since Hiroshima, could cripple or destroy dozens of the country's major cities overnight. An attack might come so swiftly that the armed forces would be unable to assume the full responsibility of maintaining order and mounting, at the same time, a counter-attack.

This is the compelling reason why a large and well-trained reserve force is essential to national security. The commission pointed out that the United States will be the first target of any attack because this country stands across the path of world aggression.

CAPITALISM IN TECHNICOLOR

From the Courier-Journal.

Perhaps, as we have heard from the well-known lips of Adolphe Menjou, Robert Taylor, Richard Arlen and Rupert Hughes, Hollywood is a pit of virulent Communist propagandists. If it is, they must be the most inept or the most obscurely subtle propagandists who ever plied the trade.

It seems to us that the American screen reflects only a picture of capitalism, usually in all too rosy technicolor. In fact, the homage which many motion pictures pay to blessings of capitalism almost makes it appear absurd. This could possibly be the sinister handiwork of the Hollywood borers from within. But it is strange boring when we see the shop girl's home an elaborate apartment, and the soda jerk's boarding house a club of subdued grandeur. Even moving picture tenant farms take on delightful cleanliness and space.

If one casts about to recall a film that showed the pain of poverty in this best of all possible worlds, it is hard to find much besides "The Grapes of Wrath." And that picture was not Communist propaganda. If "Song of Russia" was, as Robert Taylor infers, it was the poorest propaganda, as well as one of the poorest pictures, that time could be wasted on.

It is good to know that the House Committee on Un-American Activities is still looking under our beds and behind our movie screens. It may be able to find out why the Red propaganda, if any, lies on the floor of the cutting room.

Between Book Ends

Quasi Revolt

BERLIN UNDERGROUND, by Ruth Andreas-Friedrich. Translated from the German by Barrows Mussey. (Henry Holt & Co., New York.)

This book dovetails with another recently published on the subject of Germany's underground. The other, written by Allen Welsh Dulles, is based on an accumulation of evidence gathered outside the Reich during the war and inside only after the Nazi downfall; and it deals specifically with the conspiracy to eliminate Hitler. Mrs. Friedrich's account is an almost day-to-day diary of events and plottings inside Hitler's Germany.

The subject matter deals with a small group of Germans indignant over Nazi behavior but powerless to do much about it. Their underground resistance consisted more of comforting enemies of the Third Reich—Jews, especially—than of obstructing the Nazi program. They were brave and daring, considering the brutality and persistence of the Gestapo and SS, but they were intellectuals whose basic protest expressed itself in abhorrence of Nazism among themselves instead of militant opposition.

Still, they did much good. Their assuagement of broken bodies and their comforting of suffering friends justified their existence. And at the end, with the Allies near, they joined Communist resistance groups and demonstrated open opposition to Hitlerism by painting Berlin with the word "Nein" to urge public non-compliance with Nazi commands.

Mrs. Friedrich, a good writer with an eye for detail and a flair for poetry, tells her story vividly and with the long sweep. Her characters, all of whom made up her resistance group, live fully in the book's pages. At the same time, the intellectuality of the group recurrently breaks through with their philosophic comments on the passing show.

It may be that there were such groups of "good" Germans thieving and sneaking to mitigate the tragedies of Hitler's enemies. But since they took chances for little things, one can't help wondering why they did not throw themselves—and presumably there were many of them—headlong into aggressive rebellion against Hitlerism. They had six years of early opportunity before the war and another six as the Nazi chain was weakened by engagement in total war. ARTHUR HEPNER.

Shakers in the South

BY THEIR FRUITS, by Julia Neal. (University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill.)

The fruits of communal living as they were produced by Shakerism at South Union, Ky., are revealed in a painstaking study that has been made by Miss Neal, assistant professor of English at State Teachers' College, Florence, Ala. The study treats with the period from 1805 (when the United Believers migrated from New York to fulfill the prophecy of Mother Ann, their leader) until 1922 when the colony sold out and ceased to exist. For the greater part of that period the fruits were good, but the seeds of disintegration were planted in their system of celibacy and though they survived longer than most such experiments, they finally dissolved.

The term Shakers was applied at first derisively to them because of their devotional dances and other peculiar religious practices, but in time it came to be the trademark of the unusual quality of the products of their farms and factories. Miss Neal, stimulated by her childhood acquaintance with the Shakers and drawing extensively on journals and diaries, gives an understanding and unbiased appraisal of the religio-socialist group.

MARQUIS CHILDS

The Hands of the Clock

ONE commodity that cannot be bought with all the dollars in the world is time. And time is running out very fast. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, who as much as any single individual has carried the load of our present foreign policy, says we need an inventory of our resources. We need to determine what we can do toward restoring peace and security to a broken world. It is impossible, as Mr. Vandenberg points out, to deal with a series of "unanticipated crises, one by one."

If we are to have an inventory, then we must move quickly. The facts and figures are available both as to resources and money. The task is to put them together with skill and perception so that we can see at a glance what we can do.

Sen. Vandenberg

Let's assume that there will be a session of Congress about Nov. 1. The President and Secretary of State Marshall put before the lawmakers the imperative need for a five-year program, at five billion dollars a year, to restore Europe. Let's suppose some more and suppose that Congress acts with a minimum of delay, adopting the Administration program and sending it to the White House on Dec. 15. (Admittedly, this is getting into the realm of fantasy.)

Speed by One Standard.

Even with this express-train speed—measured by Government standards—we shall be perilously close to a deadline. The dollars will run out in Great Britain and in Western Europe shortly after the first of the year. That means shipments from this country will be greatly curtailed. Far more important, it means that the whole effort of rehabilitation will, for the moment at least, come to a standstill.

This will take place after six months of uncertainty. If France and Italy still survive as free nations, it will be by a close margin. In the next six months the Communists throughout Europe, acting under leaders trained in Moscow, will exploit every opportunity for sabotage and disruption. And the opportunities will be manifold.

Our tempo is, to use a charitable word, leisurely. President Truman's message calling for $400,000,000 for Greece and Turkey was delivered on March 12. Three months were required to approve the program and name an administrator—and this for a program so small in comparison to needs. The newly named administrator, former Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska, is now in Washington. He had to be called off from a responsible job in the civil administration of Germany to take this post.

More Obstacles Ahead.

The first pair of shoes and the first sack of wheat are still to reach Greece under the program. The same thing is true of the general relief provided in the $350,000,000 appropriation adopted by Congress. The timetable for the latter measure was even more prolonged. The machinery for providing the relief is only just now being set up.

If Congress acted on an over-all program for Europe by Dec. 15, many weeks would go by before it could be implemented. A major obstacle is in persuading able men to take responsible positions, as was proved again on the Greek-Turkish program.

There may not be time enough. In his statement, Senator Vandenberg spoke of the need for the "prompt creation" of a bipartisan council to advise the President on a master plan for rehabilitation. He spoke of the "difficult national decisions which we inescapably confront."

We cannot delay those decisions much longer. The hands of the clock are moving on toward midnight of the brief day that is left to us.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

Growing Menace to the West

THERE is no question where our foreign policy and that of the Soviet Union is heading. It is heading toward war. The world is dividing into two blocs. And around the Soviet frontiers, whether in Europe or Asia, a consolidation is occurring which represents the greatest potential power complex of which modern history has a record.

In Asia, the Communists are making steady progress in Manchuria. India, which also has a frontier on the Soviet Union, is being Balkanized. With the passing of British rule, "India" ceases to be. We shall now have two Indias.

Since no country is divided to mutual satisfaction and in India it is impossible to draw clear geographical demarcations between Hindu and Moslem territories, we may anticipate, I fear, prolonged trouble there which certainly will be exploited by the Communists.

The permanent division of Europe is hard to envisage. Europe's political divisions should not obscure the fact that Europe is an economic unity in which the Eastern countries have fed the West while the West has exported industrial products eastward. Its rivers and railroads are an integrated complex. There is a cultural bond dating from the Middle Ages.

Armies Come First.

To imagine a United States of Europe without Poland, Hungary or Austria, or to imagine a Danubian Federation without Austria is to imagine the unimaginable.

In the developing Soviet European union all national armies are being added to Red army strength. The peace treaty with Hungary grants her an army of 65,000, and hardly has the Communist coup occurred than reorganization of the army begins.

The combined populations of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia add up to around 100,000,000 people, or more than the combined populations of Italy and France. The frontier changes lay Italy open via Yugoslavia as far as the French Alps, and France open to the English Channel.

Moreover, the economics of the Soviet complex will be centralized into huge interlocking state-capitalist holding companies. There will be an undeviating unity of political line. Finally, all opposition within the Soviet federation will be crushed while Soviet agents will be free to organize within the rest of Europe.

In the end, this complex created by cynical foreign agents doubtless will break down through terrible corruption and incapacity to govern. The new Communist states are not led by Lenins but by trained janissary hacks of a "revolution" no longer revolutionary. They are not even making Socialist economies.

Nation or a Racket.

Poland, for instance, is neither Socialist, Communist nor capitalist, but can be described only as a racket. One of the chief racketeers is now in this country, Mr. Jerzy Borejsza. Before the war he was a minor writer but an energetic worker for the Soviets, who welcomed them when they invaded Poland with the Hitlerites. Serving as a stool pigeon among his colleagues, he was chief witness in the 1940 purge of Polish writers in Lwow, helping win heavy sentences against them.

For this he was rewarded with the directorship of publishing firms expropriated from their former owners. Thus, he received the printing house, Trukarnia Narodna; the richest newspaper in southern Poland, the Krakau Illustrated Daily; and the only intact printing plant left in Warsaw, Prasa Polska. His "cooperative" has a monopoly of newspaper and magazine distribution and first priority on newsprint.

Squabbles and Purges.

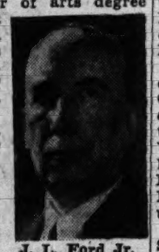

Such regimes without popular support and led by men who have, for the most part, been Soviet citizens for years, must—I think — eventually break down through internal squabbles and purges. But before that happens they are likely to be pushed outward to new coups or actual war for that very reason.

The menace to the West—and regardless of differences in ideology — is, therefore, prodigious. Our people do not yet realize it sufficiently.

J. L. FORD JR. GETS HONORARY DEGREE

Award by Amherst College for Anti-Smoke Leadership.

James L. Ford Jr., chairman of the Citizens' Smoke Elimination Committee, yesterday received an honorary master of arts degree from Amherst College, his alma mater, for his efforts in ridding St. Louis of the smoke nuisance.

J. L. Ford Jr.

Ford, an Amherst graduate of 1902, was honored at the 127th commencement exercises at Amherst, along with Secretary of State Marshall, who received an honorary doctor of laws degree; Dr. Abraham S. Wolf Rosenback of Philadelphia, doctor of humane letters, and the Rev. Charles H. Cadigan, Bloomfield Hill, Mich., doctor of divinity.

In 1940 Ford received the St. Louis Award for distinguished civic service in the smoke campaign he headed. The award carried a citation "for wise, patient and courageous leadership in attacking the smoke evil, an evil which threatened the health and economic welfare of the community."

Ford has continued his efforts to keep St. Louis free of smoke and inspired an effort for smoke elimination on the East Side. He is a vice president of the First National Bank and lives at the Park Plaza Hotel.

TWO ELECTRIC WHEEL CHAIRS GIVEN TO BARRACKS HOSPITAL

Two electric-powered wheelchairs, which will allow completely incapacitated patients to travel about hospital wards and ramps at five miles an hour, were presented yesterday to the Veterans' Hospital at Jefferson Barracks by American War Dads units here.

Patients who were allowed to try out the vehicles found they could easily ascend ramps and appeared to be foolproof in operation, since the machine comes to a halt when the single-manual control is released. Batteries for the two electric motors are charged from a light socket and run a full day.

T. F. Clark, hospital recreation director, accepted the machines from representatives of American War Dads chapter No. 39 of Maplewood and chapter 64 of University City, Clayton and Richmond Heights. They will be assigned to veteran patients for regular use.

ARTIST ALBERT MARQUET DIES; FAMED FRENCH LANDSCAPIST

PARIS, June 16 (AP)—Albert Marquet, one of France's outstanding modern painters, died Saturday at his home in the Rue Dauphine on the Seine left bank. He was 72 years old.

M. Marquet, best known as a landscapist, did some work in etching and lithography. He exhibited regularly in Paris from 1901 to 1912 with the Independants, and his simplification of realistic drawing influenced many younger painters.

Critics have called him an admirer of Cezanne and of Matisse but have insisted on his individuality. His most familiar works are landscapes of Paris, Honfleur, Havre, Rouen and Rotterdam.

RELIEF COSTS HERE UP 42 PCT. IN 12 MONTHS ENDING IN MARCH

Relief costs rose 42 per cent in St. Louis during the period of March 1946, to March of this year, John W. Ballew, director of the St. Louis office of the State Division of Welfare, said today.

The increase was attributed in part to the appearance on the division's rolls of persons who were engaged in war work, but are now unemployable he said. Costs for the period ending last March were $712,324 and for the period ending March 1946, $500,014, he said.

There has been a slight decline in the number of applications for general relief since last March, Ballew said, but hardly any decrease was noted in applications for aid to dependent children and for old-age assistance.

BILL WOULD ENABLE COUNTY TO GET FEDERAL TRACT FREE

A bill, which would enable St. Louis county to obtain the 2600-acre Tyson Valley Powder Farm near Valley Park as a gift from the Government has been introduced in the House of Representatives, Presiding County Judge Luman F. Matthews announced today on his return from Washington.

The bill, introduced by Congressman Walter C. Ploeser of St. Louis county, provides that installations such as Tyson Valley, which are no longer used by the Federal Government, may be donated to political subdivisions as recreational and wildlife conservation areas and for similar purposes. Judge Matthews said the county is interested in the tract as a park and recreation area. Under previous legislation it would have been necessary for the county to purchase the land from the War Assets Administration and guarantee maintenance. Matthews pointed out that the Ploeser bill also opens the way for the county to seek title to Jefferson Barracks as a donation, in place of under an interim permit as it is now held.

Tyson Valley Farm, on Highway 66, was purchased by the Government for $152,698 in 1942. Buildings and other facilities were added at a cost of $3,000,000 to fit the installation as a powder storage area and small arms ammunition testing ground.

The Municipal Opera's second offering of the season, "Nina Rosa," will open a seven-night run at the outdoor theater in Forest Park at 8:45 o'clock tonight.

Starring in the light opera, the score of which was composed by Sigmund Romberg, will be two New York Metropolitan Opera Company artists, Christina Carroll and Hugh Thompson, both of whom are making their first appearances on the Municipal Opera stage.

The dance team of Ahdar and Uden, also new to the Forest Park stage, will appear in a special gaucho dance number. Other newcomers in the cast are Richard Gordon, tenor; Barbara Ashley, soprano; Sondra Barrett, dancing comedienne, and Jack Rutherford, veteran stage and film actor.

Returning favorites are Jack Sheehan and William Lynn, who will handle comedy roles. Edwin Steffe, who played in last week's production, "The Dancing Years," also is in the cast.

In addition to the title song, the opera includes, "Your Smile, Your Tears," "Serenade of Love," and "Gaucho Love Song."

13 ST. LOUIS CLERGYMEN CALL FOR LABOR BILL VETO

An appeal to President Truman requesting him to veto the Taft-Hartley labor bill was made today in a telegram signed by 13 St. Louis clergymen.

The telegram described the proposed bill as "a punitive measure, against the welfare of the American public and the rights of American wage earners" and an "instrument by which employers can prevent union organization and bargaining."

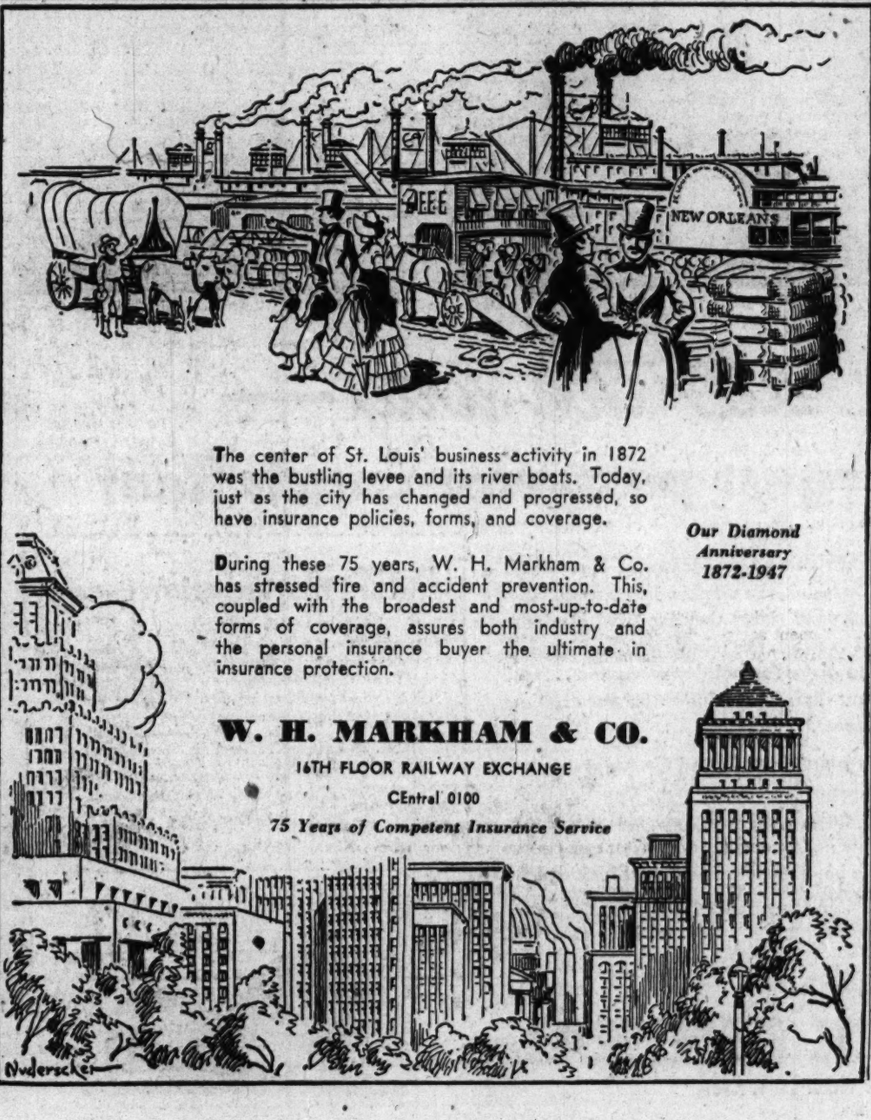

Those who signed the telegram were: the Rev. Ralph Abele and Dr. Elmer Arndt of the Evangelical and Reformed Church; the Rev. Joseph F. Cantillion S.J., and the Rev. Francis J. Corley S.J., representing Catholic churches in St. Louis; Dr. Clark Cummings, executive secretary of the Metropolitan Church Federation of St. Louis; Dean Sidney E. Sweet, Christ Church Cathedral; Rabbis Ferdinand Isserman and Samuel Thurman; the Rev. Amos Thornburg of the Methodist faith; the Rev. L. F. Thornton, Episcopal rector; the Rev. Charles C. Wilson, director of the Episcopal Grace Hill House, and the Rev. S. M. Pronko and the Rev. Marvin F. Sielken of Congregational and United Lutheran churches.

CATHOLIC TALK ON MARRIAGE

The second evening program of the Summer School of Catholic Action at St. Louis University will open at 7 o'clock today. The Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S.J., will speak on marriage. Nine concurrent lectures will be given at 8 p.m., and eight talks will follow at 9 p.m.

Daytime sessions of the series, which will continue until Saturday, begin with a dialogue mass at 8:30 a.m., in which persons attending take part in the reading of the service. The last evening course will be given Friday. Classes meet in the university gymnasium and Des Peres Hall.

RINGS VALUED AT $1750 LOOT IN HOME HOLDUP

Two Gunmen Also Get $116 From James Bernhardts of Oakland Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bernhardt, 6434 Oakland avenue, were held up in their home early yesterday by two armed men who took diamond rings valued at $1750 and $116 in cash, they reported to police.

The Bernhardts said they found the men, both of whom were masked, in the living room when they entered the house. The robbers took his billfold, containing $110 in cash, his $350 diamond ring, a $1400 diamond ring she was wearing and $6 from her purse, the Bernhardts said.

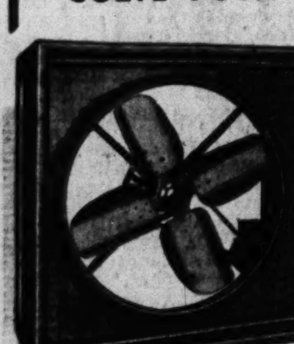

While the robbers were examining the contents of her purse, one of them said: "It's not here," Bernhardt reported, but he was unable to explain the remark. The men apparently entered the house by cutting a screen covering a rear window.

Irvin Freeman, an attendant at a filling station at 4401 Delmar boulevard, reported that he was robbed of $58 in cash early today by three Negroes, two of whom were armed. The men asked to use the telephone in the station, he said, and, after producing revolvers, took $40 from his pocket and $18 from a money changer.

Joseph Gennario, proprietor of a liquor store at 4867 Page boulevard was held up by two Negroes who entered the store late Saturday and took $158 from the cash register. One of the men was armed with a revolver, Gennario said.

dither. They couldn't believe the data. They checked, double checked. Yes, the figures were right, after all. Yet, production had turned down in April. Prices generally were showing signs of weakness — steel scrap was off from its high. Copper had edged down from the 24c-a-pound import price. The cost of living index had slipped slightly. All these were symptoms of recession. Or so it seemed. Especially since unemployment had increased in April, when seasonally it should have declined.

The May employment report forced recessionists to take stock all over again. And they have their reservations. They blame the weather. April was wet and cold. Farmers couldn't get into the fields and many contractors had to postpone construction work. So they made up for lost time in May.

Not only that, but trade and service employment increased. Hotels and summer resorts were taking on people a bit early, perhaps anticipating a booming trade. A good many persons entered business for themselves—"self-employed" the census calls them—servicing refrigerators and electrical appliances, or selling neckties, stockings, and other items house to house.

However, factory employment was unchanged. Though durable goods industries took on workers, the nondurable goods let some go. And the 40-hour work week is back again—as against the average work week of 40.4 hours in March. Result: Overtime pay is down. The average weekly pay envelope has dropped moderately from $47.72 to $47.44. Biggest declines are in apparel, food, tobacco, and rubber. The tire industry is retrenching—having done half a year's production in three months. And price cutting—to boost sales—is taking place.

The May report on unemployment cannot be regarded as conclusive. The data covered the week of May 10. Since then, indications are that layoffs have increased. In the week ended May 24, for example, unemployment compensation claims rose from 1,140,000 to 1,179,000. Not only that but department store sales, which had been running along merrily about 12 to 15 per cent above a year ago, didn't show up so well. The gain over a year ago was only 7 per cent.

Finally, ultimate consumers, though hopeful, are not expecting to buy as much this year as last. The aforementioned Survey of Consumer Finances showed that intentions to buy homes had decreased—partly because of higher prices. As for automobiles, the market seems as unsated as ever—notwithstanding the production of 3,700,000 passenger cars since VJ-day. More people plan to buy more cars this year than last.

Thus, there are still two sides to this recession. And, all in all, it still seems worth while to give the economic wolf-callers (including this one) more time. They're still in good voice when it comes to explanations.

5-YEAR TERM IN KILLING OF DRUGGIST IN HOLDUP

One of Three Defendants Pleads Guilty of Manslaughter.

Roy R. Finocchiaro, 2221 Edwards street, charged with second-degree murder in the robbery-killing of Otto Kopp, Manchester (Mo.) druggist last year, pleaded guilty of manslaughter at Clayton today and was sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary by Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller.

Finocchiaro was accused of participating in the robbery with Sam S. Carenza, 2124A (rear) Marconi street, and Sebastian J. Tomarchio, 2122 (rear) Marconi. The 73-year-old druggist was beaten to death when Tomarchio and Carenza held him up in his drugstore 16 miles west of St. Louis the night of April 7, 1946.

Carenza, who was named as the actual assailant, was convicted of murder by a Clayton jury last February and his penalty fixed at life imprisonment. Tomarchio, a witness for the state, pleaded guilty of second-degree murder but has not yet been sentenced.

Associate Prosecuting Attorney William Hough said the lesser charge of manslaughter was recommended in the case of Finocchiaro because the latter remained outside the drugstore in an automobile during the robbery. Hough said the prosecution would have difficulty proving that Finocchiaro knew the other participants planned to use violence if necessary in the robbery.

Washington U. Summer School.

Large numbers of summer school students were lining up at the Washington University registrar's office today for last-minute registration in classes which began today. Dr. Frank L. Wright, director of the summer school, said enrollment appeared to be higher than last year, and attendance at opening class meetings was good in spite of transportation difficulties resulting from the Public Service Co. strike.

TAX BILL VETO OUT OF WAY, STOCKS MIXED

Concern Over Labor Disputes, Effects of Maritime Tie-Up Are Restraints.

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—The stock market took news of the tax bill veto in stride today although share prices failed to make much headway.

Industrials benefitted from some late demand although many finished below their tops of the day. A number of utilities and rails stayed in losing territory. Gains of fractions to more than a point were nearly balanced by equal declines at the close.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed 63.4 up one-tenth of a point.

Of the 965 issues traded in today, 369 were lower, 361 higher and 235 unchanged. Eighteen made new 1947 highs and 11 new lows.

Commission houses pointed out that the President's rejection of the tax reduction legislation had been widely anticipated and largely discounted in the preceding weeks. They added his action served to remove one source of uncertainty in the current business picture without altering underlying conditions in the market. Sentiment for extension of recent comebacks, however, continued to be hampered by concern over unsettled labor and foreign situations.

New 1947 Highs.

New highs for 1947 were touched at one time or another by Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil (N.J.) and Golf Oil.

Other prominent gainers included Atlantic Coast Line, Air Reduction, U. S. Steel, Dow Chem-Case, Electric Power & Light, General Electric and U. S. Rubber.

Remaining on the offside were American Telephone, United Air Lines, Pennsylvania, Central Airline, Norfolk & Western, Western Union 'A' and Douglas Aircraft.

Trend on the Curb.

Improved at times in the curb were Aluminum Co. of America, Humble Oil, Cuban Atlantic Sugar and Hecla Mining. Depressed were American Cyanamid, Fansteel and Babcock & Wilcox.

Some aircraft issues on the big board eased fractionally in initial trading after the week-end appointment by the President of a five-man panel of aviation experts to examine "the whole problem of air transport safety."

Noted in boardrooms was a study of yields for a selected group of stocks, published in the stock exchange's monthly publication, which said the figures "indicate that share prices are approaching the region where income situations are worth exploring again—a situation which has not existed in other recent years." It pointed out, however, that "what the investing public will consider to be a worth-while level of yields no one can foretell."

COTTON UP 20C TO $1.00

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—Cotton futures moved irregularly higher today after displaying early easiness. Scattered liquidation was induced by favorable crop reports. Market subsequently strengthened on short covering and mill buying which met only limited offerings.

Foreign advices noted that Japan will curtail textile production because of dwindling raw cotton stocks. Resumption of private cotton trading in Germany moved a step nearer with officials in the British and American occupied zone agreed on details for handling the program.

Late afternoon prices were 55 cents a bale higher to 10 cents lower than the previous close. July, 36.03; October, 31.00; December, 29.88.

WHEAT, CORN, OATS IN SHARP PRICE DROPS

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—A late rally recovered some of the ground lost early by grains today, but the market was unable to get back to the preceding close. Trading was active.

Clearing weather in the Mid-West and a feeling that much of the corn crop had been planted caused substantial losses in feed grains during early trading. Corn tumbled around 6 cents at one time. Oats were also off for large losses despite mostly unfavorable crop reports.

Expectations of an increased crop movement this week served to depress wheat. Hedging pressure from the Southwest was apparent in the pit. At one time December wheat sold at a new seasonal low while May equalled the seasonal low set last Saturday.

WAA DROPPING 400 OF EMPLOYES HERE

Will Cut Personnel to 640 by July 1 in Economy Drive.

About 400 St. Louis employes of the War Assets Administration today received notice that their services are being terminated, as a part of the Government economy program.

The St. Louis personnel is being reduced from a total of 1159 to 640, by July 1, Regional Director Otto G. Klein said. A total of 90 employes have resigned voluntarily, however, and 28 more have accepted transfers to the Kansas City office.

Operating functions of the St. Louis office are being transferred to Kansas City, where zone headquarters are located. St. Louis will be a sales office. By July 1 all regional office divisions will be moved to 8900 South Broadway. At present, regional offices are divided among three locations: 505 North Seventh street; 4255 Clayton avenue, and 8900 South Broadway.

Klein said the personnel division is attempting to find new jobs for employes given notices.

The central location for WAA sales activities, he said, will be used to display samples of surplus property.

"By concentrating all activities in one location," he said, "it will be possible to give prospective buyers better service and more complete information."

From Jan. 1 through May 31 the St. Louis office disposed of $87,798,000 worth of surplus property, Klein said. This figure is based on the original cost of the property to the Government.

of it was retained in the Government of India.

The only alternative to their coming into the union is another arrangement, and another arrangement cannot admit of the right of states to deal with any foreign power," Nehru said. "This matter affects the security of India."

No Isolated States.

The resolution said the Congress "cannot admit the rights of any state of India to declare its independence and to live in isolation from the rest of India."

More than a dozen princely states already have joined the existing Constituent Assembly, but several of the Punjab hill states have been reported ready to follow Hyderabad and Travancore in proclaiming independence.

On the partition issue Sardar Vallabhai Patel, leader of the Congress Working Committee, declared the choice was between "division or Balkanization," and "we had to choose the former."

"It is no longer correct to say that Britishers are dishonest," he added. "Our fight is no longer with Britain. Our fight is between ourselves. Britishers do not want to stay here as a political power."

Effort to Stop Riots.

Nehru said that "under ordinary circumstances I would not agree to the partition of India," but "we have had to take this stand to stop these riots (between Hindus and Moslems)".

India will remain a legal and constitutional unit, despite the division into Pakistan and Hindustan, he said.

"Only certain provinces will secede and therefore there is no need to change the name of India or the political conception of unity. For international affairs, India continues to be India."

Although opposition to the British plan was given a free voice, the outcome of the voting was never in doubt. Among the opponents was Mrs. Asaf Ali, a Socialist whose views differ from those of her husband, India's ambassador to the United States.

Mrs. Ali said the plan was a "conspiracy" among Winston Churchill, M. A. Jinnah, president of the Moslem League, and Sir Leopold S. Amery, former British Secretary for India, and that it was a "pity" Gandhi had indorsed it.

The Indian News Chronicle reported tonight that 60 persons were either shot to death or burned alive when a mob of about 2000 raided Tikri village in the Gurgaon district adjacent to Delhi province Saturray.

About 800 houses were reported burned and 200 persons injured. Eighty houses were said to have been burned in another village.

Rioting between Hindus and Moslem has beset the area for several months.

BASES IN EUROPE HELD NECESSARY FOR U.S. PROGRAM

they will invite even tougher measures from their Soviet neighbors.

Britain is cutting down brutally on its Mediterranean forces and footholds, while laying plans for an exterior line of imperial communications around Africa and the Indian Ocean. But in watching the United States pulling out of Europe strategically at the moment it is once again preparing to gamble economiacily, the British see the seeds of a latent isolationism.

Two years after V-E day, American warships are still homeless between Europe and Africa. The Americans seem to be ready to pay through the nose to support such groups as the collaborationist-saturated monarchists of Greece, but are yet prepared to accept a permanent responsibility of their own.

In both the Truman and Marshall plans, there are creditable hopes but the hard core of military reality is missing. Both plans are soft at the center, because they make America responsible for Europe but ignore the security they aim to achieve.

our own productivity. Unless this one remaining Gibraltar of economic strength is maintained, chaos will be inevitable over the whole world."

Referring to necessary cooperation of foreign nations in the task of recovery, Hoover said that apparently little aid can be expected from Russia.

'Obstruction' of Russia.

"The obstruction of the Soviet Union to peace," he declared, "has imposed billions, in expenditures upon us during the last two years, through suppport of occupation armies and relief of starvation which would not otherwise have been required."

His supposition that the United States may have become a debtor country and that we are exporting beyond our means was based on figures cited in the letter. He began by explaining that there is a direct relationship between exports and the volume of loans and gifts.

"Too often," he stated, "gifts and loans to foreign peoples are visualized as just money transactions. The only way money of important volume can be transferred from one nation to another is by goods (including gold) and services. Therefore, when we make a gift, credit or loan, it is not money that we transfer. It is goods and services."

The rule was laid down that we cannot safely export more than our surplus. "If we ship more than our surplus," the letter went on, "we are taking it from the standard of living of the American people. Further, the immediate result of exporting more than a surplus in our free economy is to raise prices. From that we get a dangerous spiral of increased costs of living and wages."

Hoover's Statistics.

In the last two years, wrote Hoover, the United States had gross exports of 28 billion dollars, offset by imports of almost 15 billion. To the net exports of 13 billion dollars he adds commitments, further probable loans and private gifts totaling more than six billion for the next fiscal year. There is an additional liability, amounting to 14 billion, in the shape of foreign deposits in American banks, including earmarked gold and foreign ownership of American securities. We must be prepared at all times, Hoover reminded Bridges, to meet their withdrawal. He calculated that in the next fiscal year the United States will be required to export from 14 to 16 billion in goods and services.

Gifts and loans to foreign nations are an immediate burden on the American taxpayer, Hoover continued. Already, he pointed out, taxation, including local expenditures, consumes about 35 per cent of the national income. "No free nation," he asserted, "can continue at that rate for long without impairing its productivity."

Rise in Cost of Living

There is no wish to contend, the writer said, that the whole rise in living costs has been due to exports and foreign aid. But he declared that 70 per cent of the 20 per cent rise in the cost of living index in the last 12 months was due to increased cost of agricultural products, and that in the same period we exported gigantic amounts of food grains. Some exports have been taken, he said, from our own possible railway, factory and housing reconstruction, and account in part for the mounting prices of such materials.

"While the world situation requires that we do our best," Hoover said, "my own view is that, unless we can undertake to increase our productivity or decrease our consumption of goods, we must seriously reduce the volume of exports below the rate of the last two years, with a corresponding reduction in the gifts and loans for which we supply goods."

It was emphasized that exports draw upon American resources, and that some of these—such as oil, metals and minerals—are irreplacable. "Their shipment abroad," Hoover warned, "is a depletion of our resources and a charge against our future economy. While such exports may be necessary to restore the world, we cannot ignore the consequences."

He said this country profitably could import and stockpile for national defense some commodities such as tin, manganese, iron ore, mercury, copper, lead, zinc, tungsten, nickel and rubber.

We should "bluntly insist," Hoover advocated, that "in return for our sacrifices, which are inherent in loans and gifts, all nations receiving our economic aid should co-operate with us in measures to reduce the burden upon us, to promote production and bring peace for the world at large."

We should also insist, he concluded, upon the observance of principles involving questions of security. His final admonition was that the United States should concentrate its limited resources in the areas where western civilization can be preserved.

Hoover's cautionary note followed a go-slow statement by Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, last week urging that any foreign aid program be based on a "total balance sheet" of American ability to provide goods and services for world rehabilitation.

Together, the statements apparently represented a Republican demand for a thorough assessment of this country's economy before foreign aid decisions are made.

3 SENATE GROUPS TO JOIN IN REICH CURRENCY INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Three Senate committees will open a combined investigation tomorrow into Russian use of American plates to print a reported half-billion dollars or more in invasion money.

Chairman Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, of the Appropriations Committee, announced yesterday that his group will be joined in the inquiry by the Armed Services and Banking and Currency Committees. "High ranking officials of the War, Treasury and State Departments have been requested to testify" at the inquiry into "military occupation policies, procedures and transactions of the Federal Government," he said in a statement.

Bridges said last week he understood that "between $400,000,000 and $900,000,000 worth of the invasion money has been or is being redeemed with American dollars." War Department officials denied that there would be any substantial loss to the Treasury on the ground that the Army can use the currency for purchases in Germany.

BOY HURT IN FALL FROM BLUFF

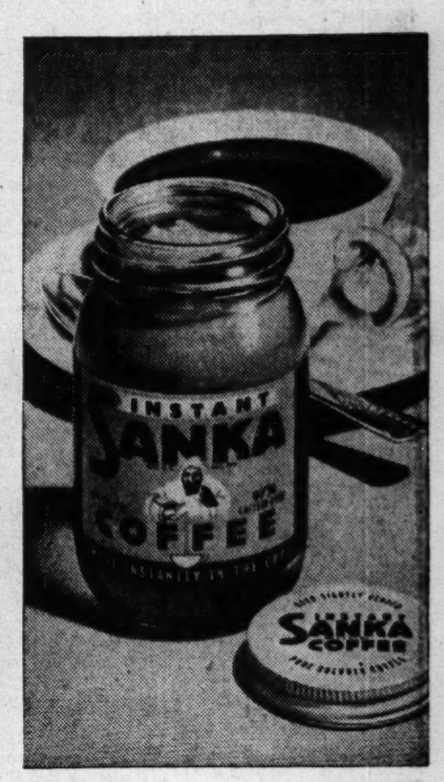

Donald Kleinschrodt, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kleinschrodt, 4515 Oregon avenue, suffered head injuries when he fell 40 feet from a bluff overlooking the Mississippi river to a driveway on the river bank yesterday. He is at City Hospital.

The boy was attempting to catch pigeons with a friend on land owned by the Merck Chemical Co. at 4528 South Broadway when he lost his footing and fell. He was able to lessen the force of the impact by seizing momentarily a branch of a tree about 10 feet from the bottom.

Radio in Review

The Telephone Hour High-Minded Stuff

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, June 16.

"THE TELEPHONE HOUR" on Monday nights is a very pleasant, high-minded half hour (in radio there are only 30 minutes in an hour) which has drenched the air with good music for eight years. It's one of the most expensive musical shows on the air and its fans are legion and nationwide. It has a Hooper rating of around 8, which is peanuts by comparison with, say, Bob Hope, but which indicates there are many millions of listeners for good music.

DON VOORHEES

In case you never heard it, which is unlikely, this is a program of serious music played by The Bell Telephone Co. symphony orchestra conducted by Donald Voorhees and sung by a chorus and some of the finest soloists in the country. Voorhees hasn't the purity of tone or the petal-like definition of the Boston Symphony. By symphonic standards, some of the conducting is a little messy, but it's good enough for all but the most severe musical tastes.

THE PHRASE "classical music" has come to mean anything that wasn't written by Irving Berlin. Used in that loose and inaccurate sense, the Telephone Hour is a program of classical music. Its programs are cleanly balanced and are not too heavy and not too light. The program arrangers hew much more closely to really great music than, say, "The Voice of Firestone" and at the same time, wisely, I think, gear their selections to popular tastes, too. The result is something between a pop concert and Carnegie Hall, but closer to the latter than the former.

A TYPICAL recent program, for instance, opened with the thrilling psalmody from "Mefistofele," sung by Blanche Thebom, mezzo soprano, accompanied by the chorus and orchestra. Then Miss Thebom sang the opening and closing arias from Act II of "Die Walkuere." After that, the orchestra took over with the intermezzo from "Pagliacci," a melody which, I imagine, can be whistled by a good many schoolboys. Then Miss Thebom returned to sing Chopin's "Melancholy," the father of so many of our Tin Pan Alley tunes. After another orchestral number (Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Dance of the Clown"), Miss Thebom, the chorus and orchestra all joined in a hymn. That's the sort of program which makes a Mozart or Bach devotee distinctly restless, but is immensely appealing on these summer nights to the rest of us.

THE SOLOISTS who have appeared on this program in the last eight years are a "Who's Who" of music. The telephone company has consistently sought out the best; since there are so few who fall into that category and since the program is on the air week after week, occasionally they settle for the second best but rarely ever for anything less. Among those who have been heard or will be heard this year are Marian Anderson, Gladys Swarthout, Ezio Pinza, Maggie Teyte, Bidu Sayao, Arthur Rubinstein and Fritz Kreisler. What more can you ask?

THE ADVERTISING on this program has a rather sonorous air as if the company were addressing the board of directors instead of just you and me. (It's written by a poet, Norman Rosten.) Never, never does the telephone company do anything so gross as to solicit the customers to install a telephone or even to use the telephone. In fact, sometimes we are advised not to use it. Occasionally the company muses aloud about the miles of cable it is laying or what the boys in the laboratory are doing. Once in a while subscribers are gently scolded like wayward children. (Handle telephones carefully; they break and they don't belong to you, they belong to the telephone company. Be courteous to others on the party line.)

There isn't much of it and it has the soothing majesty of the monopoly without any of the shrill clamor of competition. The socially conscious will find these patrician sentiments disturbing, if not downright offensive, but the rest of the listeners, I'm sure, love it.

Bank Statement

By Christopher Billopp

A BANK statement is the bank's opinion of what money you have in the bank. It is sent to you to see whether you are of the same opinion.

In all probability, the balance shown on the bank's statement will bear little relation to the balance on your check stubs. You would do well to find out why by going over your figures.

One reason is that the checks made out to women for your wife's club dues and for gifts bought at gift shoppes have not been returned to the bank. The good women are waiting until they have accumulated a boxful of them before they make a special trip to town.

ANOTHER REASON is that, when you are out of funds, you make out a check for cash and forget to put it down on a check stub. Still another is that your subtraction needs a good deal of overhauling. There is no guarantee that when you subtract 2 from 7 you will not get 3 or 4 or 6, or anything but 5.

No doubt, too, you have an unfortunate habit of getting your columns of figures mixed up and throwing a number from the second column into the first, or vice versa, with disastrous effects on the total.

IF YOU WORK over your books an hour or more, your opinion of what you have in the bank will begin to approach that of the bank. When it gets to the point where the bank says you have $5 less than you think you have, you had better stop. Otherwise, you might go on until you think you have $10 less than the bank says you have.

It is, of course, hard to admit that you are $5 poorer than you thought you were. But, then, the bank may be right. It usually is.

STAFF AIR VIEWS OF FLOOD ZONE

View of Grafton, Ill., as it appeared this morning, with floodwaters of the Mississippi river overrunning part of its main street. Twenty families have been evacuated from their isolated homes. Both the Mississippi and Missouri were dropping today as the crests of their first floods moved past St. Louis but a second flood wave is expected later in the week.

JEEPING TO WORK

Arriving at work on time this morning—despite the streetcar and bus strike of St. Louis Public Service Co. employes—this group pulls up in a jeep at a Kroger grocery store, 6122 Easton avenue. At wheel is Otis Canterbury, a meat cutter, who picked up eight other workers on his way in from his home at High Ridge, Jefferson county.

LABOR CARAVAN ON WAY TO CAPITAL

Members of an AFL-CIO motorcade of 22 automobiles, en route from western cities to Washington for a parade in protest against the Taft-Hartley labor bill, pause at Eureka yesterday on the transcontinental trip. The caravan of "1947 Minutemen of Labor" set out from Los Angeles Thursday, with additional members joining along the way. The group stopped overnight in St. Louis.

The Stars' Dressing Room

ETHEL BARRYMORE has reportedly "given in" to Hollywood. But only six years ago (in "The Corn Is Green" Playbill) she was quoted as saying that, eight years after making it, she hadn't seen her last film, "Rasputin and the Empress" . . . "The people," Ethel said, "are unreal, the flowers are unreal—they do not smell. The fruit is unreal, it doesn't taste of anything. The whole thing is a set, a glaring, gaudy, nightmarish set built up in the desert." Ho, hum. Miss B. now stars in two new films. . . . One of the better Eth Barrymore yarns concerns the time she wired a producer, asking him to supply her troupe with new costumes. The producer's wired reply was just one word: "No."

ETHEL BARRYMORE . . . HAD LAST WORD.

But Ethel had the last word. She sent him a wire that was just as brief: "Oh." . . . In an interview with Michael Mok, 11 years ago, Margaret Sullivan really knocked the movies. She was at it long before Katharine Hepburn had her trouble with the craft. "I went out to Hollywood because I needed the money and because I knew that security would give me independence," Maggie said. "No matter how much money you get, you earn every cent of it. Theres nothing easy, nothing pleasant, nothing glamorous about it. It's the toughest work in the world. . . . You slave all day and at night there's nothing for it but to go to bed. And then you're madder than ever because you can't have any fun."

ENID MARKEY'S favorite memory so far of the "Happy Birthday" hit concerns the young man in the cast whose wife had their first child. In one scene Enid and her drinking companion, Grace Valentine, are supposed to toast the character he plays. Instead of water the actor found real champagne in his glass and bright, best wishes in the eyes of Enid and Grace.

JUDITH ANDERSON has played many evil ladies, beginning with her first New York success, "Cobra," and including movie roles like that in "Rebecca." When she was small, instead of yearning to be Juliet, like her little friends, she wanted to play Lady MacBeth! . . . Still in the hometown, Adelaide, South Australia, she won all the temperance medals a maiden could win—then had them melted and cast into a brooch.

THE WARM and humane qualities which make Dorothy Gish's acting showed to special perfection in the short-lived "The Story of Mary Surratt." As the tortured Mrs. Surratt, she electrified the theater with qualities the patrons of drama rarely feel. Perhaps this statement of hers will illuminate why she's as good as she is: "It's kind of pathetic, you know, I'm plain stage struck. If I couldn't do anything else in the theater, I'd carry a spear."

THE LATE great Laurette Taylor once said: "If a critic calls my acting true, that seems to me the highest praise he can possibly give me. Never mind the big sounding adjectives; just that one word means more than all of them." To young actors who wondered whether they should study fencing and singing and other arts, she said: "Yes, if you don't think about them in the theater; the danger is that you will get to singing and posing instead of talking and living." It was openly known that Laurette drank a good deal after the death of her beloved husband, Hartley Manners. Her statement about it was that she went on the longest wake in history.

MARY MARTIN'S printed tale was that she agreed to play the Goddess Venus in "One Touch of Venus" only after examining several statues of the lady in a museum. One unpleasingly plump Venus turned the trick. She says that she turned to her husband with: "I'm prettier than that. By damn, I'll do the play!"

ELSIE FERGUSON, who made a spectacular return in "Outrageous Fortune" (and has been too quiet since) was supposedly the originator of the painted beauty spot as opposed to the one which was passed on. Be thankful for journalism as you find it now. In 1914 someone wrote of Elsie: "She is the shadow of beauty rather than beauty itself. She does not glow, she haunts."

Turns Hobby Into Skilled-Craft

Mary Frances Schimpff Becoming Known as Silver Jewelry Designer

By Clarissa Start

WHEN Mary Frances Schimpff was a little girl she used to spend many hours at the Zoo admiring the antics of the animals. Now, thanks to Mary's talents, a great many people are admiring St. Louis' favorite stars behind bars, as portrayed by her in hand-made silver pins, locally on display at Mermod-Jaccard-King Co. Designed for a dual purpose, Mary's zoo jewelry is intended to serve as jewelry for children and souvenirs of St. Louis, souvenirs which are considerably more decorative than the time-worn "key to the city," wooden thermometer, or other novelty knick-knacks.

MARY FRANCES SCHIMPFF AT HER DRAWING BOARD. . . . AMONG HER CLIENTS ARE THE ROOSEVELT FAMILY.

Not only does Mary feel that she's done right by Henry, the chimpanzee, Pao-pi-ei, the panda, and Miss Jim, the elephant, but also by Mary. The craft of designing silver jewelry which she learned in high school and started as a hobby four years ago has grown into a thriving business, the Schimpff Silver Studio in Bloomington, Ill., in which Mary's mother, Mrs. Frances Schimpff, is a partner and several other youngsters are employed as assistants. Commissioned on private orders as well as orders by Jaccard's, the youthful jewelry designer has had a number of noted clients, among them the Roosevelt family.

"Mother and I really started making jewelry as a hobby," Mary, a sweet-faced, quiet-voiced girl, explained. "Both of us had had a little jewelry work—I'd learned how to make it in the general arts course at Principia high school—and we fixed up a workshop at home and made some pins and rings as gifts, just for fun. Other people saw the jewelry and asked if we'd make some for them, then gift shops saw it and sent us orders and almost before we knew it we were in business."

Although the studio has now expanded from a home workshop to a downtown office, which "moves north" for the summer to a Michigan resort because of the difficulties of working with silver in hot temperatures, all their work is still entirely hand-made. Describing the process, Mary makes it sound very easy; a little patience, perseverance and genius is about all you need to be a jewelry designer.

"Anyone can make jewelry if they have accuracy, patience, and the ability to design," she said. "We've found it doesn't take anyone with art training but someone who can follow a pattern carefully."

IT all sounds simple enough until you look at the intricate detail of some of the pins, especially Mary's "crest" pins. Made individually from family crests, they have such things as acorns and unicorns, lions and lambs, crosses and crowns, all made with the utmost care and delicacy.

Very often families do not have a crest and ask for a modern one made of their family interests, such as a barbecue pit rampant on a field of gin rummy score pads, or the one Mary made recently for a family of simple tastes which consisted merely of a cocktail shaker over their initials.

ELEPHANT PIN.

In the past 18 months Mary has made crests for families in all 48 states.

Making the zoo jewelry required a different approach as Mary spent a great deal of time with George Vierheller, director of the Zoo, visiting the 14 animals she portrayed and studying their characteristics.

Mary, who says she is 24 and looks about 17 years old, has other artistic talents in addition to jewelry designing. She also makes marionettes, which she has exhibited at the Art Museum, specializing in rhumba dancers and jitterbugs. She hopes to continue her jewelry business but on a small, personalized basis, not a large mass production scale.

"One of the most interesting things about taking personal orders is the mail we receive," she said. "Just recently, for instance, one family for whom we'd made a lot of crest pins wrote us and said, 'You've now made pins for every female member of the family old enough to wear them. Now you'll have to wait for the babies to grow up.'"

Some years ago Monty Woolley came aboard ship to wish my wife and me "bon voyage" on a trip to France. We impulsively decided it would be fun to have him go along, so we locked him in the bathroom until we hit the high seas.

Naturally I ended up as Monty's valet. I borrowed shirts and underwear for him, and humored his every whim.

He was without a passport, of course. And since it was my idea, he refused to lift a finger to arrange for permission to enter France. Unable to get in touch with the American Ambassador in Paris, I finally sent a wireless to the British Ambassador, who was an old friend of mine.

As a result of my friend's effort, Monty was escorted down a special gang plank at Le Havre by a British reception committee and whisked off in a long, sleek limousine. He didn't even deign to wave me, his benefactor, a lofty farewell.

The next we saw of Monty, he was being ushered royally to the only available compartment on the train to Paris. My wife and I ended up with poor second-class passage. Monty refused to share the luxury he was enjoying through my intervention!

"Peasant," he grunted, "I know the right people."

Fine Military Experiment

By Dr. Daniel A. Poling

IN A democracy public service is often private torture. If a man wants to know what a despicable character he is, just let him run for office, or continue to hold a military commission after the armistice is signed.

All but completely unprepared, we went to war in 1941. Through the years that followed we became increasingly grateful to those who organized the nation's defenses and captained her victories on land and sea and in the air. That the generals and admirals and lesser officers made mistakes will not be denied, but many of their mistakes stemmed from the nation's indifference and delay; and thousands died on all the fronts because we failed to train them for battle.

I HAVE just come from what is perhaps the most unusual experiment in all military history—the Fort Knox unit of U.M.T. If it were within my power to do so, I would make available to every boy in America what Gen. Devine and his associates are giving to the 600 trainees who have volunteered for that experience. Some of the criticism directed against this magnificent man, whose personal character is above reproach and whose genius for youth leadership is not often equalled, is unfair, untrue and unworthy of any American. Some of it has been voiced by certain sections of the religious press.

BUT GEN. DEVINE and his fellow officers, the chaplains and their civilian advisers, have contributed more to the moral and religious instruction of the boys entrusted to their care than any other group has contributed to a comparable number in any decade of my public life.

I flew from Fort Knox to Washington in a ship piloted by Lt. Col. Joseph R. Ambrose. We took off at 2:30 a.m. and the sun came up to meet us in a faultless sky. Then we ran into fog. We could not land on Bolling Field for there was no ceiling, but we did make a perfect landing on Andrews Field with a ground control approach. The ceiling was minus and we didn't see the strip until we were on it! Radar, training and American youth equipped for the occasion did that.

Let's be fair, let's be honest and let's be grateful.

Tips for Teens

Can't You Get a Date?

By Elinor Williams

PLAY TENNIS WITH BOB; IT'S A START TOWARD FRIENDSHIP.

NO dates? What are you doing about it? This girl who doesn't know what to do, writes:

"I'm a girl of 17 and people say I'm very good looking, but still I don't have any boy friends, or any dates. Please tell me what to do."

It usually takes more than average good looks to put you on the date list of boys you'd like to know. Too many girls believe that clothes and looks are the answer to everything. Did you ever hear of personality? A friendly smile for the girls and boys you see every day in school? Do you belong to at least one school club, go to school games and take part in other high school activities? Do you ever give a party or get several girls and boys together at your home?

You'll find that fun, friendships and dates will take a little effort on your part. Life is like that for nearly all of us—you can't have fun without doing some of the work or making some of the arrangements to provide it. What have you done lately to provide fun for you and your friends?

An ardent Romeo won't appear out of the wild blue yonder just because you're not bad looking. Get acquainted with boys you see every day; make friends with girls in your class, neighborhood and church (they have brothers).

Next time you and Jack go to Sunday School, flash a smile and chat about yesterday's game or today's lesson — anything to break the ice. Play tennis with Bob; it's a start toward friendship and dates.

Why not plan a Saturday hike and picnic with several other girls? Each girl can invite a boy and one of them can bring along an extra boy to complete the picnic crowd, if you don't know anybody well enough by that time. Girls provide the food; boys make the fire.

Metro has revived plans for doing another version of "The Three Musketeers." Douglas Fairbanks did the original, and two others, much sorrier attempts, followed over the years. Gene Kelly will star in the new one.

"Pride of New York," life story of its Mayor O'Dwyer, is on the shelf after a brief airing of plans. Pat O'Brien was slated to play the title role but has too many commitments in advance.

WHEN THE MOVIES made "How Green Was My Valley," a coal-mining yarn, they built their own pits. Jesse Lasky will have none of that fakery in filming "Miracle of the Bells," another mining-town story. He's taking over an entire village in Pennsylvania and will send a camera crew east to photograph it. Miners will be shown going to and from work—and about 3000 will receive additional wages as film extras.

Wrap-Around Skirt

It is amazing how the shirtwaist and skirt has taken a major hold on our wardrobe. Ideal for town wear in summer is a wrap-around skirt of pure black linen, nice when topped with a fine white linen blouse. One blouse has a deep loose V neckline marked by bands of stitching, a petal collar and voluminous sleeves.

Affection in Public

By Emily Post

NO rule of good taste is more exacting than that which forbids the display of one's affections in public. Plainly, this is why the father of a newly-engaged girl felt safe in telling her to write me the following letter: "I took my fiance for the first time to the house of my aunt with whom my grandmother lives. He had met grandmother but not the others. During our visit we sat together on a small sofa and at one time he picked up my hand and for a little while held it, as he talked to the others of our plans. Afterward, father said he was surprised that we had shown such poor taste. My father is so sure he is right that he said he would give me quite a large extra sum toward my trousseau if you said he wasn't."

I am not quite sure your father will agree that I am helping your trousseau, but as I imagine the scene, it was a perfectly natural impulse on your fiance's part to reach for your hand and hold it—especially as he brought you into the topic of his conversation. I really can't imagine how anyone could have thought it "overdemonstrative" unless at the same time he and you both ignored the presence of others.

DEAR MRS. POST: I have been criticized for taking coffee with my main course at dinner. I don't smoke and I don't eat dessert, so when else would be the time to drink coffee?

Answer: You may have coffee whenever you choose in your own house. In fact, I think the majority of Americans prefer "breakfast" coffee with their other meals. Only in formal houses or, of course, on formal occasions, is black coffee served after the meal.

DEAR MRS. POST: What kind of party would you suggest for a new bride in our family? The wedding occurred in a distant place and neither realtives nor friends were able to go, so this party at our house is to make up for it.

Answer: It may be anything from an evening reception to a picnic supper, depending entirely on what best fits your purse and suits your inclination.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

DEAR MARTHA CARR:

I AM a boy 17 and don't go to school but work steady. I have been going out with a girl 15. She's a very good girl and I like her very much. My parents like her also but for some reason try to keep us apart. Recently someone started a rumor that I am going to get married to another girl and my girl friend heard it and is mad at me. She still goes on dates with me but won't talk to me more than five minutes in all the time we are together. What can I do to make her like me again?

F. H. J.

The reason your parents try to keep you away from the girl is, probably, because they know you are far too young to marry and suspect that you may be considering it. A boy 17 and a girl 15 are not mature enough to make wise judgments in anything as serious as matrimony. The very fact that your girl friend is behaving in this childish way is proof that she is still a child. Keep it a casual friendship and instead of too much romance, use your leisure time to go to night school, catch up with some of that education you've missed, and improve yourself and your job prospects so that you'll be a better bet matrimonially speaking when you are old enough to marry.

IN ANSWER TO "JOAN:" The Cadet Nursing program is no longer in force, although those nurses who were enrolled in the program prior to its closing are being allowed to finish their training. However, no new enlistments are being taken. There are numerous scholarships, loans, and other forms of aids for nurses' training, but I am told it is necessary for you to be qualified in order to receive them. The best thing for you to do is to go to the nursinng school you desire to attend, find out if you qualify for admission, and they will be able to advise you as to the forms of aid for which you may be eligible.

IN ANSWER TO "OVER WORKED:" If the business in which you are employed engages in inter-state commerce, take your case to the Wage and Hour office, Room 314, 815 Olive street, as it would come under federal laws. If the business for which you work comes under this law, as it probably does, report your case to the Missouri State Division of Industrial Inspection, Fullerton Building, 122 North Seventh street.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE N-250: Jim B., aged 29, was a beginning salesman for an insurance company. "I have two different sales talks that my manager tells me to memorize," he said during our business psychology class. "Dr. Crane, how can I learn them most efficiently?"

First, distribute the practice periods whenever it is possible. One of our eminent German psychologists, Professor Ebbinghaus, found that in one such memorizing experiment, 38 repetitions spread over a period of three days were equal to 68 on one day.

But sometimes it is impossible to distribute the learning trials, as when an actor in an emergency is called up to replace somebody else and thus must have his lines perfectly learned by the evening performance. Cramming is then of great value. Many students can spend almost an entire night in this manner just before the final examination, and pick up 20 to 30 points on the next day's quiz. Lawyers may also devote half a night to memorizing the muscles and bones of the human body in advance of an accident case that comes up next day. I have seen such attorneys talk as learnedly as a physician after such an evening's cramming.

BUT CRAMMED KNOWLEDGE rapidly fades from memory. In my psychology classes, therefore, I always gave a weekly "true-false" quiz over the textbook assignment, thus guaranteeing that my students would read regularly and thus distribute their trials, instead of waiting till the night before the final exam. The second rule for memorizing is to "overlearn." By this, I mean that you should practice beyond the point when you are first able to make a perfect reproduction or recitation. Keep on rehearsing the correct thing. Third, develop as many new relationships as possible with reference to the material you wish to recall. "Cross index" your memory, so to speak.

KNOWLEDGE IS pigeonholed in memory not as isolated items, but as links in a chain. The more different chains that utilize the same link, therefore, the easier to stimulate that "link" and bring it back into the focus of attention.

For example, if you are introduced to a stranger at a banquet, the later recollection of the banquet may lead to recall of his name. But if you asked him to spell his name and learned that it was Crawford, and if you live in Crawfordsville, that makes another relationship.

If you also find that he attended the same college you did, or has the same number of children, etc., you have that many more "chains" by which to pull Crawford out of your memory.

This Summer's Dresses Made for 'Double Duty

They Are the Ideal Choice for Busy City Dweller and Also Good for That Vacation Trip

By Sylvia Stiles

DRESSES that lead a double life are fashion-right as well as practical for summer days. Not only are they the ideal choice for the busy city dweller but they also are perfect for that vacation trip.

Usually these dresses combine dark with light. Sometimes the skirt is dark and is topped by a light blouse or jacket. Again the dress may be light with a dark bolero, or over-drapery to give it double-duty. You can wear these dresses with extra parts so that they serve for many different occasions. Also, by subtracting a jacket, cape or other detachable part you have another method of completely changing the appearance as well as the use of the costume.

St. Louis stores are showing a variety of these summer dresses which can be worn in several different ways. First in the list is the dark dress iwth a white jacket. The versions of this theme are legion. Many of the newest jackets are made of washable materials—rayon, linen or cotton so that they can be tubbed frequently. Incidentally, if you can't find one of these dark dresses with a white jacket that looks like it could belong to other dresses or skirts you can invent your own two-some with a white suit and a sleeveless dark dress. The white suit can be worn may different ways—the coat with a dark skirt or dress, the skirt with a dark or printed blouse, the coat with shorts or slacks and the skirt with halters.

But to return to the vogue of the dress with detachable, contrasting parts—you will find many sleeveless white dresses with cleverly styled, brief boleros as well as black or navy dresses with white boleros. Most of the dresses are cut with sun backs or with the blouses sufficiently low for them to be used for informal dinner dresses.

Several New York designers are illustrating the trend toward glorified shirtwaist themes for dress-up wear by featuring cocktail dresses consisting of dark skirts with elaborately embroidered or beaded blouses. The black skirt with a handsome blouse of sheer white crepe is another new favorite. By adding a jacket these costumes become sufficiently tailored for general wear. They also are so advanced in their styling that they will see service into the fall months.

Surplice effects have become so fashionable this summer that a clever woman can transform a ing black-and-white theme by the addition of a wrapped capelet of white linen. Equally striking is the effect produced by adding a deep bertha collar or a square-cut simple black frock into a strik-yoke to a black crepe frock. Some dresses have their own yokes that are buttoned into place, the buttons making it a simple process to remove the yoke for laundering or for the substitution of a different top of solid color or printed fabric.

The woman who likes to look ahead to the autumn and have at least one dark dress in her summer wardrobe that also can be worn later will find the black dresses with white jackets or detachable white tops a very fashionable choice in addition to their practicability. Longer skirts that are full at the hemline and often swing in a gentle flare from the waistline to the hem are typical of the newest silhouette. Whether there is bulk at the hips should be governed by becomingness.

A DINNER DRESS OF BLACK SPUN RAYON WITH FULL SKIRT AND SLEEVELESS BODICE HAS A WHITE COLLAR THAT IS CUT IN BERTHA FASHION. A SWINGING SHORT JACKET OR WHITE OR BLACK CREPE OR REMOVAL OF THE BERTHA TO SUBSTITUTE FOR A PRINTED TOP WOULD QUICKLY TRANSFORM THE DRESS.

WILLIAM BASS, NEW YORK DESIGNER, CREATED THIS DARK STREET COSTUME WITH ITS WHITE RAYON BROADCLOTH JACKET. THE SIMPLE, LOW-NECKED DRESS IS OF BLACK CREPE BELTED WITH PATENT LEATHER. SHORT SLEEVES ON THE JACKET ASSURE COMFORT IN HOT WEATHER.

A HALTER DRESS OF WHITE BUTCHER LINEN IS TOPPED BY A REMOVABLE BOLERO OF NAVY BLUE OR BLACK MATERIAL. GOLD SQUARE BUTTONS ARE USED FOR THE DIAGONAL CLOSING AND THERE IS A GOLD COLORED KID BELT TO MATCH. DESIGNED BY VARDEN FOR THE WOMAN FIVE FEET OR LESS.

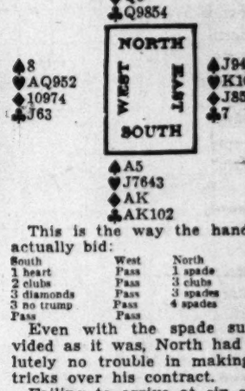

THIS SUMMER COCKTAIL DRESS CONSISTING OF BLACK CREPE WITH A SEQUINNED WHITE CREPE BLOUSE IS A NEW YORK DESIGNER'S INTERPRETATION OF THE NEW TREND IN DRESS-UP FASHIONS. THE SKIRT SUGGESTS WEAR WITH A BLACK JACKET OR WITH OTHER BLOUSES.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

THERE is no denying that experts, in their anxiety to explore in the bidding, every possible weak point of a hand, sometimes get caught in their own circumlocutions. The players who held the North-South hands in today's deal were (believe it or not) very, very famous!

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

This is the way the hand was actually bid:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 spades	Pass
5 no trump	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Even with the spade suit divided as it was, North had absolutely no trouble in making two tricks over his contract.

Failing to arrive at six spades was bad enough, but the bidding looks even worse when one sees that a seven-club contract would have been "back to back." Moreover, it is fair to assume that almost any average pair would have reached at least a small slam, in either spades or clubs, preferably the latter, of course. Thus the very "expertness" of the actual North-South players seems to have militated very strongly against them!

Analysis of the bidding discloses that South was almost exclusively to blame for the missed slam. In the first place, his two-club rebid put him in the position where he could never really disclose the enormous honor-trick strength of his holding. After the raise in clubs, there was no completely satisfactory bid open to South, and he therefore invented the three-diamond kid as a "marking time" maneuver which would simultaneously show considerable strength. Unfortunately, however its real effect was to make North fear the genuineness of South's club suit and also to feel that South must have high hearts that would be "duplication" of North's void.

If South had merely jumped to two no trump on the second round he would have had clear sailing thereafter.

For a flakier pie crust, give pastry dough the "chill" treatment. Not only should shortening be cold and water ice cold, but chill the dough before baking.

Adolescents Grow Quickly To Maturity

By Angelo Patri

FATHERS and mothers live very close to their children in babyhood and childhood and they think they know them very, very well. They think that the children think as they do, and are likely to behave accordingly. For a time they are right. But the day comes when the trusting parents are shocked out of their calm acceptance of those children. They have done something quite unexpected.

"What's that? Jamie has entered himself in the science courses? You must be mistaken. He is to enter the classical courses. Headed toward engineering? I do not understand. He is to be a lawyer, like his father. Please don't register him until we see him. There is a mistake somewhere."

But there is no mistake. Jamie is going to be an engineer, not a lawyer. He says so with a definiteness that leaves no doubt in the minds of his stunned parents.

SUSIE IS a sweet little girl all through babyhood and childhood. She never once refused a request, never once rebelled against an order. She accepted what came. If she asked for something, expressed a wish for something or some way of action, and her request was denied, she made no sign—went her way cheerfully as laid down by her parents and teachers.

On her thirteenth birthday, Susie ran away. She had taken all the money she had in her bank, all her birthday checks which she cashed and, without even a note, took the train for the nearest city. She wanted to be a singer, an actress and, not finding any hope of such a career in her home, had gone in search of it.

HER PARENTS were shocked into illness. To think that the daughter they believed to be so good and sweet would do such a dreadful thing. Was it so bad? Is it bad for an adolescent to follow his growth and strike out from home toward his goal? He must do that. Home must do its utmost to keep step with the growth of the childhen and if, at all possible, share their thoughts, hopes and ambitions.

The baby father and mother knew is gone; the child they knew is gone. There is a stranger in the house, a stranger who will hide shyly his secret from those who would take it from him. Children must grow up, change, mature. This is always hard on the parents, but looked at sensibly it should be something to cheer about.

Accept the fact that the adolescent child is almost matured. Sand by—ready to help the little that remains of the child in him. Be ready to advise, confer, and defer to the stranger in the family. He may be, probably is, a very wholesome, inspiring sort of person.

Grapefruit and Strawberry Juice

One-half cup grapefruit juice, one-half cup fresh strawberry juice, four teaspoons lemon juice, three tablespoons honey, one tablespoon sugar, two-thirds cup charged water.

Mix all ingredients together in a cocktail shaker. Place crushed ice in cocktail glasses and pour mixture over and serve at once.

Modern Marriage

Take Vacations Together

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

VACATION time is near. Mr. and Mrs. L. want to make their plans for the summer. Shall they go off together, or separately?

"Why don't you get a change?" some of their friends urge. "You two have been together for 50 weeks. Get away from each other for a couple of weeks—you'll appreciate each other more!"

HOW SHALL Mr. and Mrs. L. decide? The general principle, of course, is that any arrangement must be such as to strengthen the marriage, not weaken it. A second principle is that occasional short separations in marriage are desirable, long ones undesirable. A third principle is that husband and wife should make it a particular point to be together when they are having a good time. That includes, ordinarily, vacations.

Each case must be decided on its own merits. Here are Mr. and Mrs. Y., just back from a two weeks' tour by automobile and disgusted with life. Mr. Y. owns a service station, which keeps him away from home for long hours. His wife has formed the habit of finding her entertainment visiting friends, telephoning them or going to the movies. On this trip they stopped at service stations oftener than Mrs. Y. thought necessary, and each time her husband would spend an hour "talking shop" to the boys while she sat in the car and boiled with indignation. Their mistake was not in taking a trip together, but in failing to plan wisely for it. A boat trip, if available, would have met their needs better; or a fortnight at the beach—without an automobile!

Mr. and Mrs. B. own a small restaurant, to which they both give their time. They enjoy it and are prospering. They are rarely out of sight of each other, and always have something to talk about. They decided this year that Mr. B. would take a vacation attending the American Bowling Congress in Los Angeles, while Mrs. B., when her turn came, would go back to Dallas to visit her sister, who had a new baby. Each came home refreshed.

BUT IN GENERAL, husband and wife should measure their separations in days rather than weeks, and they should plan their vacations together, not apart, in order to build up more interests in common, get new things to think and talk about, and identify their marriage with the process of getting as much fun as possible out of life.

Questions and Answers.

Q. Two of us, unmarried women teachers, live together. The companionship means a great deal to me, but I am afraid my friend is getting tired of me. What can I do to hold her friendship?

A. Dr. Laura Hutton, in her useful little book, "The Single Woman," says such friendships are often destroyed because one of the two expects too much, and especially demands too much affection, because of her own infantile outlook. Do all you can to widen your own circle of interests and acquaintances, so you won't be too possessive.

Q. Everyone starts life in ignorance of sex. I can't believe this plays a very important part in the mental difficulties of adults.

A. No psychiatrist agrees with you. "The neuroses of adult life are very complicated and difficult to unravel," says Dr. Edward Strecker of Philadelphia. "To the square inch, I believe they contain more ignorance, misinformation, and bad habit formation about sex, dating from childhood, than any other ingredient."

ANY VACATION ARRANGEMENT MUST BE SUCH AS TO STRENGTHEN THE MARRIAGE, NOT WEAKEN IT.

Goodness Isn't Always Fun

By Elsie Robinson

I WONDER why the thing which is supposed to be so good for us is so seldom fun. My kindly counsellors are always telling me of the joyous benefits which I will derive from following a carefully planned and prudent course in life and dire consequences which will befall me if I don't. Which is, of course, a perfectly ducky, triple sterilized, completely vitaminized line of conversation. And I should follow it to the dot.

There's only one jinx to it. It won't work. Invariably the prudent plan of life which is supposed to be so richly rewarding turns out to be just about as drab and unstimulating as a hunk of K rations.

Whereas all the things I shouldn't do are completely exciting and diverting.

I've never seen a verboten sign that I didn't want to crash. I never met a vagrant wood trail that didn't lure me to desert my dutiful highway.

There are, I am told, rare and thoroughly housebroken minds that simply dote on schedules and system and shrink inevitably from all unconventional experiment.

But not me! I'm a natural snooper, transgressor and general ruction raiser.

As for the dire penalties of such antisocial shenanigans, they follow right along just as the nice people told me they would. But do I ever learn sense? Rarely if ever and when I do I can't keep it up for long.

And I suspect this speaks for most of us. It's obvious that if we are to live together in this highly confused and hostile and uncharted new world we've got to have law and order. We've got to follow a pattern whether we like it or not.

I am not kicking about that pattern. I'm not advertising an anarchistic regime. I'm just telling the truth about being good and the truth is—it isn't always fun.

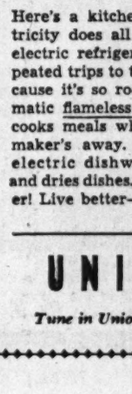

Everyone who ever lived any sort of life discovered this sooner or later. I'm not violating any law or promoting any vice in stating the fact. I'm simply trying to tell the truth, which the old goodies went to such elaborate devices to conceal.

Whether we like it or not we must have goodness in this world and we must have order. Due to our inner cussedness we all have our gypsy moments. We all want to walk in the grass when we're told we mustn't. It's part of the great American spirit. It's as ingrained in us as conformity was in the old Germans. But the modern person who insists on being his own rugged individual self regardless of everyone else's rights is not only a pig but a fool.

Goodness isn't always fun. It is often dismal and tiresome and dreary. It seldom produces the immediate fireworks which our savage human nature craves. But make no mistake—it's the one and only program that will hold this sad world together and give any of us a measure of peace and contentment.

Paging the Lady

who likes easy, quick meals from her electric home freezer

Demonstration is tomorrow at Union Electric at 2 p.m.

Cooking frozen foods is easy, as you well know. But Alice Jarman got busy recently with the thought that it could be even easier. And she's right! After testing, timing and doing all sorts of other things in our all-electric kitchen, Alice Jarman has popped up with loads of practical tips and suggestions that will make it easier than ever to cook frozen vegetables, poultry, meat and other foods. Attend this frozen food session. You'll be glad you did.

No household headaches here

Here's a kitchen where electricity does all the work. An electric refrigerator saves repeated trips to the market, because it's so roomy. An automatic flameless electric range cooks meals while the homemaker's away. An automatic electric dishwasher washes and dries dishes. See your dealer! Live better—electrically!

How to Bake a Frozen Fruit Pie

What you need:

Unbaked frozen fruit pie . . . which you have completely prepared beforehand and stored in your electric home freezer. A great help when unexpected guests drop in.

How you do it:

Take pie from your electric home freezer and immediately place in the preheated oven of the automatic flameless electric range. Temperature: 375° F. Time: 1 hour and 15 minutes.

Free! Big freezing booklet! Packed with information!

All you want to know about freezing foods. Includes valuable freezing charts for vegetables and fruits. Get your free copy of "The Freezing Preservation of Food" at the Paging the Lady demonstration, or call MAin 3222, Station 637; or write Union Electric, 12th and Locust Sts.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press.

Penny for Uncle.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Uncle Sam wants every cent due him. The Department of Internal Revenue sent Lawrence J. Reffert a bill for one penny of income tax.

Dogs for Father.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—The McGowan home swarmed with dogs for a while after Leonard O. McGowan's seven sons each brought him a dog as a father's day gift. McGowan decided that one — a black cocker spaniel—was enough and the others were returned to the city dog pound.

"I might have kept them all," said McGowan, "if my three daughters had given me a few barrels of dog food for father's day, but they didn't, and I'm glad they didn't give me dogs."

Unlucky Winner.

PHILADELPHIA—Joe McCauley, walking through the lobby of radio station WIP was persuaded to witness an audience participation show.

He won a prize—two tickets to a midnight movie.

McCauley is a disk jockey who starts work every morning at 12:30 o'clock.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

SEVERAL important rules must be followed if perfect stewed chicken is the goal. Choose a quality bird—one well fed, mature and large, but not too fat. Have it correctly killed, carefully cleaned and be sure to keep it refrigerated until it passes the rigor mortis (stiffening) stage in order to be tender. Leave whole, unless plain stewed chicken and dumplings are to be served. Truss to occupy minimum space. Fit rather snugly in a narrow, deep pan so it can be completely covered with a minimum of water. Cover kettle tightly and simmer (never boil) until tender. When tender, as much broth remains as there was water added, and the flavor is unmistakably that of delicious chicken.

Jellied Chicken Loaf.

Three cups sliced stewed chicken, two cups rich flavored chicken broth, dash pepper, one-half cup thinly sliced celery, one tablespoon lemon juice, three hard-cooked eggs, two and one-half tablespoons gelatin, one-half cup chicken broth.

Select a five-pound stewing chicken, prepare and stew as described above. Add three teaspoons salt to chicken at the beginning of the cooking. When tender, remove chicken from broth, strain and cool both chicken and broth rapidly. Skim off all excess fat from cold broth and store for any frying or seasoning. Remove skin and fat from chicken and slice both white and dark meat neatly into thin slices. Keep covered until ready for use. Soften gelatin in the one-half cup broth. Then place over hot water to melt. Stir melted gelatin thoroughly into the cooled broth. Add pepper, lemon juice and more salt if desired. Pour one-half cup gelatin mixture in a glass loaf pan or to a depth of one-eighth inch. Place in refrigerator until congealed. Quickly arrange sliced hard-cooked eggs in a pattern over the congealed gelatin. Add alternate layers of the three cups sliced chicken, the gelatin mixture, hard-cooked eggs and celery until all are used. Cover and place in the refrigerator until congealed. When ready to serve, unmold onto a cold platter. Garnish and cut into half-inch slices at the table. Five to six servings.

Note: Use remainder of chicken and broth in this way. Have ready four medium thin slices of ham. Brown it in some of the chicken fat until hot and fat is appetizingly browned.

Lay hot ham on slice of bread. On top of ham arrange remainder of sliced chicken, and over this pour a hot gravy made by blending two tablespoons chicken fat with two tablespoons flour and one cup chicken broth and seasoned with salt and pepper.

Menus for Tuesday.

Breakfast: Sliced oranges, poached eggs on toast, hot buttered toast, apple butter.

Luncheon: Baked beans with salt pork, brown bread, bread and butter pickled, shredded lettuce salad, stewed apricots.

Dinner: Chicken and egg loaf, hot baking powder biscuits, peach jam, noodle ring with creamed mixed frozen vegetables in center, watermelon wedges.

Hand Knitted Dress

Expensive but wonderful—since they last for years and years and are always in style—are those simple, shirtwaist-type dresses of hand-knitted narrow ribbon. A beauty is in white satin crepe ribbon with a thread or so of gold at the edge. Dress has simple, notched collar and tiny gold buttons down the bodice. Skirt is moderately flared.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, SUNDAY

IT was quite evident to the drafting committee of the Bill of Human Rights, last Thursday afternoon, that all the representatives of governments sitting around the table were not completely familiar with what had already transpired in previous meetings. After one very eloquent and lengthy speech, one of the delegates remarked that a similar speech had been made by the representatives of the same government in the Human Rights Commission itself before the commission's last report had been transmitted to the Economic and Social Council.

The afternoon was spent in the expression of opinions as to the form in which a bill should be written. I think the concensus was that we would have to prepare, as a first draft, two drafts! One would be in the nature of a clear and brief declaration of principles. The other would be expressed more at length and in detail, but perhaps covering fewer general ideas, and would in form be a convention or law which could be accepted and ratified by the various governments and become a part of their own law.

THE DELEGATE from the USSR apparently felt that we should impart to everyone of the 55 governments everything which had been before us, and then wait until each of the 55 governments sent in its suggestions and recommendations.

This procedure being clearly a decision which would have to be taken either by the full commission or the economic and social council, I think it was felt that we should continue with the work assigned to, us—allowing at every point, however, for the inclusion of alternative texts, so that if there was divergence of opinion the Human Rights Commission would have a clear statement before it of all points of view.

POSITIVELY, one never knows what interesting people one may meet in New York City. As you may have already discovered, one of the most surprising and interesting groups is our New York taxi drivers. My latest find was a gentleman who told me that he drove a taxi just to be sure of a basic income. But he and his wife had taken several trips across the continent, since his hobby is painting and he often sold his pictures even though he only painted them for enjoyment.

He seemed one of those rare people who enjoyed his life as he went along. Some people are always complaining of the present, and then looking back upon that present with a feeling that it was rather a delightful past. They hurry toward the future in the hope that it will be more enjoyable than the present, and so life slips away and the joys of the moment are rarely savoured. My taxi man enjoyed his life. It is really a good combination: A philosophy, a hobby and a mechanical ability which assures you of a basic livelihood!

Card Tables With Own Folding Chairs

By Genevieve Smith

EVER useful card tables are making their bow with a lot of improvements these days both in looks and serviceability.

One rather, general quality feature that adds up not only to longer but much steadier life, is the use of steel frames and legs. These legs are finished in a wood grain pattern that blends in satisfactorily with your room furniture. In some tables you'll find the tops reinforced with diagonal steel braces, which give the fiberboard tops good support.

You'll like the way the tops have taken on much better styling, too. There are many wood veneer patterns, also more colorful effects achieved by reproducing flower paintings and the like. The latter can double nicely as a fireplace screen during the summer months. Or, if you have checker devotees among family and friends, you'll be interested in the checkerboard tops. Modern finishes are much more durable now, being resistant to stains and water and also long lasting as to color.

Another development that is especially useful in smaller homes that have no dining room is the table with its companion set of four folding chairs. These tables run ordinary card size, and are appearing in both wood and steel. They can double quite satisfactorily as dining tables because they are sturdy enough to be steady. The chairs also fold, which adds up to storage in relatively small closet space. The prices on these sets usually begin at about $20.

To wash slips and blouses with the regular laundry in the washing machine, place each garment in a pillow case and tie the top securely.

Baering Down

By Arthur (Bugs) Baer

CONGRESS and Mr. Truman will never see so eye-to-eye that they can borrow one another's spectacles.

* * * *

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE is a long bowling alley. Mr. Truman sets 'em up on one end and Congress knocks 'em down on the other. But between the two of them they manage to Jack Spratt the platter.

* * * *

WHAT CONGRESS FEARS right now is that Harry will enjoy himself when it is on vacation. Mutual trust was given a big boost when some genius took the bell off the front door and put it on the cash register.

* * * *

ONE THING they must explain to me. Everything going up and taxes going down. If Einstein wants to lay his title on the line I'll match that one against his relativity.

When picking up a hot dish use a thoroughly dry holder as heat travels rapidly through moisture and it may be unsafe to use a wet cloth.
